BORAH WARNS OF WAR PERIL IN U.S. FOREIGN POLICY

Finds 'Co-operation' Two Edged Sword.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 28.—[Special.]—Senator William E. Borah [R., Idaho] in a radio address tonight warned that the Roosevelt administration policy of coöperation with European powers to curb the dictatorships of two hemispheres is fraught with the danger of involving the United States in a foreign war.

Senator Borah.

Although at no time did he address his criticisms specifically to the President or his administration, Senator Borah left his auditors in no doubt that he was delivering a studied answer to Secretary of State Cordell Hull's recent speech proclaiming coöperation with the democracies against the dictatorships, the cardinal tenet of the administration's foreign policy.

Worst Danger at Home.

In the present economic and social state of this country, the senator held, there is far more danger of fascism or communism being embraced by a desperate and miserable American people than there is of the conquest of America by fascism or communism of Europe. In but slightly veiled terms he bade the Roosevelt administration fight communism and fascism at home instead of abroad.

Pouncing upon Secretary Hull's argument that if America were to refuse coöperation she would fall into an isolationist desuetude, Senator Borah said:

"It is argued that, while alliances may be objectionable, we should cooperate. Coöperation, it is said, is the law of life, the true spirit of humanity, and, failing to coöperate, we will, as a nation, become ostracized and finally fall into spiritual, moral, and physical decay.

Questions Public Mandate.

"With whom are we going to cooperate? And is that coöperation to be by authority and approval of the people, or an official who may be in the place of power?

"There were those in this country who urged earnestly that we coöperate with Mr. Eden [Anthony Eden, former British foreign secretary] in his policy of refusing to negotiate with the dictators, and, if necessary, urged whipping the dictators. But they did not wish to coöperate with Mr. Chamberlain's [Neville Chamberlain, British premier] policy of negotiation. The former coöperation might have led us into war; the latter would lead us into close association with Hitler and Mussolini.

Recalls Japanese Tension.

"There are those who would have had us coöperate with Great Britain when she seemed ready to engage in war with Japan. But what would be our policy of coöperation when it should appear that Great Britain again may join hands with Japan, recognize her authority over North China and become her permanent ally?

"Shall we coöperate with Great Britain if she concludes to fight for the German colonies? If we coöperate with France, a republic, against Germany, shall we be content to cooperate with Russia, France's close ally?

"This policy of coöperation is rather difficult to apply to practical purpose. Either we must accept the policies as established by other countries or the people of the United States would become mere playthings of the likes and dislikes of those who might be in power."

Would Become Pawn of War.

The danger of becoming entangled with European powers, said the senator, lies in the fact that the people of those countries have no voice in the determination of peace or war. In support of this assertion he quoted an editorial in the London Times which said:

"Who, then, makes war? The answer is to be found in the chancelories of Europe, among the men who have too long played with human lives as pawns in a game of chess, who have become so enmeshed in tor-

REBEL TROOPS REACH LERIDA, BARCELONA KEY

Franco Makes Gains on Wide Front.

HENDAYE, France [at the Spanish frontier]—March 28.—(AP)—Spanish rebel armies sweeping into Catalonia tonight scored wide gains. Rebel officers at the frontier said they included capture of Lerida, but official reports from rebel headquarters declared that key city was still under siege.

Government dispatches asserted stiffening government resistance was checking the force of Generalissimo Francisco Franco's drive toward the Mediterranean.

Though rebel headquarters said Gen. Juan Yague's Navarrese, Moroccan, and Italian troops were outside Lerida laying siege, a government communique declared bitter hand-to-hand fighting still was going on at Fraga, fifteen miles southwest of Lerida.

80 Miles from Barcelona.

A government counterattack was said to have dislodged the rebels from positions dominating Fraga, just inside the Catalan border.

Lerida, long considered a center of government military operations, is only eighty miles from Barcelona, seaport seat of the Spanish government. Lerida, a textile town, guards several passes across the Catalonian coast range.

Rebel military dispatches said Gen. Franco's columns on all other sections of the eastern front kept pace with the swift advance of Yague's troops. To the north, in Huesca province, troops moving southeast on the Huesca Fraga highway reported capture of a score of villages and towns.

A force under Gen. José Moscardo, "the hero of Alcazar," stormed into Barbastro where the rebels reported the capture of a huge store of arms and ammunition. Barbastro is thirty-eight miles northwest of Lerida.

Advance in Coastal Sector.

To the south rebel dispatches said Franco's army captured Rafales and advanced within five miles of Valerrobres ,a town 110 miles southwest of Barcelona.

A rebel column based at Alcaniz, 122 miles southwest of Barcelona, was reported advancing eastward toward Gandesa. The latter is thirty miles from the Mediterranean. Mequinenza, at the junction of the Ebro and Cinca rivers was captured.

Only a narrow neck of land, with a single main highway and railway, still connects Barcelona with the rest of loyalist Spain.

The main strength of the rebels was concentrated in the Fraga-Lerida zone but over the entire 135 mile front from the foothills of the Pyrenees to Castellon province the invaders advanced.

Squadrons of bombing planes blasted the way for them through the government's hastily dug defenses.

East of Lerida, behind the front lines, a central army of defenders was being formed as Barcelona called all reinforcements that could be spared from other fronts and rushed them to Catalonia's aid.

Muster Army of 230,000.

While the bulk of the new strength was being added to the central force, some was designed to bolster the northern and southern wings. Barcelona sources estimated the reinforced defending army would have between 230,000 and 280,000 troops.

Rebel victories in the civil war have brought more than three-fourths of Spain' territory under the red and gold banners of Gen. Franco.

Besides the four provinces of Catalonia—Barcelona, Gerona, Lerida, and Tarragona—the government controls only eight of spain's forty-seven provinces.

Franco dominates thirty-three while two—Ciudad Real, with its valuable mercury mines, and Jaen—are considered middle ground, since forces of both sides still are operating there.

In addition to Catalonia the government controls the following provinces, each with a city of the same name:

Planes Machine Gun Troops.

WORKING ON THAT LIMB

'DEATH TO DICTATORS' IS TOAST AT LONDON JEWISH AID DINNER

LONDON, March 28.—(AP)—Oliver Locker-Lampson, Conservative member of parliament, raised his glass tonight at a dinner for the Palestine aid fund and said:

"I give the toast, although I should have to drink it myself, of death to dictators and long life to all liberators."

Rounds of applause greeted him as all joined the toast.

"I think the late government and our last two prime ministers ought to have faced up to those blackguards and bullies in Europe," Lampson elaborated. "Then we should never have had those military monsters Mussolini and Hitler at all."

20 NUDE WOMEN GET INTO A FIGHT IN A BATHHOUSE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, March 28.—A public bathhouse was thrown into an uproar last night while twenty nude women and girls scampered about the slippery floor in an effort to stop a fight between the wives of a baker and a confectioner.

The mêlée began when Toyo Skikanio, wife of the baker of American style bread, poured hot water over the shoulders of Hana Hikota, wife of a Japanese style confectioner. Toyo said it was accidental, but Hana said the water was spilled on purpose because their husbands are bitter business rivals.

After a hot argument the confectioner's wife grabbed a wooden tub. The baker's wife attempted to hurl another tub at her opponent, but slipped on a piece of soap. Some one struck the confectioner's wife in the face and the fight spread. The manager rushed in to restore order, but the women pushed him into a tub. Nude mediators finally restored peace.

Here's One Fellow Who's Glad Because Bees Sting

Green Bay, Wis., March 28.—[Special.]—Joe Kustka is glad bees are wild. If they were tame he would have been liable to five years in the penitentiary on a grand larceny charge for stealing a hive of them. But the law says it's no felony to steal wild animals. So his only punishment today was a small fine for stealing the hive, not the bees.

Mobilize Law to Quell C. I. O. Lumber Riots

Laona, Wis., March 28.—[Special.]—Sherif Jesse Ramsdell mobilized his forces tonight in readiness to quell threatened gang fighting between lumberjacks tomorrow when C. I. O. workers plan to make a second effort to keep their American Federation of Labor rivals from going to work in a big lumber mill here.

Arrow points to Laona, scene of fighting.

Street fighting broke out today as the C. I. O. men vainly attempted to hold a picket line against some 225 members of the A. F. of L. union determined to reach their jobs. Smarting from their defeat, the John L. Lewis supporters boasted they would bring 200 lumberjacks here from outside cities to help them tomorrow.

C. I. O. Reverses Its Policy.

In contrast to the usual strike policy of the Committee for Industrial Organization in its numerous other labor disturbances, the group here is demanding an open shop at the Connor Lumber and Land company plant. The mill is one of the largest in Wisconsin, employing between 600 and 700 workers when all departments are operating.

The reason for this contradiction is that the C. I. O. was defeated in an election a month ago when a majority of the employés chose the A. F. of L. as their bargaining agent. Following the election, the company signed a contract for a closed shop.

Inauguration of the new agreement this morning provided the spark that exploded into open violence the seething hostility between the rival labor groups. More than 100 C. I. O. workers established a picket line around the mill and warned the A. F. of L. members not to attempt to enter.

Sherif Warned of Trouble.

Warned of the impending trouble, Sherif Ramsdell hurried here from Crandon, the seat of Forest county. Under his single handed guardianship, the A. F. of L. men moved toward the picket line.

As they reached the line, the pickets attacked and half a dozen fist fights began. But the sherif dashed from one group of combatants to another and stopped them. While the fighting was in progress the other workers were passing into the mill and soon all were inside.

Sherif Ramsdell sent deputies out tonight to round up five C. I. O. men who took part in the fighting and allegedly were the ringleaders in causing the disturbance.

Pierce C. I. O. Picket Lines.

After their picket lines had been pierced, the C. I. O. agitators rallied their forces and made plans to offer more resistance tomorrow. The sheriff said he was told they were talking of recruiting lumberjacks in other communities, especially in Oconto or Green Bay, and giving their enemies a real fight.

Sherif Ramsdell said he would deputize as many citizens as he needs to maintain order and will use tear gas if necessary to prevent rioting.

"The main basis for the trouble is the A. F. of L. victory in the election," the sherif said. "The federation men are entirely within their rights in going to work and the law will support them. If the C. I. O. men had won, they would be as determined to maintain a closed shop as they now are desirous of an open one."

Results of Oak Park's Dog Roundup: Men, 1; Dogs, 0

The annual roundup of stray dogs started yesterday in Oak Park. The net result of the day was the arrest of one milk truck driver and no dogs. It came about when Walter Mienke of 844 Harvard street saw a bunch of dogs that had been corraled in an alley by the catchers. He shooed them all away out of harm's reach. He was freed on $10 bond on a disorderly conduct charge.

AUSTRIANS CLAMOR FOR VISAS TO U. S.; 3,500 APPLY IN DAY

VIENNA, March 28.—(AP)—Visa applications to the United States reached a new high today when an estimated 3,500 Austrians, chiefly Jews, crowded the corridors of the American legation. The average since the Nazification of Austria previously had been from 1,000 to 1,500 daily. The huge increase was believed to be due to Saturday's speech of Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering in which the No. 2 Nazi leader declared "Jews must go."

Widow Gives Details; New Threats Bared

Mrs. Edward Shuler told in detail last night the nine months of telephone terrorism that drove her and her husband from one refuge to another until his enemies finally shot him to death and left his body in front of 2222 Ohio street last Friday morning. It was the first time the widow, Madelyn, has spoken out since Friday afternoon when she testified briefly at the inquest into Shuler's death. Fearful of further terrorism, she had remained in seclusion until last evening.

Mrs. Shuler said it was her husband's activities in the affairs of the Local 399 of the International Union of Operating Engineers that brought the terrorists' wrath down upon him.

The terrorism did not cease with his death. Even while she was preparing for his funeral today her husband's brother, Russell, received another of the mysterious telephone calls in the home of friends at 8930 Union avenue. He vowed to track down the killers and appealed for police protection against them.

Ex-Convict Questioned.

Meanwhile police questioned Lee Phillips, ex-convict and former sawed-off shotgun bandit, whom the union provided with a job when he was paroled from Joliet penitentiary. Phillips was surrendered earlier in the day by his attorney, George M. Crane, who promptly began habeas corpus proceedings for his release.

Anton J. Imhahn, international vice president of the union, announced last night that local 399 would pay a reward of $5,000 for information leading to the conviction of the killers. Imhahn said the murder had no connection with union affairs and that union officials were anxious to solve the mystery.

Story of Mrs. Shuler.

Mrs. Shuler, a quiet, cultured woman of 32, told her story at her husband's wake, in the funeral chapel at 216 East 115th street. Her husband, she said, was a former student of the University of Chicago who sought to take an active part in the management of the union, whose members operate heating plants in large buildings.

It was after the union election of last June, she said, that the terrorism began. Her husband supported Andrew Leach, unsuccessful candidate against Richard Wren, who has for a number of years headed the union.

"The first calls," she said, "were silly ones. I thought little of them, although they were very annoying. They were always from men who wouldn't give their names.

Afraid of Every One.

"They'd call when Edward was at work at the Barclay hotel, and ask if they could locate him there. We had so many men calling that I was afraid of every one. Finally we had our telephone number left out of the book.

"The voices were always mysteri-

SENATE VOTES VAST POWERS TO PRESIDENT

Measure Still Faces Hostile House.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 28.—[Special.]—The bill to give the President vast powers to reorganize the government structure squeezed through the senate today by a vote of 49 to 42. Action came despite last minute warnings from a bipartisan opposition that the measure paved the way for a dictatorship in the United States.

By the even closer vote of 48 to 43 the senate defeated a motion to send the bill back to committee, where it concededly would have died a natural death.

This motion to recommit, offered by Senator David I. Walsh [D., Mass.], garnered 27 Democratic, 14 Republican, and 2 Farmer-Labor votes. In opposition were 46 Democrats and the 2 radical senators, George W. Norris of Nebraska and Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin.

Short Filibuster Prevents Coup.

Both Illinois senators were against the motion and in favor of the bill, although the senior senator, James Hamilton Lewis, was prevented from casting a record vote because he had a pair with an absent senator. Senator William H. Dieterich's vote was recorded for the bill.

Immediately after the vote was announced there ensued some spirited parliamentary maneuvering as a result of the administration leaders' desire to prevent the house from considering the bill except in a conference where the house would be represented only by a few hand picked members. This was possible because the house had passed several bills piecemeal on the reorganization program.

Opponents of the bill were not caught sleeping and Senator Edward R. Burke [D., Neb.] started a filibuster which, it was announced, would last twenty days, if necessary. The filibuster was one of the shortest successful ones on record, the administration leaders giving up their efforts after thirty minutes.

May Be Killed in House.

As a result the complex bill goes to the house where there are large groups hostile to various of its provisions. There was much speculation tonight whether the measure would ever be brought up in that body and whether it would pass, if brought up, without wholesale eliminations.

Chairman John J. O'Connor [Dem., N. Y.] of the powerful house rules committee recommended tonight that the house committee on reorganization should refuse to act on the bill.

"It is my considered personal opinion that the committee might well let the bill peacefully slumber in some cob-webbed pigeon hole," he declared. "This is no time to further inflame our people by such a legislative gesture.

"It may well be that our governmental set-up needs overhauling. And it may also well be that such a job can best be done by the executive, but in these days of vast unemployment and business in hysterics, it is no time to push this legislation, which has so aroused the people, as a further intrusion of the executive branch on the prerogatives of the legislative body.

No Help to Business.

"Right or wrong, the bill would lend nothing toward the problem of solving unemployment—it might tend in the opposite direction—and surely it has no relation whatsoever to reassuring a much abused business world.

"Our people are in no frame of mind at the present moment for the reception of this procedural gesture. After the unemployment situation is solved and business is reassured, there will be plenty of time for this house cleaning. Get the fire out and then clean house.

"Psychologically, the bill should be permitted to rest in peace."

The house started last year to enact the President's program. It aimed to appease Mr. Roosevelt personally by first approving the addition of six $10,000 a year men to the White House secretariat. Then it passed the provision creating a new executive department, to be known as the department of welfare.

Other proposals, however, such as the one abolishing the controler general, have been hanging fire in the

Gives President Great Power.

The bill authorizes the President, by executive order, to transfer, regroup, coördinate, consolidate, segregate the whole or any part of or abolish any of the 135 bureaus, agencies, and divisions of government.

Excepted from this section, however, are the federal reserve board, the corps of engineers of the United States army and the independent, quasi-judicial and regulatory establishments, such as the board of tax appeals, the communications commission, the federal trade commission, the interstate commerce commission, and the national labor relations board.

The President's reorganization orders must be submitted to congress and lie over for 60 days before becoming effective. Congress could reject any of them by a joint resolution, but it would require a two-thirds vote to override a presidential veto.

Abolishes Civil Service Board.

The bill abolishes the independent, bipartisan three man civil service commission and creates a civil service administrator, to be appointed for a 15 year term, and a seven man civil service advisory board, whose members would serve seven year terms. The bill also authorizes the President to cover in to the classified civil service all government employés whose appointments do not require confirmation by the senate.

There are some 349,500 government employés appointed under the spoils system during the Roosevelt administration and the bill would permit freezing their jobs with civil service protection.

The bill abolishes the general accounting office, headed by the controler general of the United States, and divides its functions between the politically responsible director of the budget and a new auditor general, responsible to congress but with powers limited to post-auditing after the money had been spent.

The functions of the controler, that is, determining whether expenditures are made according to law, would be exercised by the budget director, while the auditor general would make annual reports to congress setting forth the manner in which appropriations were disbursed.

Committee on Public Accounts.

The bill creates a joint committee on public accounts, to consist of 12 senators and 12 representatives [12 Democrats and 12 Republicans] which would appoint the auditor general and an assistant auditor general. The auditor general and assistant auditor general would hold office for 15 years and be ineligible for reappointment.

The bill creates a new executive department, to be known as the department of welfare. To it would be assigned some 25 bureaus and divisions whose activities relate to relief, public health, education and related subjects. The social security board probably will be placed in this department, and the new cabinet officer probably would be Harry L. Hopkins, Works Progress administrator.

Six Assistants to President.

The bill authorizes six $10,000 a year assistants to the President, in addition to his three $10,000 a year secretaries. The report of the President's reorganization committee, headed by Louis Brownlow, recommended that these assistants be persons of great physical vigor with a passion for anonymity.

Proponents of the bill conceded that the proposed reorganization would effect no substantial economies. The senate refused to adopt an amendment containing a declaration policy favoring a reduction of 10 per cent in the cost of government, now about 8 billion dollars a year.

Tries to Avoid House Test.

To avoid any critical discussion on the floor of the house and to confine deliberations to a closed conference between the house and senate, Senator James F. Byrnes [D., S. C.] had attempted to take up the house bill, providing for the department of welfare, and substitute for it the entire senate bill, retaining merely the house title and number.

This would have had the effect of sending the reorganization measure to conference. Conferees in such cases are appointed by the Vice President and the speaker and work out compromises in secret sessions. The house would have been given an opportunity to vote on the conference report but debate would have been extremely limited and there would have been no chance to submit or vote on amendments.

Byrnes' maneuver might have been successful except for the prompt intervention of Senator Bennett C. Clark [D., Mo.], who made a point of order against the move. Vice President Garner ruled with Clark. After the senate bill had then been voted on and passed, Byrnes again moved to take up the house bill.

Burke Starts Filibuster.

Here was where the short but highly successful filibuster started. Senator Burke said he was prepared to talk at length on the motion. After the Nebraskan had spoken for half an hour, Byrnes yielded and withdrew his motion.

"The purpose of this motion is obvious to every one," Burke declared. "It is intended to prevent this bill being considered on the floor of the house. It has no justification whatever except to prevent further debate on a bill which has passed here by only a few votes. It is an open insult to the other branch."

There was still another parliamentary gesture to be gone through before the bill could be saved for open consideration in the house. This was a motion to lay on the table a motion to reconsider the vote on passage and this was carried without a record vote. The bill was returned to the regular channels which will carry it to the other branch of congress.

Spectacular Closing Debate.

Before all this involved maneuvering, which had the jammed galleries bewildered, there was some spectacular closing debate. Because the senate had agreed to vote on the motion to recommit by 3 p. m. the speeches were short, pungent, and to the point.

Senator Millard F. Tydings [D., Md.], opened the discussion by asserting that passage of the bill would increase the fear in this country of the creation of a dictatorship.

"Whether or not you believe that the President desires to become a dictator, you must admit that there is a very real fear among the people about it," he declared. "The technique followed in this measure is the same as that employed by those countries where dictatorships have been set up.

"If there is one thing that should be driven from the American scene, it is that fear. Again I say that whether or not the President entertains dictatorship ambitions, is not the point.

"What harm can there be in letting the people's representatives in congress have the say as to whether departments should be altered and abolished? Have we become so useless that we may no longer legislate?

"We read of Russian trials where men are shot because of their beliefs. We read of mass suicides in Austria. And the fear is here that such things may come to pass in this country if we continue to give the chief executive greater and greater powers."

Then, for the next half hour, the voices of two veteran opponents of constitution-tampering roared in the senate to the thrilled interest of the galleries. They were Senators William E. Borah [R., Idaho], and Hiram Johnson [R., Cal.].

"We are delegating in this bill more power to the President than we are permitted to give him under the constitution," argued Borah. "You can not give the power to destroy an agency without consulting first the congress which created it."

Borah quoted from an opinion by Supreme Court Justice Benjamin Cardoza, one of the radical members of the court, to the effect that the system of American government was created "not to promote efficiency, but to curb the exercise of arbitrary power" by any one of the three branches.

Inroad on Government System.

"Neither President Roosevelt nor any other President has the right to come here and ask for the exercise of power which is not granted him under the constitution," he declared. "This bill is another inroad upon the three-branch system of government."

"Last year," said Senator Johnson, "we had the court packing bill to give the President power over the Supreme court and the reorganization bill giving him many of the powers of congress. Although defeated on the court bill, the President, through the processes of time and nature, has gained his objective of control over the court.

"This present bill gives him plenary powers to do all that congress should do. The incident of the past week, the discharge of Dr. Morgan of the TVA, gives an illustration of what the President dares to do without the specific right to do so and merely upon the opinion of a complacent attorney general.

Cites Morgan Affair.

"If any man is so naive as to believe that the President will not seize all and more than the powers granted him in this bill, let him consider the Morgan incident."

Proponents of the bill closed with emotional pleas to defeat the motion to recommit. With a sob in his voice, Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley [D., Ky.] recalled that the former chairman of the reorganization committee was the late majority leader, Joe Robinson.

"Do not repudiate the memory of our beloved Joe Robinson," he pleaded.

Both Barkley and Byrnes threatened to resign from the reorganization committee if the bill was defeated.

Dictator Bill Foes

Senator Burke (D., Neb.) (left) started a filibuster against attempts of Roosevelt leaders to send the government reorganization bill to a committee instead of to the house. Senator Walsh (D., Mass.) (right) had attempted to send the measure back to committee.

Senator Clark (D., Mo.) (left) made a point of order against Byrnes' move and was upheld by Vice President Garner. Senator Tydings (D., Md.) (right) asserted passage of the bill would increase fear of a dictatorship in this country.

How Bill Applies

There are now 889,000 federal employes, of which 540,000 are under civil service and 349,500 political appointees of the Roosevelt administration. Under the reorganization bill passed by the senate yesterday the President would be authorized to reclassify the latter under civil service, thus making their jobs permanent.

FIRST ICEBERG IN ATLANTIC IS SIGN OF SPRING

Washington, D. C., March 28.—[Special.]—Heralding the arrival of spring as sure as the first robin, the season's first big iceberg today was reported floating toward the North Atlantic steamer lanes. The huge island of ice was sighted off the Grand banks by the coast guard cutter Tahoe.

The cutter is one of the ships used by the coast guard service to patrol the ocean lanes in the ice region during the danger period from March 1 to July 1. The ships hunt the "white specters," perennial dread of trans-Atlantic navigators, and report positions daily.

The patrol was organized systematically in 1913, the year after the Titanic, new British liner, was sunk with a loss of more than 1,500 lives after colliding with an iceberg. The major shipping countries of the world help to finance this surveillance. Not a ship has been lost in the policed lanes through collision with an iceberg since the patrol was inaugurated.

2 CHILDREN DIE, 10 PERSONS HURT IN ARKANSAS STORM

Texarkana, Ark., March 28.—(AP)—At least two persons were killed and ten injured tonight when a tornado struck a farming community four miles northeast of here.

The twister roared in from the northwest shortly after 7 p. m., accompanied by heavy rain and electrical display. It cleared a half mile path some 200 feet wide. A hurried survey showed four homes demolished and power and telephone lines leveled.

Both victims were children. They were Billy Ray Davis, 2 years old, son of Mrs. Vemia Davis, and Charles Barnett, 4 years old.

The storm hampered highway trafic and stalled many automobiles. Leonard Jackson of Waterloo, Ark., was injured when his truck was blown off the road and overturned.

ROOSEVELT SIGNS SIX BILLS; STUDIES MEXICAN AFFAIRS

Warm Springs, Ga., March 28.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt spent the fifth day of his vacation here today clearing his desk of routine matters while he followed international and domestic problems by long distance telephone.

During the day he signed six bills, among them the treasury and post-office appropriation bill which gives $617,196,299 to the former department and $792,770,899 to the latter. He received reports on Mexican reaction to American retaliation against seizure by the Cardenas government of oil properties held by foreign interests. By way of retaliation the United States has announced it will stop purchases of Mexican silver.

BAR ASSOCIATION RATES ASPIRANTS TO JUDGESHIPS

Jarecki and Prystalski Are Approved.

The Chicago Bar association last evening made public its report on the candidates for nomination as county judge and as associate judges of the municipal court at the April 12 primary. After weeks of interviewing and investigating the aspirants, the association's committee on candidates compiled its findings in a 21 page pamphlet.

Copies were mailed to 4,000 members of the bar association along with ballots on which the lawyers may register their choices in a straw vote. There are two candidates for county judge, both of them Democrats, and 44 candidates—23 Republicans and 21 Democrats—for the 12 available seats on the Municipal bench.

Oppose Three Sitting Judges.

Of the 11 sitting Municipal court judges who seek renomination, three were opposed and the rest approved in the bar report. In a pre-primary questionnaire the practicing lawyers in the city were asked to grade the judges on integrity, legal ability, judicial temperament, courtesy, diligence, and attentiveness. The replies, it was indicated, were influential in determining the committee report.

The two candidates for county judge were rated almost equals in ability and both were accorded approval. Of County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki, who has served since 1922, the association said:

"In 1934 the committee reported: 'In the administration of this highly important office for the last twelve years, he has demonstrated honesty, courage, and a desire to render public service of a high quality. He is qualified for the office.' In the recent questionnaire on sitting judges he grading was 83.4. He has demonstrated that he is well qualified for the office and that, as a county judge who has rendered satisfactory service during four terms, he deserves renomination."

Prystalski Also Approved.

The report on Judge John Prystalski follows:

"In 1930 he was elected a judge of the Superior court and for two and one-half years was assigned to the Criminal court. During one of these years he was chief justice of the Criminal court and administered the office with courage, fidelity, and efficiency. His public service of eight years in the state's attorney's office and his judicial service for the past eight years in the Circuit and Superior courts were and are highly commendable. He is well qualified for the office of county judge."

STANLEY C. ARMSTRONG [R.]—"He possesses essential qualities of honesty, patience, and fairmindedness . . . and his experience has been adequate. He is qualified."

HARRY M. BIEDKA [D.]—"Appears not to have had the breadth of experience to qualify him for the office."

N. J. BONELLI [D.]—"He should not be renominated."

EDWARD B. CASEY [R.]—"During seven years has demonstrated a fitness for judicial office. His grading in the questionnaire was 92.4, this being the highest grading given judges whose terms expire in 1938. He is well qualified and should be renominated."

WILLIAM F. COOPER [R.]—"Lacks requisite experience."

WILLIAM V. DALY [D.]—"Good reputation for industry, is courteous and even tempered. He is fairly qualified."

HARRY F. HAMLIN [R.]—"Demonstrated his fitness in six years of service from 1924 to 1930. He is qualified."

LYONS ATTACKS DICTATOR BILL BEFORE VOTERS

Calls for Illinois Protest in Primary.

BY PARKE BROWN.

In a three man contest to determine which one could arouse the most general interest, State Representative Richard J. Lyons, Republican candidate for United States senator, last night attracted chief attention with a smashing attack on the Roosevelt reorganization bill passed by the senate a few hours earlier.

The two senatorial candidates of the rival Democratic machines, District Attorney Michael L. Igoe and Congressman Scott W. Lucas, simultaneously were doing their part in opening the Cook county final fortnight of the campaign. Their speeches followed the lines laid down in their downstate appearances during the last month.

Governor Active on Platform.

Gov. Horner, who personally is leading the fight for Lucas, made as many speeches as did his principal candidate, and State's Attorney Courtney joined in. A dozen candidates for secondary state offices completed the chorus. The only voices lacking were those of National Committeeman P. A. Nash and Mayor Kelly, who hold that this is a primary for candidates and not for bosses.

Representative Lyons, in connection with his condemnation of the government reorganization bill, used the action of the senate as a new argument that voters, regardless of previous affiliations, should protest against the administration's move toward dictatorship by voting in the Republican primary two weeks from today. He contended that this is the only method of actually recording a protest in an unmistakable way.

Holds County Double-Crossed.

"I object most strenuously," he said, after telling of thousands of protesting telegrams poured into the capital, "to the procedure with which this bill has been handled in absolute defiance of the wishes of the country and without giving the people the opportunity to make their objections known.

"We cannot wait until next fall to call a halt on this kind of legislation. We must act at once and the only way we can make our protest known is to roll up a large vote in the Republican column on April 12. We must serve notice on the administration and its bureaucrats that the program they are now seeking to put through must be stopped."

Assails President's Position.

In discussing the bill itself, the speaker charged that instead of devoting his time and effort to the business and industrial crisis, President Roosevelt is "pushing through the most vicious piece of legislation in the history of the country."

"The reorganization bill," he continued, "is the very apex of New Dealism, turning over to the President the powers of absolute dictatorship. Yet the New Deal candidates here in Illinois, undaunted by the people's repudiation of the court packing scheme, are unhesitatingly pledging their support right now to all the New Deal legislation the President may present. One of them [Lucas] has even wired his readiness to go to Washington to vote yes if his vote [in the house of representatives] is needed.

Demands Ouster of Leaders.

"I say to you this is the most vicious piece of legislation in the history of our country. I say to you that any leaders, Democratic or Republican, who can so far forget their pledges to represent the people that they will vote for that bill should no be kept in office.

"I call upon you to protect your right of representation, and the only way we can do that is to let the President and his adherents know immediately that we are opposed to such legislation."

Other speakers were former State Senator William R. McCauley, candidate for state treasurer; Frederick A. Virkus, candidate for congressman-at-large, and George E. Lambur Jr., candidate for clerk of the State Supreme court.

The surprise among observers at the Democratic meetings was that Gov. Horner and State's Attorney Courtney apparently moderated the bitterness of their attacks on Nash and Kelly as heads of the regular Cook county organization. The meetings of this faction were held in the suburbs of Cicero, Berwyn, and Maywood.

"Kelly and Nash," said Gov. Horner, "are just two men who want power; but I'm not going to talk about them or our opponents because they are doing enough talking themselves. The more they talk the more confident I am that we'll win. I don't want our candidates elected over the carcasses of any of our opponents."

Sticks to Ballot Box Issue.

Although he spoke of the county organization as ruthless in its refusal to re-slate Judge Jarecki, Courtney stuck close to his favorite text that the ballot box is the issue in this campaign.

Congressman Lucas' attack on bossism also was abstract. He said that the only other issue in his part of the campaign is the question whether downstate is entitled to one of the two senators from Illinois. He predicted that the Horner ticket will come up to the Cook county line with a lead of 300,000 votes, a figure now used generally by speakers for this group.

The congressman also urged the renomination of Judge Jarecki and asserted that District Attorney Igoe's praise for Judge Jarecki's opponent, Circuit Judge John Prystalski, was given at the orders of the Nash-Kelly organization.

District Attorney Igoe took his afternoon utterance on the county judgeship and expanded on it in his evening speeches.

"Here, as everywhere else in Illinois," he said, "the opposition has been trying to becloud the real issue of this campaign with a smoke screen of charges and a barrage of untrue, unfair, and unfounded accusations against every one affiliated with the Democratic organization and leadership of the governor's own home county.

"Twice he, the governor, has been the chief beneficiary of the strength and whole-hearted support of this great political organization. The first time was in 1932, and the second time was in the election of 1936 when he could not have been reëlected without that support.

"His principal candidate in Cook county has been the beneficiary of support throughout the sixteen years he has been county judge. At this late date both the governor and his county judge are still talking about election frauds, about protecting the sanctity of the ballot, about safeguarding the ballot box against thievery and guaranteeing the great American institution of honest elections—all in the future.

Speaks for Prystalski.

"If, after sixteen years in office, they still decry their home city and warn it against ballot thieves—then the time has come for a change.

"I have known Judge John Prystalski for many years. I know the regard in which he is held by fellow lawyers and the judiciary. As a Circuit court judge he has had a distinguished record, as he had in the Criminal court when chief justice.

"All over the state of Illinois our friends on the other side have sought to make the local issue of who shall be county judge of Cook county paramount to everything else.

"Even support of Roosevelt has become secondary to the one question of continuing in office a man who has been a four-term failure by his own admission that he has not done the job he was elected to do."

Urges Turnout for G. O. P. Primary

CHARGE 150,000 FAKE VOTERS ON PRIMARY LISTS

Courtney Drive Is Called Boomerang by Foes.

Estimating that there are more than 150,000 fraudulent registrations on the election board's books and that from 5,000 to 7,000 of these are in the 1st ward, Eugene O'Connor, chief election investigator for the state's attorney's office, yesterday began a drive to clean up the registration lists before the primary of April 12.

Jack O'Connor.

O'Connor's statement brought a reply late in the day from Judge John Prystalski, regular Democratic candidate for County judge.

"The charge of fraudulent registration made by State's Attorney Courtney's office is an indictment of the County judge [Edmund K. Jarecki] he seeks to continue in office," said Prystalski. "The responsibility of eliminating vote frauds rests squarely upon him. I have repeatedly accused my opponent of encouraging illegal voting by wilfully evading his duty."

Parolee Admits Frauds.

O'Connor's announcement followed a two day investigation of Jack O'Connor, 31 years old, a paroled federal convict, who confessed that he is a member of an organization of fifty engaged in obtaining false registrations in the 1st ward. The group is employed by a 1st ward Democratic organization, the prisoner asserted.

In addition he took investigators on a tour of the ward, pointing out a number of vacant buildings from which many persons are registered as voters. Several addresses were found to be for railroad yards, vacant lots and abandoned houses of prostitution.

Parolee O'Connor, who is charged in three warants with registering under an assumed name, registering twice, and registering after having been convicted as a felon [for the sale of narcotics], was held in bonds of $15,000 by County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki for arraignment today. His attorney, Daniel Covelli, charged O'Connor had been slugged and beaten by state's attorney's police and that his confession had been obtained by force.

Asks for Five Warants.

Frank J. Christenson, special prosecutor for the election board, denied Covelli's charges and said he was ready to put O'Connor on trial at once. He also asked Judge Jarecki for five John Doe warants on which he said he expects to arrest five 1st ward Democrats on registration fraud charges.

On the tour of the ward yesterday, O'Connor took investigators to 215 East 18th street, where they said he had registered as Jack A. Meroney. At that address, thirty-one others were fraudulently registered, it was charged. The investigators visited a dozen other addresses, finding a total of 158 false registrations, they declared.

Deserted mansions, vacant lots, railroad yards, and several buildings which they stated had until recently been houses of prostitution, along with nonexistent addresses were on the afternoon itinerary.

In connection with the 1st ward investigations, O'Connor said his men had visited 10, 12, and 18 East Illinois street in the 42d ward and had found fourteen persons registered fraudulently.

Meanwhile, party workers began filing affidavits for the issuance of suspect notices yesterday. Approximately 250 were filed, chiefly in the 42d and 43d wards. Affidavits may be filed until 5 p. m. today and hearings will be held on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday.

Figures on registration by wards will be available Friday or Saturday, according to Alexander J. McKay, chairman of the election board.

George E. Lambur Jr. Courts Youthful Republican Voters

BY PERCY WOOD.

The first thing George E. Lambur Jr. will do if he is elected clerk of the Illinois Supreme court this year will be to take the picture of Franklin D. Roosevelt from the wall of the clerk's office in Springfield. Lambur is a member of the slate of Republican candidates indorsed by the state central committee and the county chairmen's association.

George E. Lambur Jr.

In answer to a call for new blood on their ticket, the Republican organizations have picked six candidates for their 1938 state slate who never before have run for state office. Lambur, big and youthful looking, is the baby of the lot, being only 32. He is one of the leaders of the Young Republican organizations and they sponsored him for the place.

Good Speaker, Good Greeter.

Although he is young and an inveterate ribber of his colleagues on the ticket—without being prankish about it—Lambur does not act like a juvenile. He speaks briefly but well and has a hearty way of meeting people which has been admired by some of the older hands at the business. Some of this ease in public contacts may have been gained from association with his father-in-law, James A. Kearns, former alderman, clerk of the Municipal court, and city treasurer.

While his elders on the ticket talk in collective terms to the voters, Lambur is going out after the younger members of the electorate, the first voters. They are the ones who are going to have to bear the tax burden, he is saying, and they ought to realize that the Roosevelt administration has failed to solve the problems of government.

He predicts, in a sober manner, that, as never before, voters of all ages will seek refuge in the Republican party this year. He believes, he says, that the principle of a two party government is a fine one, but that some sort of a check must be provided for the majority party. The Republicans will do that with a will, he promises, and this is the year to send them in. Lambur says this in about three minutes, with the suggestion of a frown on his face, which has the effect of emphasizing his sincerity.

Protégé of Robert C. Rohn.

Making his first try for public office, the young candidate is a protégé of Robert C. Rohn, 19th ward committeeman and secretary of the Cook county central committee. He was born in Chicago, but his father and mother came from the Quincy district. Lambur was educated in the Chicago schools and is engaged in the real estate and mortgage business, being president of the Fidelity Mortgage and Finance corporation.

He and his wife, Alice Kearns Lambur, live in Beverly Hills with their three children. Lambur is an ardent baseball fan and likes to join impromptu quartets, but his favorite hobby is gardening. He is slightly under 6 feet in height and has a football build.

ANY CABBAGE HEAD KNOWS THAT C NOTE WILL TAKE THE CAKE

In the future you mustn't raise your brows at people who refer to $100 bills as C notes, because C note is no longer slang. It has been included in the American English dictionary being compiled at the University of Chicago. Research in connection with the expression disclosed it has been popular in the United States since 1845. It is derived, of course, from the Roman numeral C—100.

Among other words and expressions that will be included in the dictionary are: in cahoots, meaning in league with; cabbage head, a stupid person; to take the cake, meaning to take the prize; cash in one's checks, to die; on the carpet, to undergo a scolding; to carry on, behave uproariously.

The dictionary, which is being compiled by Sir William Craigie, co-editor of the Oxford English dictionary, and James R. Hulbert, professor of English at the University of Chicago, will issue its fourth section this spring. The section will begin with butterfly and will end midway of the Cs.

10,000 WORKERS AT POLLS TODAY IN KANSAS CITY

Kansas City, Mo., March 28.—(AP)—A well drilled army of 10,000 precinct workers—largest in Kansas City's stormy political history—will go into action at sunup tomorrow to get out the 215,000 voters eligible to decide the immediate political future of Tom Pendergast.

The city election will determine if Pendergast's Democratic organization is to add four more years to its unbroken 12 year hold on the city hall and the outcome may show whether Pendergast is to remain the dominant factor in state politics.

The Pendergast organization, headed by Mayor Bryce B. Smith for reelection, will put 6,000 precinct workers in the field. The newborn Coalition party, led by Col. Fred E. Whitten, a lawyer seeking Smith's post, will have 4,000.

Paints "Co-operation" as Two Edged Sword.

mulas and the jargon of diplomacy that they have ceased to be conscious of the poignant realities with which they trifle.

"And thus will war continue to be made until the great masses who are the sport of professional schemers and dreamers say the word which shall bring—not eternal peace, for that is impossible—but a determination that wars shall be fought only in a just and righteous and vital cause."

Then followed the senator's most scathing reference to the Roosevelt administration and the internationalists who are promoting the policy of coöperation.

"Into this maelstrom, where a few men play with human lives as pawns, the dreamers, the sentimentalists, not to mention some other classes, would plunge the Untied States under the attractive banner of coöperation," said Mr. Borah.

Our Task Lies at Home.

We have all we possibly can do to put our own house in order, according to the great irreconcilable, without going afield to reform the world.

"Our supreme and imperative task," said Senator Borah, "is here at home—and it is a task which many fear we never can successfully meet.

"Whatever is necessary for the defense of this country and the life and liberty of our people no true American would withhold. And what we owe to other peoples in promoting the cause of peace, in fostering better understanding through trade and commerce and in friendly relations, we doubtless always will be ready to admit and to pay in full.

"But by venturing beyond that and permitting ourselves to be drawn into controversies and wars not our own, there is no depth of human misery which such a course may not entail and no calamity to our scheme of government which may not ensue."

Lauds Kennedy's Proposals.

Mr. Borah commended the recent statement of American policy by Joseph P. Kennedy, American ambassador to the court of St. James, who said that his country opposes entangling alliances, does not intend to attack any nation, and does not expect to be attacked, but if unable to remain on friendly terms with all nations, will decide when the time comes what to do to "preserve the welfare of its own citizens."

The senator asserted that "however abhorrent may be theories or practices maintained in other countries," presumably referring to Italy, Germany, Russia, and Japan, "the amelioration of such conditions does not lie in a departure from the sound foreign policy so well stated above and so long maintained by this government."

The senator then proceeded to arraign the Versailles treaty as the cause of the rise of totalitarian governments in Europe and the feverish rearming for war.

Blames Treaty for Arms Race.

"The Versailles treaty," he said, "is the mother of modern armaments. There has been no peace in Europe since it was written and it seems to be certain there will be no peace until its most unjust terms are ameliorated or rejected."

What has happened to Austria was foreordained by the Versailles treaty, said the senator, "and a thing which is not of the slightest moment to the government, as a government, of the United States. . . . If Hitler had remained a paperhanger in his native village, Austria and Germany nevertheless would have come together, as they undertook to do peacefully in 1931."

"It would not be necessary," he went on, "to recall these matters, plain indisputable facts of history, were it not for the exaggerated use which is being made of this incident to shame and denounce the American people for refusing to have a part in these unfortunate events.

"Let us consider another line of thought upon the part of those who would lead us as a nation into European affairs. Modern wars are mass wars, and the art of leading a people into war is the art of deceiving the masses.

Appeals Must Be Manufactured.

"You could hardly expect a people to be greatly moved over a distribution of territory unless it was their own territory. Some more searching appeal must be had. Naturally, therefore, there comes into the discussion the problem of democracy, of again saving democracy. We are plainly told that there should be an alliance, parallel or otherwise, between democracies that we may offer a solid front against dictators.

"It seems to be assumed there is, or will be shortly, a lineup of the nations—the totalitarian states upon the one side and the democracies on the other. And that these antagonistic forces will sometime or other settle their differences in some great naval battle like Actium or Trafalgar. If we are to judge the future by the past, or if we are to consider the forces which move nations, all this seems impracticable and unworkable.

"When have nations drawn apart or held together by reason of different, or the same, views or philosophies as to forms of government or political theories? A nation acts, indeed must act, under the iron law of self-interest, a thing seldom determined by forms of government.

"Paraphrasing the words of Lord Roseberry, the instinct of self-interest guides the European powers with the same certainty as the weather moves the sheep on the hill.

"We went into the world war to make the world safe for democracy and we made it a breeding camp for dictators. And, like Mark Antony over the body of the bleeding Caesar, we quickly seized the bloody hands of those who had assassinated liberty."

Only 7 years ago, the senator recalled, we were given a poignant example of this all compelling motive of self interest. The British government, for reasons of self interest, refused to support the Hoover administration's effort to prevent Japan from seizing Manchuria.

Must Solve Domestic Problems.

The great pressing problems of our democracy are to be found at home, not overseas, Senator Borah asserted. Unless we solve the domestic problems by which we are confronted we shall be in greater danger of being overwhelmed by Fascism or communism at home than of being conquered by Fascism or communism emanating from Europe.

"After we have provided adequate defense for our nation, as we shall do, the problems of democracy remain," said the senator. "Democracies are bleeding inwardly. The healing is not to be found in armaments, but in bringing contentment, happiness, and prosperity to the harried, confused, and discouraged citizen.

"I care not what flag floats over a people, what their traditions as to liberty may be, how well their institutions of government express the aspirations and hopes of a people, crushing taxes and hunger and disease and broken families in time will undermine and destroy all these things.

"These are the things which make for communism and Fascism and which today wage war against every democracy in the world. This is the problem of democracy.

Must Remedy Waste.

"If democracy cannot find a cure for the disease of waste, for the things which undermine and discourage the citizen and dissipate his energies, it is useless to talk of combinations or alliances, or of preparedness, because the remedy of these things constitute the true basis of all preparedness."

The senator yields to none in his abhorrence of the doctrins of the European dictatorships, but he disagrees with the internationalists on the methods of combating the menace.

"Enemies of liberty, enemies of religion, enemies of the family, the communists' and Fascists' doctrins would sweep away the very foundation stones of Christian civilization," he continued. "They constitute the severest trial which the lust for power and the frenzy of crime have inflicted upon the human family.

"What day passes but records some shocking decree against liberty, against race or religion, some assassination at the instance of government, some purge to quiet the cowardly fears of those in power? Such a system is itself a declaration of war against democracy.

Defense Is in the People.

"I do not minimize what all this means to the people of this country and all that they cherish, but I do contend most earnestly that the first line of defense against such enemies is the clear mind, the sturdy character, and the loyal heart of the citizen.

"I know of no course we, as a people, could pursue more definitly calculated to establish a totalitarian government in this country than by permitting ourselves to be involved in foreign wars. Let us consider for a moment what it would mean if we were called upon to wage war in some foreign affair.

"To start with, we would have a national debt of forty billion dollars, taxes already so heavy and burdensome that they are discouraging and demoralizing all lines of industry, a heavy deficit, thirteen million unemployed, practically one-third of our population poorly clothed and poorly fed.

"The government would call for and receive authority for the exercise of the most arbitrary power. If you doubt that, turn with me and consider a bill now pending in the congress and which already has received the approval of a committee of the congress. It is called the war profits bill—it ought to be called a bill to cut the jugular vein of this republic.

"It transfers to one man practically all conceivable governmental powers.

All Rights Infringed.

"The business man, the producer, the laborer, the civilian, and all walks of life would be regimented and every right of the citizen, as those rights have been known and enjoyed, would be subject to the arbitrary power of one man. If the bill were enacted into law, we would have as complete a totalitarian state in many respects as they have in Germany and Italy.

"War always is the eternal enemy of democracy, the friend of communism and the father of Fascism.

"Yet those who would drag us into all foreign controversies are the friends of just such measures as above referred to. Those who talk so glibly about our duty to crush Naziism in Europe, if they should have their way, would plant the brutal thing in the very heart of the American republic."

Loyalists Struggle to Build New Defenses

Spanish loyalists yesterday were reported to be throwing up new defenses behind Lerida and assembling an army of 230,000 men to halt the rebel sweep into Catalonia. On the central front the rebels made their greatest gains after capturing Barbastro and Fraga. On the southern flank the rebels gradually were narrowing the neck of land connecting Catalonia with the rest of loyalist Spain.

the same as those employed in the campaign against the northern port of Bilbao.

Trenches and fortifications in the rebel path have been smashed with bombs and shells; airplanes then machine-gunned the defenders; finally infantry occupied the enemy's positions.

The tactics were designed to cut losses of rebel man power to the minimum, but they depended upon control of the air to be successful.

In the current offensive rebel officers at Irun said Franco won air control in a series of battles at the very beginning.

Madrid to Continue Fight.

MADRID, March 28.—(AP)—Outwardly calm in the face of the grave threat of isolation from Catalonia, Madrid carries on with plans for continued resistance to the rebels no matter what happens on the front in northeastern Spain.

Despite the undercurrent of expectancy and nervousness caused by the unexpected power of the rebel drive, which has penetrated Catalonia, there is no apparent alarm here.

All responsible civil and military officials continue in residence busy with plans for staying in the war even if cut off from Barcelona.

LEVINE MAKES NEW APPEAL TO SON'S KIDNAPERS

New York, March 28.—[Special.]—Murray Levine, New York lawyer whose kidnaped son Peter, 12 years old, has been missing 32 days, broadcast a new appeal to the kidnapers today in which he said he was sorry police and intermediaries had bungled ransom negotiations and begged for another chance. He asked the kidnapers to get in touch with him at his Manhattan office or at his New Rochelle home, day or night, without fear of police interference.

Mr. Levine implied it was the unwitting bungling of police, telephone operators and go-between that balked early contacts.

He referred to the original ransom message delivered to his wife by phone Feb. 24; a second missive to Rabbi Abraham Nowack Feb. 28; and a third communication March 1 to an undisclosed minister, that was intercepted by a telephone operator.

ADMITS SLAYING HIGH SCHOOL BOY IN JEALOUS RAGE

Shell Lake, Wis., March 28.—(AP)—Sherif Robert H. Willis said tonight he had recommended a second degree murder warant against Everett C. Phinn, who he disclosed earlier in the day had confessed fatally shooting a 17 year old Spooner High school boy in a "fit of jealous rage."

Willis said he was convinced Phinn, 52 year old woodsman, had acted without premeditation in the shooting March 21 at Spooner of Raymond Washkuhn. The sherif added Phinn confessed voluntarily in writing before two witnesses today.

The sherif said he believed Phinn was jealous of Washkuhn as a possible rival for the affections of 45 year old Mrs. Phoebe Whaley, with whom the boy boarded, and with whom Phinn was friendly. Both Phinn and Mrs. Whaley awaited trial on charges of adultery.

X-RAY REVEALS BANDIT BULLETS OF 50 YEARS AGO

Harvey Coleman, 72 years old, who was removed because of illness from his room at 6158 Kenwood avenue to the County hospital, told physicians that the scar on his right side was left by an appendix operation. But last night the physicians showed him an X-ray photograph which revealed two lead bullets embedded near the abdomen. Then he admitted the operation story was a myth and that he had not told the real story because it was his own personal business. "The real story is," he said, "that I was shot by robbers in a train robbery when I was a conductor fifty years ago."

Italians Shudder at Having Hitler as Next Door Neighbor

BY SAM BREWER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, March 28.—Despite all official statements of approval, Italy's real reaction to Adolf Hitler's conquest of Austria is keen fear in both Fascist and Vatican circles.

The Fascists do not like such an aggressive neighbor as Nazi Germany on Italy's doorstep even if that neighbor is an ally for the time being.

The Vatican, despite the Austrian cardinal's pledge of loyalty to Hitler, is shuddering at the thought of what may happen to Austria's 6,000,000 Catholics when the Nazis can spare time from the Jewish problem.

Need Germany's Support.

None of this fear, however, means that there is any danger of Italy cutting loose from the Rome-Berlin axis. The Fascists are too well aware that they need the support and coöperation of Germany. They do not like sitting on the rear seat of a tandem, but they feel it is better than walking alone when there are so many potential enemies around.

The average Italian does not like the Germans and their "overbearing ways." Despite Fascist discipline and censorship, it has been possible to pick up many bits of evidence in personal contacts to show that.

The keenest fear is among the industrialists of northern Italy. The people there realize there is an ambitious and expanding country just across the Brenner pass which sooner or later may turn its attention to parts of their territory—such as the Tyrol with its German inhabitants.

German Catholic circles are reported to feel that the union of Germany and Austria means a better deal for them from the Nazis. In Rome, an opposite view prevails—that Austrian Catholics are in for the same rough handling from the Nazi pagan faction that their German brethren have been getting.

The Vatican has been keeping quiet about its apprehensions—except for occasional assurances that it had none. But various statements, including announcement of approval of Austria's annexation by Cardinal Theodore Innitzer, archbishop of Vienna, are taken as efforts to placate the Nazis as much as possible.

Worry about whether Hitler will ask for an audience with Pope Pius XI. when he visits Italy in May already have been reported. But that is chiefly a question of prestige.

Hope Nazis Will Go Easy.

One view taken in Rome is that the Nazis, knowing the devoutness of Austrian Catholics, may make concessions to them in order not to offend Catholics of the world.

The majority opinion, however, is that the opposite is true—that the youths who form the main strength of the Austrian Nazis are more closely bound to Naziism than to Catholicism and that the Austrian Catholics probably will have just as bad a time in the hands of the Nazis as the German church has had for a long time past.

TOWNS BOMBED "OF NECESSITY," FRANCO REPLIES

LONDON, March 28.—(AP)—Gen. Francisco Franco, leader of the Spanish rebels, replied today to a British note of appeal that he intended to bomb cities and towns only when military necessity "leaves no alternative."

Britain and France on March 21 sent notes to Franco and to the Spanish government urging cessation of air bombardments of civilian centers. This was after the bombings of Barcelona in which more than 800 persons were killed.

Franco's reply, while saying the rebels would "continue to restrict" aerial bombardments, declared Barcelona, the government capital, was an important military objective because of the numerous factories and military stores within the city. He expressed sorrow over the loss of innocent lives.

Seven Foreigners Desert Loyalists; Found on Ship

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

MARSEILLES, France, March 28.—Seven deserters from the Spanish loyalist international brigade are being held here aboard the British steamer Becheville, it was learned today. The captain told the authorities he had discovered the stowaways after leaving Barcelona. The men will be repatriated to their native countries.

WIFE TESTIFIES AT HUSBAND'S MURDER TRIAL

Mrs. Maria D'Andrea yesterday testified for the state in the trial of her husband, Soccorso D'Andrea, 43 year old, on a charge of murder. A new state law allows a husband or wife to testify in a criminal case under certain limitations.

D'Andrea was surrendered to the Milwaukee, Wis., police last Dec. 14, on a charge of killing his brother-in-law, Vincenzo Alleruzo, fourteen years earlier. His wife, from whom he was separated, is credited with turning him over to the police.

Mrs. D'Andrea testified yesterday in Judge Rudolph Desort's criminal court that her husband shot Alleruzo in his home, 3251 South Wells street. At the time of the slaying Alleruzo's wife, Ida, took the blame for the shooting, and was exonerated by a coroner's jury.

London Plans Trenches in Parks as Air Raid Refuges

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, March 28.—The British government is planning to provide trenches in London's quiet parks and squares as refuges from air raids, it was learned from an authoritative scurce tonight. The trenches will be constructed immediately upon the outbreak of war and householders will be asked to dig their own shelters adjoining their homes wherever possible. The government is opposed to the evacuation of population from cities to the country. The aim of the authorities is to avert a panic.

'HANDS OFF SPAIN' GROUP CALLED TO MEET THURSDAY

LONDON, March 28.—(AP)—The long inactive nonintervention subcommittee on the Spanish civil war today was summoned to meet March 31, indicating the possibility of decisive steps to get foreign "volunteer" troops out of Spain.

[The withdrawal of Italian troops from the rebel armies has been under discussion between Britain and Italy at Rome and an agreement has been reported near.]

The body summoned is the chairman's subcommittee of the twenty-seven nation nonintervention committee. It is to consider a British plan for withdrawal of foreign troops, reestablishment of controls around Spain, and granting of belligerent rights to both Spanish factions.

HITLER DECLARES HE WILL RESCUE ABUSED GERMANS

Fuehrer Flays 'Hypocrisy of Democracies.'

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, March 28.—"I will not look on eternally while Germans are being abused along our borders," Reichsfuehrer Hitler cried tonight at a monster Nazi demonstration in the Sports palace.

He called upon the "whole German people as far as they are united within the German borders," to demonstrate their unity at the plebisite on Sunday, April 10, when Pan-Germany will vote on Hitler's annexation of Austria and elect a new reichstag.

Thus, Hitler disclosed that his conquest of Austria is only his first step toward a "correction of the wrongs inflicted on the Germans by peace treaties." A few minutes after the Fuehrer had finished his speech Storm Troopers marched through the streets singing "Today Germany is ours, tomorrow the whole world will belong to us."

Attacks Democracies.

Hitler poured bitter sarcasm on the world war allies and the nations, which, he said, "destroyed the states of Europe under the slogan, 'Freedom for Nations,' and threw 10 million Germans into darkest subjection." His voice rose to a high pitch of indignation as he denounced the "hypocrisy of democracies."

"Under the influence of Woodrow Wilson's plan for the right of self-determination for nations 10 million persons lost their country," the Fuehrer said. "But the powerful voice of blood rose within them and they demanded to return to their greater home."

Hitler branded Kurt Schuschnigg, Austria's fallen chancellor, as a traitor.

"More Nazis were murdered in small Austria than in big Germany," he said, referring to the Nazis' struggle for power in Austria. "Even an honest bullet was refused victims of Austrain justice. Sixteen Germans who had done nothing but believe in their fatherland were hanged like street bandits. Four hundred were murdered, more than 2,000 were shot, 4,000 were imprisoned, and 10,000 were driven to flight. Women and children were being persecuted and the world speaks of democracy.

Says Germany Is Rising.

"Germany is rising. She is becoming greater, prouder, more self-assured, and the eyes of those separated from the fatherland turn toward her. These people press around the loud speakers to hear what is happening in Germany.

"It is comprehensible that their hatred against oppressors grew and that Germany cannot be a spectator while Germans are being tortured on its borders. I have warned that Germany in the long run cannot and will not continue to be a witness to this oppression of her racial compatriots."

Hitler's audience was uncertain whether his warnings referred to the past in Austria or were directed against Czechoslovakia and other countries with German minorities.

Calls Conquest a Miracle.

He described his conquest of Austria as a miracle.

"In three days a nation rises, in two days a régime breaks down, and on the third day the nation greets its liberator," he said, referring to his triumphant visit to his native land.

Hitler rode in triumph from the chancellery to the Sports palace. Storm Troops and Schutz Staffel men stood guard along the route. The Storm Troopers distributed small swastika flags to the crowds. Windows in houses were decorated with lighted red candles.

NINE DIE IN NEW ARAB OUTBREAK IN HOLY LAND

JERUSALEM, March 28.—(AP)—Nine persons were dead and three missing tonight in a new outbreak of terrorism in the Holy Land.

Four Jews, including two women and an 8 year old boy, were killed when an Arab band ambushed their taxi on the Acre-Safad road near Acre. The driver and two other passengers were missing, believed kidnaped or slain. Police later killed three members of the attacking band.

Richard and Werner Kraube, German theological students and brothers, were found shot dead near the British war cemetery today.

France Bases More Planes Near Frontier of Spain

PERPIGNAN, France, March 28.—(AP)—Ground crews and pilots from the Chartres air base arrived today at St. Laurent-de-la-Salanque with fifteen of the French air force's newest fighting planes. This gave rise to a belief that France would establish an aerial patrol of the Spanish border.

Keep your kidneys free from waste matter, poisons and acid, and put healthy activity into kidneys and bladder and you'll live a healthier, happier and longer life.

One most efficient and harmless way to do this is to get from your druggist a 35-cent box of Gold Medal Haarlem Oil Capsules and take them as directed—the swift results will surprise you.

Besides getting up nights, some symptoms of kidney trouble are backache, moist palms, leg cramps, and puffy eyes. If you want real results, be sure to get GOLD MEDAL—the original and genuine—a grand kidney stimulant and diuretic—right from Haarlem in Holland. Give your kidneys a good cleaning once in a while.

Will Marry Soon

LILY PONS.

Buffalo, N. Y., March 28.—[Special.]—Diminutive Lily Pons, golden voiced star of screen and opera, admitted today for the first time that she is going to marry Andre Kostelanetz, radio orchestra conductor.

A copyrighted article in the Buffalo Times quoted her as saying: "We will take the leap very soon—possibly within two weeks—before I begin my European tour."

Kostelanetz, who accompanied the French singer from New York for a concert here last night, smilingly indorsed the announcement, the Times said.

The plane was catapulted from Lufthansa's plane carrier Westphalen off Southampton at 9 a. m. [E. S. T.] Sunday in an attempt to set a new overwater distance record. The plane had fuel for 48 hours flying and was ordered to continue until its fuel gave out.

TURKEY SMILES OVER AUSTRIA'S FALL TO HITLER

BY CAPT. M. M. CORPENING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ANKARA, Turkey, March 28.—Turkish officials greet with broad smiles questions relative to Germany's annexation of Austria. No government spokesman will permit himself to be quoted.

Informed sources and the press, however, point to the fact that human interest compels Turkey to be inwardly satisfied with the event. The reference to Turkey as "the sick man of Europe"—a phrase frequently heard early in the 20th century—was instigated by Austria, many Turkish leaders maintain.

It is not sympathy with Germany, Turkey's world war ally, or approval of her seizure of Austria, that prompts Turkey to grin about the event, but international friction of long standing with Austria.

Trouble Dates Back to 1878.

The congress of Berlin settling the Turco-Russian war of 1878 gave Austria the prerogative of adopting an aggressive territorial and commercial policy toward Turkey. Then Turkey ceded to Austria the military occupation and administration of Bosnia and Herzegovinia, as well as the military occupation of the sanjak [district] of Novibazar. By the same treaty Turkey had been forced to recognize the independence of Rumania, Serbia, and Montenegro.

Succeeding European agreements supported the Austrian policy. In 1897 Germany and Austria refused the powers' invitation to take part in the settlement of the Cretan question between Turkey and Greece. This marked the beginning of the German "Drang nach Osten" [pressure toward the east] policy. It resulted in concessions allowing Germany to build the Anatolian railway and the Bagdad line, completing the Berlin to Bagdad dream line.

By 1908 Austria found Turkey an obstacle to her expansion toward the Aegean sea and with Russia agreed to a partition of spheres of influence. Russia was to be supreme in the straits and Bulgaria and Austria in Macedonia and Serbia.

Emperor Urges Annexation.

Observing the success of the "young Turks," Austria-Hungary feared that Turkey in time might be strong enough to demand the evacuation of Bosnia and Herzegovinia. Accordingly Emperor Franz Josef informed the powers signatory to the treaty of Berlin that the annexation of Bosnia and Herzegovinia was necessary. At the same time Bulgaria proclaimed her independence.

Austria withdrew from Novibazar and also agreed to pay $11,000,000 compensation for Turkish crown lands seized in Bosnia and Herzegovinia.

In the succeeding years, during which Italy took North African territory and the Dodecanese Islands from Turkey, Bulgaria, Serbia, Greece, and Montenegro gave each other guarantees of mutual assistance if the integrity of any one of them was menaced.

Turkey interpreted this as an alliance of Austrian satellites directed against Turkey. The Balkan wars followed. Ironically enough, Turkey later was drawn into the world war on the side of Germany, Bulgaria, and Austria-Hungary.

BALDOMIR IS ELECTED URUGUAY'S PRESIDENT TO SUCCEED DR. TERRA

Gen. Alfredo Baldomir.

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, March 28.—(AP)—With the returns of only two departments missing, Gen. Alfredo Baldomir was assured today of election as president of Uruguay to succeed President Gabriel Terra.

Results from Montevideo and seventeen departments gave Baldomir 105,776 votes against 89,942 for Juan José Artega and 84,713 for Dr. Eduardo Blanco Acevedo. Cesare Charlone, former minister of finance, was elected vice president.

Baldomir is President Terra's brother-in-law. Besides being a soldier he is an architect. He has been minister of war and has held various nonmilitary posts in the government. The president-elect issued a statement promising that democracy would continue "the basis of the democratic Uruguayan political structure."

Government Candidates Win 12 Seats in Irish Senate

DUBLIN, March 28.—(AP)—Government candidates won 12 seats in the new Irish senate today, while incomplete returns showed William T. Cosgrave's supporters had elected nine candidates and Labor one. There were 132 candidates in the field for 45 seats to be filled from five panels of names grouped according to vocation. Six other seats have been allotted to universities, and 11 are to be nominated later this week by Prime Minister Eamon De Valera, making a total of 60 senate seats.

CZECH PREMIER DEFIES HITLER; CRIES: KEEP OUT!

Plans New Laws to Guard Minority Rights.

BY ALEX SMALL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, March 28.—Premier Milan Hodza tonight indicated that the Czechoslovakian government intends to deprive Germany of any pretext for picking a war or interfering with the country's internal affairs by going the limit in making concessions on the problem of the German minority.

The premier spoke to the nation over the radio. His speech was carefully timed to anticipate any brusque demand which might be made by the German Front, and to lay Czechoslovakia's position before the world in case an ultimatum should be sent from Berlin to Prague as was sent to Vienna.

Doesn't Offer Much.

Compared with the claims made by Konrad Henlein, leader of the Sudeten German [Nazi] party, which demands nothing less than setting up a state within a state, Hodza did not offer much. It amounted simply to a sharp definition of minority rights which are to be embodied in new laws.

The premier said the laws will be a compilation of all minority provisions of the constitution and of all administrative decrees concerning minorities which have been issued since Czechoslovakia was founded.

"This will constitute," he said, "a system of minority rights which can serve as an example."

Hopes which the Sudeten Germans might have had that Hodza would voluntarily announce reorganization of the country along the lines of Switzerland were dashed by the premier.

Defies Pressure from Outside.

"The minority policy must be based on sound premises—namely, our sovereignty and our constitution," Hodza said. "In no case, nor in any form, will the government yield to pressure, whether political, moral, or economic. We will not allow outside pressure to influence our internal policy. We have never given in to such pressure and we never shall."

Sudeten German leaders in Prague were stunned by the uncompromising boldness of Hodza's speech. He took the stand that Czechoslovakia's constitution is a model of liberality toward minorities and any changes to be made must be within constitutional limits.

Seeks New Constitution.

Henlein's demands, on the contrary, are for an entirely now constitution and would amount to disruption of Czechoslovakia as it now exists.

A government spokesman said Hodza's speech was intended in good part for Berlin. It was an unmistakable warning that Czechoslovakia refuses to be bullied and refuses to accept Berlin's definition of justice for the 3¼ million Sudeten Germans.

Hodza himself in his speech gave the real explanation of his bold front—confidence in the continued existence of Czechoslovakia which the nation acquired since last week's speech of Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain of Great Britain.

"After Chamberlain's declaration we can say that security in the European community has been strengthened," the premier said.

HITLER TURNS PART OF AUSTRIAN LEGION INTO GUARDSMEN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, March 28.—By order of Reichsfuehrer Hitler part of the Austrian Legion, which was trained in German camps in the Rhineland and Westphalia, are being formed into two Schutz Staffel [picked guards] units for service in Austria.

They are the dread "Deathhead units" used as jailers in concentration camps and as emergency corps. The latter are equipped with rifles, machine guns, and trench mortars. Their duty is to suppress riots and maintain order at home in case of war. Officially, their number is given as 15,000, but it is believed their strength is almost ten times that figure.

The regiment of the emergency corps will have three battalions. A second corps will be garrisoned at Klagenfurth and a third in Innsbruck. The Austrian units will have headquarters in Linz. The Schutz Staffel units will help the GSP [secret police] supervise the population, especially the Jews and "political suspects."

CZECHS SAIL FOR PARAGUAY FARMS TO ESCAPE NAZIS

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, March 28.—(AP)—A boatload of Czechoslovak emigrants passed here today en route to settle Paraguayan farming lands. Joseph Repkor, Czech farming engineer who led the group, said native and German Nazis began to appear in Czechoslovakia soon after the Austro-German union.

"We felt the present state of Europe makes impossible any opposition to the German conquest of our country," Repkor said.

"All who came with me lived in the districts of Czechoslovakia most desired by Germany. They sold their lands and property. Others will follow."

GERMANY WARNS DUCHY TO HUSH PRESS HOSTILITY

BRUSSELS, Belgium, March 28.—(AP)—Official Luxembourg quarters tonight disclosed Germany had warned the tiny grand duchy the Nazis would not tolerate press attacks such as followed Germany's absorption of Austria.

The warning was delivered to Foreign Minister Joseph Bech along with a declaration Germany was ready to guarantee the neutrality and territorial inviolability of Luxembourg's 999 square miles wedged between Germany and France.

Bech informed the Luxembourg Press association of the Nazi stand, but the association refused to accept foreign interference with freedom of the press. Official sources said France was ready to guarantee the duchy's inviolability, but not her neutrality, unless Britain also adhered to such a guarantee.

FIELD'S FOOD

By CALEB

IN this changing world, things which persist in adherence to high standards cause me to pause and pay my respects.

Before me is a letter from a distinguished gentleman living in a Chicago suburb. He says:

"Today, as I was rummaging among my old papers, I came across this copy of a letter I sent out (18 years ago) to the members of the Society of Midland Authors.

"I feel almost confident that you will hail with gratitude one who (albeit a mere layman) was so completely saturated with the spirit of the institution!

"Cordially yours,

"J—— T—— H——."

And his bubbling, good-humoredly written enclosure reads as follows:

"The informal monthly luncheon of the Society of Midland Authors will take place in the South Room Grill at Marshall Field & Company's on Thursday, January 29, 1920, at 12:30. Price $1. Guests may be brought on the same terms.

". . . at Marshall Field & Company's, . . . The hangings of deep blue, the rich Spanish walnut, all these will appeal particularly to writers of refinement and taste. Choicest offerings of Europe, Asia, New Jersey, and other exotic regions will be featured at this remarkable occasion—not all known viands, but a good assortment. If you could see them no other words would be needed. They are so crisp and dainty that one feels they are indicative of the new season. Many of these confections are exclusive with this store.

"These attractions are offered now at prices which earlier would buy only medium grades.

"The reductions are importantly notable. Just at present there seem to be better-than-usual reasons for embracing such decided advantages.

"South Room Grill, Seventh Floor."

Our good food has made contributions to Chicago's history, I am sure, which no history could be voluminous enough to detail.

EMPLOYERS BACK UP BRITAIN'S BIG REARM CAMPAIGN

Tell Chamberlain They Will Co-operate.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 28.—Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain today resumed his efforts to get labor lined up behind Great Britain's big armaments program. Indications, however, were growing that labor will resist unless Chamberlain gives assurances that he will use his new armaments only for Britain's defense or under league of nations auspices in aiding democratic countries.

The prime minister appealed to representatives of the National Confederation of Employers at a meeting tonight to help speed up the rearmament program as he did to leaders of the trades' union congress last week.

Fifty representatives of the employers assured him that the confederation will do its utmost to insure cooperation.

Employers May Meet Labor.

It is expected the next step will be a move by the government to stage a conference among employers and union heads to discuss details of the labor problems involved in the government's arms acceleration appeal.

However, nothing can be done by either side until next week after Sir Thomas Inskip, minister for coördination of defense, has seen leaders of the powerful amalgamated engineering union, which consists of most of the skilled workers. This union wants guarantees to safeguard its members when the emergency is over.

The political attitude of the labor movement has been outlined in a manifesto issued after a joint meeting of the general council of the trades' union congress and Labor party leaders.

Attack Foreign Policy.

The manifesto demanded an immediate meeting of the assembly of the league and attacked the government's foreign policy.

Superficially this might be regarded as a bad omen for the government's efforts to secure trade union support of its rearmament program. Official industrial opinion, however, declines to accept the manifesto in this light. The primary concern of the unions is the conditions under which they will be asked to coöperate in speeding up armaments production. Although there are rumblings of revolt in labor ranks against the government, the rumble is expected to be overcome.

The government's plan is to have one in every five of Britain's 27,000,000 adults—men and women between the ages of 20 and 65—working on home defense by the end of June. Of the country's 15,000,000 workers, 3,500,000 are employed on the defense program in steel, mining, engineering, aircraft, agriculture, and ship building.

Hope to Enroll 5,000,000.

The 3,500,000 figure, it is hoped, will be increased to 5,000,000. The additional workers are to be found among the partly skilled and nonunion workers and apprentices. They will work in day and night shifts.

Here is how the millions now working on home defense are employed: 3,500,000 in industry; 1,000,000 air raid precaution volunteers; 200,000 anti-aircraft men and territorials [militia]; 200,000 in the home defense army; 100,000 air force pilots including reserves and auxiliaries; 100,000 nurses, ambulance men, firemen, and hospital staffs trained in anti-gas work.

CHINESE WIPE OUT JAPANESE GAINS ON THREE FRONTS

New Jap Nanking Regime Begins Work.

SHANGHAI, March 29.—[Tuesday.]—(AP)—Chinese reported striking military successes in Shantung, Shansi, and Anhwei provinces today while a new Japanese dominated government for the conquered areas of central China started functioning in Nanking.

Victories reported by the Chinese were scattered over the whole central China front, the chief ones being at Lincheng, Tsaochwang, and Tsining in southwestern Shantung; Piglu and Fengkiu on the north bank of the Yellow river, and Kwangteh in East Anhwei.

A Japanese military spokesman said Japanese troops had begun bombarding Lini, in southern Shantung province, being "unable to wait until American diplomatic machinery gets Chinese troops away from the vicinity of the American Presbyterian mission there."

Dead Brought to Shanghai.

The spokesman also asserted that Japanese retreats, if any, had been strategic and not compulsory. Foreign observers were agreed, however, that the Chinese counterthrusts were producing one of the most intensive and most unrelenting battles of the war.

Forty truck loads of dead Japanese soldiers arrived in Shanghai — evidence that the Japanese have been suffering heavy losses in recent battles. Military observers estimated 600 corpses were in the convoy.

Japanese reported they had killed 2,500 Chinese in a major engagement in northwestern Shansi, east of Hoku.

Chinese said six Japanese warships, accompanied by ten airplanes, had bombarded Chinese positions on the Yangtze river at Tatung, sixty-four miles west of Wuhu, in an attempt to land soldiers, but had been repulsed.

Hail "Birth of New China."

The new Nanking government, Chinese in personnel but sponsored by the Japanese, was inaugurated yesterday amid the popping of firecrackers, the chanting of a new "national anthem" titled "Clouds of Good Omen Are Discernible in Times of Peace," and parading, stage managed by Japanese.

Masayuki Tani, Japan's ambassador-at-large in China, said it was needed to save the people from "mal administration and anarchy" and congratulated "the 400,000,000 people of China on the birth of a new China."

Head of the new régime is Liang Hung-tze, secretary-general of the Chinese government at Peking in 1924-25. Like Wang Keh-min, head of the Japanese-sponsored provisional government set up at Peking earlier this year, Liang and most of his Nanking ministers were officials of Chinese governments before the nationalist revolution of 1926-28.

FRANCE DIVORCE DEPOSITIONS TO BE READ TODAY

Elkton, Md., March 28.—(AP)—Depositions from physicians and psychiatrists who treated Mrs. Joseph I. France, wife of the former United States senator from Maryland, will be opened tomorrow before Judge Owen J. Knott in Circuit court.

The five depositions, taken in Paris, France, before the United States consul, will be used to bolster Mrs. France's defense in the divorce proceedings brought by Dr. France, who alleged in his suit she deserted him in 1931.

Mrs. France told the court Dr. France asked her to go away while he campaigned for the Republican nomination for President and that a mental illness kept her from returning.

RUSSIANS OPEN FIGHT ON STALIN OVER AIR WAVES

Secret Radio Station Wars on Dictatorship.

BY DONALD DAY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, March 28.—An anti-Stalin short wave radio station came on the air for the first time shortly after midnight last night. The announcer said that the old Russian revolutionary organization of the League of Liberators had been revived in soviet Russia to fight the dictatorship of Josef Stalin.

The station's broadcasting wave length is 29.9 meters. The announcer said the political program of the League of Liberators included, in addition to the overthrow of the Stalin régime, the revival of the right to own private property; possession of capital, provided it does not harm the welfare of the Russian people; settlement of the Russian agrarian problem; abolishment of collectivized agriculture where this satisfies peasants, and a campaign for true Marxism as opposed to Stalin's "false interpretations of Marxist theories."

The station announced it was not connected with the soviet network. The announcer said that because it is privately owned it will continue to operate so long as it can avoid the GPU [dreaded secret police]. Listeners were invited to tune in tonight to hear a continuation of the campaign against Stalin.

Whether the station broadcasts from Russian soil or is concealed in the Baltic states is not known to authorities who are investigating its location.

SUPPRESS CLASHES IN BRITISH OWNED MINES IN CHINA; SEVERAL DIE

TIENTSIN, China, March 28.—(AP)—Order was restored today in properties of the British owned Kailan mining administration northeast of Tientsin after clashes of rival groups of Chinese miners in which several were killed.

Workers from one mine invaded another of the company's holdings and fighting ensued. An explanation of the trouble was not immediately available. None of the British staf was injured and the property suffered no serious damage.

The Kailan mining administration, working important coal mines in northeastern Hopei province and owning docks and warehouses at Chinwangtao and other ports, is the most important British interest in Japanese conquered North China. The properties were managed by Herbert Hoover in 1901-1902.

SIMPLE FUNERAL FOR COL. HOUSE; BURIAL IN TEXAS

New York, March 28.—[Special.]—In accord with his oft repeated wish, Col. Edward M. House, internationally noted confidant of Woodrow Wilson, will be given a simple private funeral, his family announced tonight.

The Texan, who remained shy all his life despite an acquisition of power unique in American history, had said many times he wanted "no fuss and feathers when I am gone."

Acceding to that desire, no public rites will be held. The body will be taken to Houston, Tex., Col. House's birthplace, where burial will be in the family plot. There will be no services there.

In Ill Health a Year.

Death came to the gray haired statesman in New York early today in the quiet old town residence to which he had retired in sorrow after his break with Wilson. He was 79 years old, and had been in poor health for more than a year. He remarked yesterday that he felt ill and after midnight he sank rapidly.

Col. House's passing removed the last survivor of the American signatories of the treaty of Versailles and the last member of the triumvirate of Texans closely associated with President Wilson. Albert Sidney Burleson, postmaster general in Wilson's cabinet, died a few months ago. Thomas Watt Gregory, attorney general under Wilson, has been dead several years.

Back of Wilson Candidacy.

Col. House, who received his title as a member of the staf of a governor of Texas, came on the national scene in 1911. His passion for politics—not to hold office but to be a key figure behind the scenes—led to his enthusiastic backing of Wilson as a presidential candidate.

It was Col. House who won for Wilson the support of William Jennings Bryan, without which no Democrat could have been elected. After Wilson's inauguration the Texan became the greatest single influence upon the war President. He walked softly in and out of the White House with an entree given no other man.

His hand was active in forming Wilson's cabinet. At his suggestion Bryan was appointed secretary of state and Josephus Daniels was made secretary of the navy, because it was felt Daniels was not aggressive enough to be a good postmaster general.

Father of Federal Reserve.

Col. House converted Mr. Wilson to the federal reserve theory. He convinced the President of the necessity for preparedness prior to this country's entry into the world war.

Col. House represented Wilson in a trip through the combatant countries in an effort to bring about a peace conference in 1916, and was almost successful. He talked to the great statesmen of France and England; he met Kaiser Wilhelm in conference, the details of which the world never has learned.

This was his second peace mission to Europe, for in 1914, several months before the fateful assassination at Sarajevo, Col. House interviewed diplomats and rulers in an attempt to avert the war he knew was looming.

Strengthens U. S. War Policy.

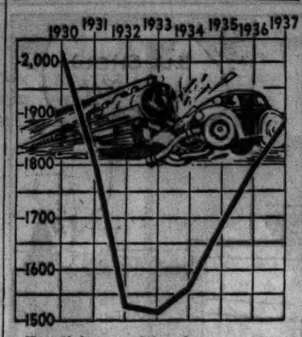
Unable to prevent the disaster, or stop it in 1916, Col. House strengthened Wilson's wavering war policy.

During the chain of epic defeats that dashed Wilson's league plans and broke his health, a coolness appeared between the President and his confidant. House urged that the President compromise his peace plans, but the sick man in the White House did not answer his letters. Their great friendship ended there.

At Warm Springs, Ga., President Roosevelt expressed high appreciation of Col. House's public services.

Surviving Col. House are his widow, the former Lucille Hunter of Austin, Tex., and two daughters, Mrs. Gordon Auchincloss of New York and Mrs. Randolph Tucker of Boston. Mrs. House and Mrs. Auchincloss were with him at the end.

Crossing Deaths



Fatalities resulting from accidents at highway-railroad crossings were greater in 1937 than in any year since 1930.

Grade crossing deaths last year reached the highest toll since 1930, it was announced yesterday by the Association of American railroads. In 1937 there were 1,875 killed. In 1930 the toll was 2,020.

The National Safety council yesterday announced, on the other hand, that trafic fatalities in the United States dropped again in February for the fourth consecutive month. The February toll of 2,180 deaths was 16 per cent lower than that of the same month last year and 20 per cent less than January of this year.

Illinois deaths dropped 5 per cent for the month, a saving of sixteen lives, the council reported.

MISS NEWCOMET KILLED IN CRASH WITH AMBULANCE

Mother Injured; 2 Navy Men Also Hurt.

Miss Marian Newcomet, 25 years old, president of the Service club and daughter of Horace E. Newcomet, vice president of the Pennsylvania railroad, was killed yesterday in a crash with a navy ambulance at Skokie boulevard and Buckley road, southwest of North Chicago. Her mother and two enlisted men were injured in the accident.

Miss Newcomet, who was driving, and her mother were returning on Skokie boulevard from their summer home at Oconomowoc, Wis., where they spent the week-end, to their home at 1242 Lake Shore drive. An ambulance from the Great Lakes Naval Training station, driven by Harry Matchett, 25 years old, was speeding west on Buckley road with its siren shrieking.

Collide at Intersection.

Matchett, witnesses said, went through the stop sign for the boulevard at approximately 45 miles an hour and the two automobiles met at the intersection. Miss Newcomet was taken to the training station hospital, where she died.

Mrs. Newcomet suffered a deep scalp wound and a fractured right ankle. She was taken to St. Therese's hospital in Waukegan and then removed to Chicago.

Matchett and two other enlisted men, Kenneth North, 27 years old, and Cecil Teague, 19, were driving to the naval reserve airport at Glenview to convey an injured man to the training station hospital. Matchett suffered minor injuries and Teague was badly cut by flying glass.

Funeral services for Miss Newcomet will be held at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow at St. Chrysostom's church.

Inquiry Is Ordered.

Commander C. C. Todd Jr. announced that Rear Admiral Hayne Ellis, commandant of the training school, appointed a naval board of three officers to investigate the accident.

Herman Marks, 1138 South Sacramento boulevard, a former Checker cab driver, admitted to Assistant State's Attorney Morris Meyers yesterday that he was the hit and run driver whose car killed a nurse on Jan. 9. Marks was arrested last Thursday after police of the Marquette station had spent more than two months in tracking him down.

Marks' victim was Miss Margaret Donaghue, 22, 5726 South Elizabeth street, a nurse in the Municipal Contagious Disease hospital. She was struck and killed at Western avenue and 31st street.

Seriously Hurt by Car.

Louis Streu, 30 years old, 4114 North Troy street, a baker, was seriously injured early yesterday morning in an accident at Lawrence and Western avenues. Charles Williams, 35 years old, colored, a car hiker for a garage, was the driver.

The accident toll in Cook county since Jan. 1 was 208 killed up to 4 p. m. yesterday. During the same period 167 met death in Chicago, where 3,971 were injured.

1 DIES, 5 MISSING AS BRITISH PLANE CRASHES AT SEA

Maneuvers Marred by Disaster.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 28.—A. E. Barlow, writer on aviation, was drowned today when a British flying boat crashed at sea during naval and aviation maneuvers off the Isle of Wight. His body was recovered. The five members of the seaplane's crew are missing. It is feared they also perished.

The combined naval and aerial maneuvers are being held to test the value of the Royal Air Force in defending the British Isles against an attacking fleet.

Britain Hunts Saboteurs.

The air ministry was reported to have decided to send secret agents into factories manufacturing armaments as a result of the apparent sabotage of four bombing planes in the Fairey Aviation company's factory at Stockport.

Scotland Yard began a drive to track down a possible ring of saboteurs who are believed to be trying to hamper Britain's 7 billion 500 million dollar rearmament program.

Electric Wiring Cut.

Electric wiring on the four bombers of the Fairey factory was cut, the air ministry disclosed. The damage was discovered after the planes had been prepared for transportation to an airport. Other bombers made by the same company recently were "maliciously damaged" at an airport.

Death Escaped by Three When Truck Crushes Bridge

Rochester, Ind., March 28.—[Special.]—Three men escaped death today when the bridge over lake Nyona, eight miles south, collapsed under the weight of a truck driven by William Lutes of Portland. DeWitt Savage of Macy and Howard Barry, North Manchester, telephone company employés, were following the trailer and their coupe was let down to within a foot of water, the bridge holding at that distance.

Continue Hunt for Killer Who Slew Mother of Two

Racine avenue police yesterday continued their search for Joseph Labruzzi, 50 years old, who shot and killed Mrs. Irene Mankiewicz, a widow and mother of two children, Saturday night. A coroner's jury recommended yesterday afternoon that Labruzzi, when arrested, be held to the grand jury on a charge of murder. He is married and owns an express and fuel shop at 1639 North avenue.

PAUL C. LANG, 43, KILLS HIMSELF IN WILMETTE HOME

Paul C. Lang, 43 years old, who for several years had been active in public life in Wilmette, shot himself to death yesterday in his home at 933 Ashland avenue, in the suburb. He had returned Saturday from a Wisconsin sanitarium, where he had been under treatment for a mental ailment for a year.

Mr. Lang, who was assistant manager of the Cook County Loss Adjustment bureau, 175 West Jackson boulevard, also had been a member of the Wilmette village board, the civil service board, and the park board.

He is survived by his widow, Guyla, and a son, Paul Jr., 17 years old, a senior at the New Trier High school.

He'll Have Nearly Week to Uplift Prisoners

Omaha, Neb., March 28.—[Special.]—On his way to the county jail yesterday to participate in religious services for prisoners, Ray Anderson was arrested for speeding. Today he went to the jail for five days, not a visitor.

West Park Trafic Lights to Be Out During Repairs

Stop and go lights on all west park boulevards will be out of service tomorrow between 9 a. m. and noon while the Sanitary district is cleaning its high tension cables which supply the current. Otto K. Jelinek, park district trafic engineer, warned motorists and pedestrians to be careful at boulevard crossings while the lights are not operating.

Crash Kills Two Mexican Army Flyers at Chihuahua

11 SENTENCED FOR VIOLATIONS OF DRIVING LAWS

Truck Driver Gets 90 Days in County Jail.

The spring air may be soft but the court is going to be tough. The warning was issued yesterday by Judge James M. Braude in Safety court as he sentenced five men to jail and fined six others for trafic offenses.

When Norman Haiges, 2423 Adams street, appeared in court Judge Braude recognized him as a man who had been placed on six months' probation last October. At that time Haiges' wife, Gertrude, asked the judge that something be done to keep her husband from drinking while he was driving his truck.

Haiges pleaded yesterday that his wife and four small children were dependent upon him, but the judge sentenced him to 90 days in the county jail. A motion to vacate the sentence was set for April 20. Warren avenue police testified that Haiges struck a parked car early yesterday morning and then drove to 16 South Lincoln avenue, where he was found under the influence of liquor.

Charles Osleber, 38 years old, 5757 Drexel avenue, a Checker taxicab driver, was sentenced to 20 days in the county jail for reckless driving. Police arrested him after his car struck a milk wagon Friday.

Others convicted and their sentences were:

STANLEY BORCYCA, 26, of 1107 Chestnut street, reckless driving; $15 fine and one year suspension of driving privileges.

ALEX GEIGER, 31, of Broadview, reckless driving; $50 fine, 6 months probation and 30 days suspension.

FRANK FAGO, 34, 4573 McVickers avenue, reckless driving; $25 fine and 30 days' suspension.

FLOYD MILLER, 25, of Huntley, reckless driving; 5 days in the county jail and 3 months' suspension.

STANLEY RACE, 45, of 2043 North Whipple street, reckless driving; 5 days in jail and 90 days' suspension.

L. H. KEY, 29, of 3821 Pine Grove avenue, reckless driving; 5 days in the county jail and 90 days' suspension.

PHILIP BOLF, 28, of 8702 Lake street, driving while intoxicated; $50 fine and 90 days' suspension.

WALTER JOHNSON, 38, of 1219 East 65th street, reckless driving; $50 fine and 90 days' suspension.

Stanley Miller of Wheeling surrendered yesterday to Lake Forest police and admitted he was the driver of the automobile which several days ago twice outran that occupied by Chief Frank Tiffany and Magistrate Edwin Burgess. He appeared before Magistrate Burgess and paid a $50 fine on charges of speeding, resisting arrest, and reckless driving. The car is owned by Edward Griffin of Wheeling.

Get at the Cause of Constipation!
You know that constipation often gives you that dopey, sunken, bogged down feeling. Why not get at the cause and fix it?
If you eat what most people do—things like bread, meat and potatoes—the chances are all that's the matter with you is you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean what you may think. It's a kind of food that isn't entirely digested, but leaves a soft, bulky mass in the intestines that aids elimination.
If this is your trouble, what you need is a dish of crisp, crunchy Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast every day. It contains the "bulk" you need, plus Nature's intestinal tonic vitamin B_1, and iron.
Eat All-Bran every day, drink plenty of water, and see if the old world doesn't look a lot brighter! All-Bran is made by Kellogg in Battle Creek. Sold by every grocer.

UPHOLD NEGROES' RIGHT TO PICKET STORE FOR JOBS

Highest Court Rules Their Demand Is a Dispute.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 28.—[Special.]—The United States Supreme court, in a 6 to 2 opinion, held today that an unanswered demand upon a chain store company to give employment to Negroes in certain stores where only white persons are employed constitutes a labor dispute within the purview of the Norris-La Guardia act.

Since there was a labor dispute, the court held, the district court of the District of Columbia erred in granting an injunction restraining a Negro alliance from attempts to coerce the Sanitary Grocery company by picketing the stores and other means.

Criticizes Interpretation.

"We are unable to understand how a dispute can arise when only one side is involved," said Justice McReynolds. "We cannot accept the view that a labor dispute emerges whenever an employer fails to respond to a communication from A, B, and C—irrespective of their race, character, reputation, fitness, previous or present employment—suggesting displeasure because of his choice of employés and their expectation that in the future he will not fail to select men of their complexion.

"It seems unbelievable that, in all such circumstances, congress intended to inhibit courts from extending protection long guaranteed by law and thus, in effect, encourage mobbish interference with the individual's liberty of action.

"Under the tortured meaning now attributed to the words labor dispute, no employer—merchant, manufacturer, builder, cobbler, housekeeper, or whatnot—who prefers helpers of one color or class can find adequate safeguard against intolerable violations of his freedom if members of some other class, religion, race, or color demand that he give them precedence."

Opinion Written by Roberts.

The majority opinion, written by Justice Owen J. Roberts, said the Sanitary Grocery company, operating 255 retail stores, employed both white and colored personnel, but on April 3, 1936, it opened a new store and employed white personnel having an acquaintance with the trade in the vicinity. The company contended, the opinion states, that members of the Negro organization unlawfully conspired with each other to picket, patrol, boycott, and ruin the plaintiff's business.

The opinion held that there was a labor dispute, within the meaning of the Norris-La Guardia act, notwithstanding the absence of any employer-employé relationship.

Cites Injunction Provisions.

"Race discrimination by an employer may reasonably be deemed more unfair and less excusable than discrimination against workers on the ground of union affiliation," said the opinion, which cites the provisions of the Norris-La Guardia act prohibiting injunctions in labor disputes except after a hearing and a finding that unlawful acts have been threatened or committed, or irreparable injury to complainants' property will follow, or greater injury will be inflicted upon the complainant by denial of the relief than will be inflicted upon the defendant by granting it.

In another decision the Supreme court ruled that the Santa Cruz Fruit Packing company, of Oakland, Cal., is subject to provisions of the Labor Relations act, even though less than 40 per cent of its output is sold in interstate commerce. Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes delivered the majority opinion, to which Justices McReynolds and Butler dissented.

GUY TALLMADGE, WIFE SLAYER, DIES IN PRISON

Guy Tallmadge, the former Rockford undertaker who killed his wife in a fake holdup so he could be free to marry a widow, died yesterday of a heart ailment in the infirmary at Stateville prison, Warden Joseph E. Ragen announced. He was serving a life sentence.

Tallmadge and his wife had started to see a lawyer about their marital difficulties. They stopped on a cross road, Tallmadge telling her there was trouble with the car. When she went to the rear of the car to give him a flashlight he shot her in the head, threw away his watch and gun, hailed a motorist, and said a bandit had killed her.

MARINE C. OF C. SEEKS GREATER YACHT HARBORS

Expansion of Chicago's yacht harbors was set forth as a goal of the Central Marine Chamber of Commerce, which held its organization meeting last night in the St. Clair hotel. Frank Combiths, who was elected commodore of the organization, said that 208 owners of pleasure craft were unable to obtain mooring space last summer.

The Marine chamber is to comprise both pleasure craft owners and builders and dealers on Lake Michigan and its tributaries. Malcolm Ernst was elected vice commodore.

Directors elected last night are W. L. Peterson, A. H. MacGregor, T. C. Foster, Elliott Lekholm, and J. J. Jesiek. The next meeting will be on April 11, when six additional directors from outside Chicago will be elected.

OLGA WINS ON PONIES, AND IS TAKEN FOR RIDE

When she finished work as a waitress in a restaurant at Damen and North avenues a customer offered to escort her home. Arrest Couple and Seize Two Pounds of Marijuana

William Burnett, 29 years old, was arrested at Eugenie and La Salle streets last night on a charge of possessing marijuana. She was with Burnett last night when Detectives John Mangan and John McNamara seized him.

ANTI-HANDBILL LAW HITS PRESS FREEDOM, SAYS SUPREME COURT

Washington, D. C., March 28.—(AP)—The Supreme court ruled today an ordinance of Griffin, Ga., requiring persons distributing circulars, or advertisments, to obtain a license from the city manager violated constitutional guarantees of freedom of the press.

Chief Justice Hughes gave the court's opinion that the ordinance is invalid on its face.

"Whatever the motive which induced its adoption," the chief justice said, "its character is such that it strikes at the very foundation of the freedom of the press by subjecting it to license and censorship. The liberty of the press is not confined to newspapers and periodicals. It necessarily embraces pamphlets and leaflets."

Hoover Back from Europe; Criticizes Roosevelt Bill

New York, March 28.—(AP)—Former President Herbert Hoover arrived from Europe tonight aboard the French liner Normandie with the comment that the senate approval of the government reorganization bill without further amendments was "too bad. The change of the controler and the alteration of the civil service and the more or less control over independent agencies and semi-judicial agencies tend to further centralize government."

Roger Touhy Loses Freedom Plea to U. S. Supreme Court

Roger Touhy's plea for a hearing on a writ of habeas corpus was denied yesterday by the United States Supreme court. Touhy is serving 99 years for the kidnaping of John [Jake the Barber] Factor in 1933. The convict appealed the Illinois Supreme court's refusal to grant the writ of habeas corpus.

FARM COSTS UP AS FLUID MILK SALES DECLINE

Evaporated Product Gains Users.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

Dairymen are facing higher production costs and are becoming concerned over the tendency of consumers to use less fluid milk. Milk consumption has been going down within the last few months, unofficial reports indicate.

The annual per capita consumption of fluid milk in cities and villages dropped more than 4½ gallons from 1929 to 1934, official figures show.

Consumption Records Since 1934.

In 1934 the consumption of fluid milk in cities and villages dropped to slightly more than 36 gallons per person. It increased to more than 38 gallons per person in 1936 and continued to go a little higher last year, but has fallen off since the first of this year. Official figures are not yet available for 1937.

Legalizing the sale of beer in 1933 is credited with caus g much of the drop in the consumption of fluid milk. The per capita consumption of milk fell off approximately 2½ gallons in the first year after the eighteenth amendment was repealed.

Per capita consumption of evaporated milk has more than doubled in this country during the last seventeen years. Since 1925 the use of evaporated milk has increased from 9.32 to 14.79 pounds per person. In the last four years consumption has increased, partly as a result of a growing use of the product among families on relief.

Use of Condensed Milk Drops.

The use of sweetened condensed milk in cans has decreased in the last ten years from .9 of a pound to .4 of a pound per person each year.

Chicago's fluid milk sales are falling off. The change, however, has been small in the last decade. The sales dropped gradually from 1931 until 1936 when they were increased slightly, according to figures compiled by the Associated Milk Dealers, Inc. Consumption has had a tendency to go down this year.

VOLIVA TO ERECT $250,000 FLAT BUILDING IN ZION

Wilbur Glenn Voliva, Zion overseer, announced yesterday he will build a new fireproof apartment and hotel building to replace the old Zion home, which now houses about 300 persons, many of them crippled and ill. Voliva's own fifteen room apartment is in the old building.

Construction will start in about six weeks, Voliva said, and will provide 200 rooms to house the same group that now occupies 360 rooms in the old structure, built in 1901 by John Alexander Dowie at Sheridan road and 26th street.

The new building, part of which will be three stories and part two, will be erected just north of the old one at Sheridan road and Shiloh boulevard. It will cost about $250,000.

28 CONVICT MINERS ARE CAPTURED AFTER FEW HOURS FREEDOM

Knoxville, Tenn., March 28.—[Special.]—Twenty-eight of thirty-eight convict miners who blasted and dug their way out of the Brushy mountain state prison mine at Petros, 45 miles northwest of Knoxville early yesterday, had been captured tonight. Guards and possemen, lured by $25 rewards, were trailing others through the mountains and expected to capture most of them before they escaped from the state.

PRESS FREEDOM ISSUE IN RULING BY LABOR BOARD

Pittsburgh, Pa., March 28.—[Special.]—Plans for an appeal of the Stackpole Carbon company labor board case, in which the freedom of the press is an issue, will be made this week at a conference between company officials and counsel. This announcement was made tonight by Clyde A. Armstrong, attorney for the company.

The national labor board in a ruling issued Saturday in Washington ordered the Stackpole company, a St. Mary's [Pa.] firm to dissolve an independent association of employés at its plant in favor of a group of C. I. O. electrical workers. It charged, among other things, that Harry Conrad, vice president of the Stackpole company, attempted to influence workers to join the independent association through editorials and news stories in the St. Mary's daily press of which he is a stockholder.

COURTNEY POLICE RAID TWO MORE BETTING PLACES

HELP STOMACH DIGEST FOOD

Without Laxatives—and You'll Eat Everything from Soup to Nuts

The stomach should digest two pounds of food daily. When you eat heavy, greasy, coarse or rich foods or when you are nervous, hurried or chew poorly—your stomach pours out too much fluid. Your food doesn't digest and you have gas, heartburn, nausea, pain or sour stomach. You feel sour, sick and upset all over.

Doctors say never take a laxative for stomach pain. It is dangerous and foolish. It takes those little black tablets called Bell-ans for Indigestion to make the excess stomach fluids harmless, relieve distress in 5 minutes and put you back on your feet. Relief is so quick it is amazing and one 25c package proves it. Ask for Bell-ans for Indigestion.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

Farm Landscaping

[This is the fourth of a series of articles on farm landscaping appearing in this column.]

SHADE trees may be planted at comparatively small cost where there are woodlots from which seeds or young trees may be taken, according to past experience of the Wheaton farm gardeners. The trees should be carefully selected because it is important to plant the right kinds. Not all trees that grow rapidly are desirable shade trees.

Usually the hardy native trees, such as oaks, elms, and maples, are easy to get and they make good shade trees. They grow naturally in most forests and woodlots. There are a few naturalized trees that often give better results than the common kinds. Examples of these are Chinese elm and Norway maple.

Plantings should be arranged to avoid interfering with gardens or cultivated fields.

Gardeners at the Wheaton place consider the Chinese elm one of the best shade trees to plant. It makes a beautiful tree, grows rapidly, and is more resistant to disease than most other kinds of elms.

Small Sprouts Cost Little.

While it usually is necessary to buy seedlings of the Chinese elm at a nursery, the cost is comparatively small, especially if only small sprouts are bought. A common plan is to buy seedlings one or two years old and set them out in rows where they may be cultivated. They may be set in any out of the way place and cultivated enough to keep down the weeds. As the trees grow in the rows, they should be trimmed to leave only one leader with no V crotches that might break in wind or sleet storms. They will be ready to transplate in permanent locations when the trunks are about two inches through.

Early spring is considered the best time for setting these trees in the places where they are to grow. After they are set they should be kept mulched with straw or leaves for about two years. From then on they should be able to get along with but little attention. The trees may need some final trimmings after they are set out to make sure that they grow to the proper shape.

American elms are handled in much the same way as Chinese elms. Since the American elm is a native tree and grows naturally in most farm woods, it usually is an easy matter to go to the woods and dig up the small seedlings for planting. It is thought best to get seedlings about the size of an ordinary lead pencil and set them out in rows and cultivate them until they are big enough to transplant.

The American elm still is one of the favorite shade trees for this section of the country, although it is more subject to disease and insect injury than the Chinese elm. American elms grow larger than most common trees, but their growth is comparatively slow.

The Norway maple may be started easily from seeds or by planting two year old seedlings. The trees are hardy, are seldom bothered by disease, and are fast growers. The leaves stay green late in the fall after the leaves of most other trees have changed color.

The various kinds of oaks make fine shade trees, but some object to them on account of their relatively slow growth. Bur oaks are among the most popular shade trees at the Wheaton farm.

Oaks Have Long Roots.

Oaks may be started from acorns or by setting the young trees. They are more difficult to set than most kinds of trees because of the long taproots. A two inch oak sapling likely will have a taproot four or five feet long. The safest practice in starting oaks is to buy trees that have been trained in a nursery for about ten years.

Thornless locusts often are used as shade trees, especially on lawns, because grass grows under them better than under most trees. This is because the tops are more open, allowing more sunshine to reach the ground underneath the trees.

The sugar maple is another popular shade tree, but is not used as much as formerly because of its slow growth.

VICTIM'S WIDOW BARES MONTHS OF TERRORISM

New Threats to Shuler's Brother Revealed.

ous. I tried to recognize them, but they were always different."

The conversation, Mrs. Shuler said, would go like this:

Q.—Is Ed in? A.—No.

Q.—What time will he be in? A.—Who's calling, please?

Q.—Well, you wouldn't know me. Where is he? A.—Well, who is it?

Q.—I work with Ed down at the building. What shift is he working tonight? A.—I'm not sure.

Q.—Well, don't you know what time he'll be home? A.—No. He may have to work overtime. What did you say your name was?

Q.—I'm a friend of Ed's. Can I reach him at the Barclay? A.—You must have a name.

Husband Gets Same Calls.

"Ed was getting the same kind of calls at the Barclay and threats, too," she said. "They went like this:

Q.—What time do you get off work tonight? A.—I'm not sure.

Q.—Are you going home by train or street car? A.—Who is this?

The callers, Mrs. Shuler said, invariably would reply to questions about their identity, "O, just a friend."

The calls kept coming, she said, though she and her husband moved from place to place to avoid them and after Shuler had lost his place at the Barclay and had gone to work in the City National bank building, 208 South La Salle street, where he was employed when he was slain. Mrs. Shuler blamed union officials for her husband's loss of the Barclay job.

The telephone call to Russell Shuler last night came just after the dinner hour.

A squad was rushed to the home, for the man who telephoned refused to give his name, although he said he wished to see the brother to give information regarding the murder. Police are convinced the call was part of a plot against the brother by the same enemies who threatened Edward Shuler before killing him.

Pledges Hunt for Killers.

Renewal of the terrorism failed to shake Russell Shuler in his determination to bring the killer to justice if it costs his own life. He promised that at the proper time he will tell State's Attorney Courtney what his brother confided to him the night before the murder, when the brother said:

"Just in case I get it, I want you to know who did it."

Russell Shuler, a former member of the Chicago local, came to Chicago a short time ago from his home in Los Angeles. And he will not return, he said, until Edward's killer is captured.

After Phillips, the ex-convict, surrendered earlier in the day he was taken to the Shakespeare avenue station, where he was questioned by Mal Coghlan, assistant assigned by State's Attorney Courtney to investigate every phase of the murder, and by Capt. Henry O'Connell of the North avenue police.

After the questioning and investigation of Phillips' offered alibi for the night of the slaying, Mr. Coghlan said: "There is no evidence of his complicity up to the present time to warant booking him for murder."

Seeks to Prevent Parole Discharge.

Phillips was brought into the case by Miss Helene Leach, the slain Shuler's childhood friend and personal attorney. She was the first of his relatives and friends to risk the terrorists' vengeance by telling the events leading up to the murder.

Miss Leach is the daughter of Wren's rival in the union local's last election. It was in supporting Leach's effort to wrest the presidency from Wren, police say, that Shuler incurred the terrorists' anger.

Because Phillips was one of the men Shuler accused of beating him in a union meeting last October, Miss Leach sought in vain to prevent Phillips' discharge Feb. 16 from the parole that had freed him from prison.

Parole board records disclosed that Phillips was sent to prison after he and a comrade had taken $18,000 worth of diamonds at the point of a sawed-off shotgun from Elwick Phillips [unrelated to the gunman] in his store at 1429 Milwaukee avenue on Sept. 24, 1929.

Guilt Freely Admitted.

Phillips was paroled just five years later, on Sept. 24, 1934, despite these two circumstances: None of the loot was ever returned; the name of his accomplice was never divulged.

Phillips freely admitted his guilt to the parole board, but offered the following explanation: He and Frank Gusenberg, the gangster, had married sisters. After Gusenberg was shot in the celebrated St. Valentine's day massacre in 1929 the police became so annoying with their questioning about Gusenberg that there was nothing for Phillips to do but turn bandit, he said.

Because the parole board was told that Gusenberg had been involved in motion picture operators' troubles, Jack Miller, president of the Motion Picture Exhibitors association, was rejected as a parole sponsor for Phillips.

Elmer D. Miller, Forest Park theater owner; Dr. Raymond F. Elmer of 3435 Sheffield avenue, and James A. Ryan, secretary of the Asphalt Workers union, local 364, were accepted.

Dr. Elmer expressed surprise when told that he was listed as a sponsor for Phillips' parole. He said he had never known that his name was used and that he knew nothing of the case.

Phillips and two other men were taken before Judge Harold OConnell last Oct. 27 on charges of assault with intent to kill after the attack on Shuler in the union headquarters. The charge was reduced to assault and battery and the prisoners were acquitted. As Phillips' petition for discharge from parole was coming up soon, Miss Leach sought to prevent the discharge, which would free Phillips from further supervision by the board.

But tremendous pressure was brought to bear on the case, according to T. P. Sullivan, superintendent of the supervision of paroles. That pressure came from high union officials, it was disclosed yesterday by Owen G. Connorton, assistant superintendent of supervision. Officials of the operating engineers' union, as well as other unions, asked the discharge, Connorton said.

Shuler's funeral will be at 9:30 a. m. today at Holy Rosary Catholic church.

'MISS' GRANTED A DIVORCE AND BECOMES 'MRS.'

During her three years of married life she was known as Miss Ruth Johnson. That, she testified, was because her husband, Michael J. O'Connell, 32 years old, would not introduce her as his wife, nor acknowledge to their friends that they had been married. When she obtained a divorce yesterday before Judge Denis J. Normoyle she asked that she be allowed to retain her former husband's name. In the future, therefore, though unmarried, she will be known as Mrs. O'Connell.

Mrs. O'Connell, who is 26 years old and lives at 6233 Greenwood avenue, waived alimony but was granted a judgment for $400, representing funds she had advanced to her husband.

HUNT BURGLAR'S COMPANION.

Oak Park police yesterday were seeking a companion of Edgar V. Yingst, 17 years old, 7028 Cottage Grove avenue, who was arrested after ransacking the apartment of Misses Annis and Roberta Pigott at 12 Pleasant street, in the suburb.

LABOR RACKET MURDERS IN CHICAGO.

Labor union assassinations, unfortunately, are not entirely new, but in the last few years they have been increasing in number and unless entirely new tactics are employed by law enforcement officers they will continue to increase. The victim, whose murderers are now being sought by methods which get nowhere, was Edward Shuler, a member of Local 399 of the International Union of Operating Engineers.

Shuler was a young man who attended the University of Chicago and, becoming an engineer, had joined the union and taken part in its internal political controversies. He had opposed the president, Richard Wren, and last October was badly beaten up in consequence. He was slain last week. He had reason to think he would be killed and told his brother the name or names of men who could be suspected of the crime if he was found dead.

It isn't strange that the people who were in Shuler's confidence, even his brother, are reluctant to talk to the police and the prosecutors. They fear that they will be treated as he was if they testify freely. Miss Helene Leach, a daughter of Andrew Leach, who was a candidate against Wren for president, has named one of the men, an ex-convict and parolee, whom Shuler feared had been ordered to get him. Miss Leach revealed what she knew, although conscious, as she said, of the considerable peril to which she and her father might be exposed in consequence.

A few months ago Lloyd Rourke, a young man who had a contract for delivering laundry done at the Del Prado hotel, strikebound by service unions, was beaten to death. It was known that he had been warned he must break the contract and cease making the deliveries. The unlicensed car in which his murderer probably rode was known to the police. The driver of the car was picked up and identified by a citizen as the driver of a car which had forced him to the curb in a holdup, but later the complaining witness declined to sign a warant and the fellow went free, another case in which fear of consequences seems to have been decisive. The situation being what it is, it is natural for witnesses who are assured of no protection to be cautious.

The record of the last few years is murderous. In 1935 Thomas E. Maloy, business agent and strong arm boss of the Moving Picture Machine Operators' union, who himself had been accused of the murder in his office of a union member with whom he had a feud, was assassinated. This was in February and in May Clyde Osterberg, organizer of an independent moving picture operators' union, was murdered. In November, 1936, Michael Galvin, head of what was called the outlawed teamsters' union, was killed and in January of that year Mrs. Elsie Henneman, wife of George Henneman, secretary-treasury of Local 191 of the painters' union, was slain by a shotgun blast intended for her husband, with whom she was riding in their automobile. In January, 1937, Robert A. Shields, financial secretary of Painters' Union Local 184, was assassinated, and in October, 1937, John White, organizer for the United Automobile Workers, was killed. In November, 1937, F. C. Blacker, a motion picture organizer, was assassinated.

These are some of the murders which have been committed in the last few years after racketeers seized control of labor unions. The ordinary police routine has been ineffective. Police and prosecutors do not obtain evidence, although in each case motives and persons are plainly indicated. There is no mystery in any of these assassinations. The police records are full of everything except evidence which could be taken to an honest jury and return verdicts of guilty. The law enforcement officers know why a victim was killed and they know who had a reason for putting him out of the way. Nevertheless the murderers complete one crime with every reason to believe they can safely pick up the next victim in his turn.

Law enforcement virtually surrendered to the Capone and other gangs when they were exterminating each other, and until income tax frauds could be used as a means of convicting the survivors private justice was the only punishment the murderers had to fear.

New York and Cleveland, two cities badly injured by racketeers, were unable to make any defense against criminal organizations until they abandoned routine police methods and set up a new kind of prosecuting machinery specially designed to deal with the trouble. The trail of the criminals should never be given up. There should never be a closed case. As it is now a case is hot for a few weeks and then it is cold. If the murderers block the search while there is news of it in the papers they are safe as soon as attention has been diverted to something else.

MORE STREAMLINERS.

It would be quite safe to predict that the new streamlined locomotives purchased by the New York Central to pull the Twentieth Century Limited between Chicago and New York will prove themselves profitable investments. There is something inspiring about these powerful streamliners that attracts people to the right of way to watch them go through. This admiration not infrequently produces a desire to ride the train. Witness the case of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific's Hiawatha, the first of the streamlined steam locomotives. After three years of constant service there is no diminution in the number of sightseers that line the right of way to watch it pass, and it is still carrying capacity loads.

The statement that these new bullet-type engines are the fastest on the New York Central seems to carry an assurance that preparations for fourteen hour overnight service are practically complete. The Hudson-type engines that now haul the Century are having no difficulty in maintaining schedules, so why build a more powerful streamlined machine without this substantial improvement in the service that has been an acknowledged necessity ever since the advent of the air lines? The public has already been informed that modern lightweight trains built for high speeds are nearing completion in the shops of the Pullman company; therefore the announcement of the new spring timetables of both the New York Central and Pennsylvania will be awaited with interest.

WILL THE TRUTH COME TOO LATE?

Gov. Lehman of New York, though a supporter and for long a leading light of the New Deal, has made in the form of a letter to Senator Pat Harrison a formidable assault upon one of the principal bulwarks of the New Deal régime. He declares that "the independent sovereignty of the states is threatened by federal taxing policy" and that this country was organized on the theory and has prospered under a system of independent states with exclusive authority in many fields and with independent taxing power, a power not second to but on a parity with the federal government itself. Yet under federal taxing power "for every practical purpose the rates of the state estate taxes will be limited to one-sixth the federal rates in the various brackets." "Under such conditions if one of two governments, having equal concurrent jurisdiction to levy a tax, actually monopolizes a field to the exclusion or the near exclusion of the other, it may follow that the other government will be destroyed or at least starved into impotency."

This is but one aspect of the tendency to centralization which, while heedlessly planted before the coming of the present régime, has been carried deliberately to a stage that alarms many of the most faithful supporters of the New Deal. Gov. Lehman is one of the most distinguished of these, and his protest, with other signs of rebellion among public men who have given countenance to the régime and public men like Senator Capper whose heterodoxy in public finance has at last been alarmed by the prospect of national bankruptcy, inspires the hope that enlightenment may proceed fast enough to induce congress to draw back from impending national disaster before it is too late. It is not a strong hope, but if Democrats of the influence of Gov. Lehman, whose warnings cannot be brushed aside as partisan, have at last faced the logic of present conditions there is a chance that congress will face it and its responsibility to the nation.

KEEPING OUT OF WAR.

The latest proposal to keep us out of war is that of Congressman Kniffin of Ohio, who wants to establish by a law a "naval frontier" or line beyond which our fleet should never be allowed to move. The suggestion is not likely to be adopted, fortunately for the security of the United States, but it is an interesting addition to our museum of freak devices to automatically prevent the American government and people from doing what the proponents regard as undesirable. The search for a foolproof government goes on interminably, producing a growing collection of foolish proposals which the Library of Congress or some other institution ought to preserve, tabulate, and keep on display.

The urge for avoidance of war has been fruitful in these devices from the earliest days of the republic. Even so able and eminent a man as Jefferson was a contributor. He didn't want a navy and offered as a substitute gunboats that would remain in our harbors and coastal waters. He too wanted a "naval frontier" which he thought would automatically keep us out of trouble. A prominent publicist of our own day wanted to abolish our navy and rely upon large merchant ships which in time of war would be armed each with one huge cannon. This would save the expense of naval upkeep in peace, while in war his big guns, he assured us, would outrange any guns mounted on naval ships and his merchant monsters would outpace all existing battleships. Mr. Carnegie scorned all military preparedness on land and declared that if America were invaded we ought to lure the enemy into the interior, where they would be surrounded and destroyed by a citizen army sprung from the soil.

These were not foolish men in matters to which they had given informed reflection, but they were seduced by the American propensity to seek short cuts and automatic devices. This propensity has been useful when corrected or directed by knowledge and experience. But it makes easy going for quacks in all fields, not excluding government.

Just now we are not unnaturally anxious to better our protection from foolish government, present and future. One of the best ways to further that highly desirable purpose is not to give too much power and too many responsibilities to government. But that can go too far and will not, even at best, meet all the possibilities of folly. No device can save us from the responsibility of choosing wise men to govern. There is no foolproof system.

Editorial of the Day

[Baltimore Evening Sun.]

It is one of the duties of newspaper editors to read all sorts of Tendenz journals, including the communist newspapers and magazines. We approach this duty ordinarily with sufficient courage and resolution, but now and then we fall a bit behind the procession. Last night, long after all respectable people had gone to bed, we came at long last to the Red and pink publications of six or seven weeks ago. From them we gathered the following:

That the Spanish Reds were about to gird up their loins and heave Franco into the sea.

That the Rome-Berlin axis was running hot, and Mussolini was ready to be fetched by the English.

That Hitler was going down hill and would not dare attempt any shenanigans in Austria.

That the Japanese parliament was in full revolt against the war in China and preparing to put an end to it.

That the evidence amassed against the old Bolsheviks awaiting trial in Russia would convince every fair man of their guilt.

Anschluss.

A young man riding on the "L" wanted the telephone number of a young woman with whom he fell into conversation. The conversation had disclosed that she was German American—he of Austrian Jewish origin. The girl parried, saying she would give it to him if he would buy a ticket for the Chicago Singverein at Orchestra hall tomorrow night.

THE EASTER PENITENT.

She is so pretty as she goes
To penitential prayer,
I can but wonder if she knows
That she is very fair.

Are all her thoughts upon her book,
Her sins and sacrifice?
Or does she think how she may look
And if her gown is nice?

Is she in really solemn mood,
Does she the world despise;
Her soul austere in solitude,
Or has she twinkling eyes?

At last she lifts her gaze to mine,
For shame I cannot speak.
I see a pearly teardrop shine
And fall upon her cheek.

How could I doubt one moment where Her Lenten thoughts were at?
"To think," she sobs, "I've got to wear
My last year's Easter hat!"

Peter Fairfax Meyer.

A TALE THAT CONCERNS a university sophomore football player has just come to light. He failed in one subject last fall (which in itself was remarkable, as he is pretty dumb); his instructor allowed him a second "special" examination, and when he failed in that, a third. When the athlete looked at the exam questions he exclaimed: "How do you expect me to pass this course when you keep changing the questions on me all the time?"

"Eight, Stack.....Ten, Pass."

A girl answered the advertisment of a woman looking for domestic help, according to Martha Crane. "What wages do you expect," the prospective employer inquired. "Eight, stack.....ten, pass," the girl replied. It developed she meant eight dollars if the meals were served family style—plates stacked before the place of the head of the house at table, and ten if she were required to serve.

From a Chinese Girl at Nanking U. Hospital.

This letter is going by gunboat from the American embassy, I think, as there is no transportation between Nanking and Shanghai—railway blown up. . . . Nanking is badly burnt out by the Japanese soldiers and wantonly destroyed. . . . The main business street is a sight and every store in the city has been plundered. . . . I chose to stay here, the home being mission property. Unfortunately food supplies were scarce, the markets closed, and I wasn't foresighted enough to lay in rice. . . . For days the heavy rumble of artillery trucks with soldiers shook the city. Dec. 20 the Chinese troops were driven out of the city, massacred and floated down the Yangtze.

I existed with no food for about a week, then slipped out several time to forage. I couldn't go in any direction without running into corpses, right on the streets and in the alleys. Japanese soldiers in their dun-colored uniforms trimmed with red were everywhere. Three soldiers came into the home one day. One of them threatened me with a bayonet, and started to undress me. They walked off with my pen and pencil and a few American dimes.

. . . Here at the hospital food is terribly scarce. We live on congo and cabbage; the last two weeks we had beef (we hope it was that). Our house has been either burned or destroyed. . . . The first few days at the hospital were informing. We had several bombed patients. We also treated a girl who had had her face sliced up with a bayonet by a Japanese soldier. I consider myself fortunate to have escaped, although the soldier aimed at my heart and not my face. Most of the patients come from the refugee camps and have to return. . . . Our ambulance driver said they collected 800 bodies in the city two Sundays ago. It will take at least 20 years to rebuild Nanking. . . . The shopping mart is now improvised stalls and shacks. The stuff is mostly loot, but the nurses keep buying it. I had a chance to get eight Red Seal records, large size, for a dollar Mex. (about 30 cents gold), Hamlet's Soliloquy, Parsifal, second and fourth movements, etc. There is a good deal of beautiful china for sale. . . . No news has come through since October. Half of love is growing along with people. This brings love and many prayers.

We first remember hearing Mr. Sandburg sing, to guitar accompaniment, some of his salty folk songs years ago at evening gatherings of the American Economic society, so-called on the brass plate on the door of the basement "clubroom" where members and guests gathered for music and conversation. And once he—or Alfred MacArthur—brought John Lomax, famous singer of cowboy songs.

HYGIENE OF THE FEET IN DIABETES.

THOSE who are afflicted with diabetes have no doubt been cautioned over and over again that special care of the skin is essential. As a characteristic of the malady, resistance is lowered and hence infections are far more likely to ensue. Boils, carbuncles, and pustules should be handled promptly, as inflammation is prone to extend with disastrous results.

The feet, too, must receive particular attention, as the circulation to these parts may be embarrassed to such an extent that gangrene [death of the tissues] may be suffered. But extra vigilance, which should be observed as soon as the disease is recognized, will prevent most of these troubles.

Strangely enough, the average individual gives his pedal extremities but scant consideration, even though at times they may call loudly for help. Corns, bunions, and weakened arches abound. We groom finger nails assiduously and give an extraordinary amount of time to the complexion and the hair, but the walking apparatus—as long as it does not protest too vociferously and because it is covered up and out of sight—is all too often neglected. With many the circulation is below par; with others some slight deformity, long disregarded, gives rise to so much discomfort that one's disposition may be affected.

But every diabetic must follow rules of good foot hygiene as a lifesaving procedure. Corns and calluses must be done away with. While home treatment may be satisfactory, it is far wiser to consult a skilled chiropodist, one who understands that the healing of the epidermis in these patients is a delicate matter.

Here are some suggestions that every one [as well as diabetics] may heed:

1. Use a daily bath with soap and warm water. Do not rub vigorously. Dry thoroughly by means of patting.
2. Anoint the feet with lanolin or cocoanut oil. If the skin is very soft rubbing alcohol or extract of witch hazel may be employed.
3. Observe great precision in cutting the nails. Trim straight across.
4. Keep toes that are inclined to rub together separated with a tuft of wool or very soft paper tissue.
5. Select shoes so that all pressure points may be avoided.
6. Wear a pair of clean socks daily without holes or rough darns.
7. Do not step on the floor barefooted.
8. Shun crossing the legs, as this is likely to interfere with the circulation.

If, despite all precautions, an area of redness or a blister develops, your physician should be consulted at once. He will endeavor to hold the blood sugar at a normal level constantly. It is the up and down range—too much or too little glucose in the blood—which is menacing. This, with local treatment of the lesion, will bring about healing in most instances.

Should the infection insist upon spreading, more radical procedures, even the amputation of a toe, may be necessary. We should recall that wet or moist dressings—bad for the cuticle—are especially so for the victim of sugar disease. They may soften and macerate the tissues and lower their tone. Ointments are nearly always preferable, and one containing zinc oxide is a useful preparation.

When the extremities are cold at night, loose woolen bed socks may be worn. One of the worst infections in my experience was that which followed the heedless use of a hot water bottle. Another was a 60 year old housewife who had controled her disease fairly well for a dozen years. On one occasion she applied corn medicine and in peeling off the dead layers some bleeding occurred. Infection developed and progressed rapidly, requiring the drainage of a sizable abscess. Fortunately her primary ailment was quite amenable to treatment, otherwise she might not have escaped so easily.

SURGICAL TREATMENT BEST.

R. W. writes: I have been told that I have two gallstones. As I am not keen on an operation, I would appreciate answers to the following:

1. Is there any dietary or medicinal cure for gallstones?
2. Are there different kinds of gallstones or are they all the same?
3. Is the cause of their formation definitly known, or are the various opinions merely speculative?
4. Can one live without dieting after a gall bladder removal?
5. Can gallstones affect the right kidney, causing pain?

REPLY.

1. Surgical intervention is the only treatment of definite value, although solvents have been tried with doubtful success. In many cases, if the invadors are not causing symptoms, they may be left alone.
2. Much the same. As a rule, they consist of cholesterol plus bile salts.
3. Obesity, sedentary habits, excesses in eating and drinking, a high fat intake, constipation, and infection are possible factors.
4. Reduction in the amount of fat in the diet is suggested. Some precautions are advised but none that amount to deprivation.
5. Probably not, unless the gall bladder is clearly distended and has affected neighboring structures. The kidney lies back of the abdominal cavity.

FEAR FEEDS ON FEAR.

E. L. writes: I fear that I am going insane. I am 22 years old. I cannot stand hearing people talk about insanity. There is no reason why I should have this fear. I am in good health, but this fear is telling on me. I cannot sleep nights and don't know what to do.

REPLY.

You need a course in mental hygiene. There are many physicians who specialize in psychiatry and every library has good books on living without fear. It may comfort you to know that insane people are not aware that such an infirmity is impending. I never have known of one possessed of a fear of insanity who actually lost his mind.

HAVE LUNGS X-RAYED.

R. L. writes: Blood appears occasionally in coughed up sputum. There also is a copious discharge from the nose. Does this signify tuberculosis?

REPLY.

Possibly; not always. Have the lungs X-rayed and the sputum examined for tubercle bacilli.

HEART OR LIVER DISEASE.

S. M. writes: What is the cause of an enlarged liver?

REPLY.

FOOTNOTE ON FINANCIAL MORALITY.

Rockford, Ill., March 24.—The Supreme court of Illinois has decided in the case of Herlihy vs. Nudelman, in December, 1937, that building contractors were not liable for sales tax when the articles sold became changed in form in the erection or improvement of the building.

The state department of finance asked for a rehearing of the case, which prevented the decision from becoming published in the advance sheets. In February of this year the Supreme court denied the petition for rehearing, and the opinion of the Supreme court thereby became final.

Inasmuch as Mr. Nudelman, the director of the state department of finance, was a party to the suit before the Supreme court, he had knowledge of the decision of the court in December, whereas persons who were not before the court had no such knowledge. Nevertheless, the director of finance continued to accept sales tax payments from contractors, knowing that the Supreme court had declared them to be illegal.

No provision has been made for the return of the money illegally collected by the department of finance, and the department not only refuses to return the money but is now attempting to assess penalties on contractors for failure to file returns, even though the returns were unnecessary, and the collection of the money based on the returns was illegal.

It would seem that common business honesty would require that where the department of finance knew that the Supreme court had rendered a decision that the tax was uncollectible, it would have either returned the tax at once or at least placed it in a special fund until the decision of the Supreme court became final after the refusal to grant a rehearing, and then returned it.

HELIUM FOR GERMANY.

Chicago, March 25.—Your editor is absolutely right in his articles about "Helium For Germany." It certainly would be stupid to furnish Germany with helium, three times the quantity necessary to fill a Zeppelin, just on the pledge that the helium will be used only for commercial purposes. Is there any pledge given in recent years by Germany to foreign countries which has not been broken?

Austria was promised independence, Czechoslovakia was promised peace and safety, France was assured that no territorial questions exist between Germany and her. And look at the propaganda and preparations which are going on. The time is nearing when the German bund will start to point out by the statistics that by numerical proportion the Germans have a right to claim at least two undersecretary positions in the government at Washington. A. A. H.

WHAT HATS?

Chicago, March 24.—Just a few words to let you know that the other day I acquired a new position. I am now employed in a ladies' hat shoppe where my duties are very simple. When a customer comes in all I have to do is to hold her down while a saleslady places a new hat on the purchaser's head.

After all, you really don't think that our American women put those hats on their heads voluntarily, do you?

INDIVIDUALISM.

Chicago, March 25.—Now that the New Deal is taking away so much of our individualism, it would be very timely to print the proven fact that individualism is the heart and soul of America!

LEON ARNOLD MULLER.

SOME PREFER WAR.

Chicago, March 24.—After long and careful consideration, I have evolved a plan to insure world peace. Let the women run the world. Don't laugh too soon: The best laughs are said to the later ones. If women ran the world, there would be a heap of fuss-budgeting about little things of small importance. There would have to be an international language to keep the delegates to conferences [of course there would be countless conferences!] from bursting with all the conversation they had to give away.

The delegates might start by discussing war, as a conventional gesture, but they would end by swapping receipts, new hair-dos, addresses of dressmakers, hints on how to handle recalcitrant cooks, the best method of treating little Johnny's temper tantrums, and how to clean papa's suede hunting jacket after he's spent a blissful holiday apparently wallowing in mud. The questions they came there to discuss might never be settled, but the ladies would be far too busy with really important matters ever to get around to fighting a war.

You may ask, what would the men do? Well, they could take over woman's lot, to wait and pray or what is it? While waiting they could wash the kids' faces, wipe their noses, change their pants, and answer their questions; they could buy the food and cook the meals and wash the dishes and scrub the floors and darn the socks, and if they had any time left over maybe they could catch up on their praying. Men without families could work full time turning out all the furniture, machinery, clothes, etc., for which world armament budgets would be spent. If they still had time on their hands, they could go fishing, a sport which men profess to enjoy, thereby proving their antisocial proclivities. It would make them all feel like presidents. And they could clean their own darn hunting jackets.

In return for contributing this priceless and foolproof plan, I ask only one boon: I want to be a delegate to that first conference. Maybe somebody there will know how to clean a hunting jacket.

FAST TRAINS.

New York, March 24.—Your Mr. Darrah makes the statement that the British railroads lead the world with trains operating at an average speed of 60 miles per hour or over, with a daily mileage of 11,228. If the latter figure is correct, Mr. Darrah is only 400 per cent wrong. Shortly after the first of the year 38,532 miles were operated daily on American railroads at an average of 60 miles or more between operating stops. In addition, 64 runs on weekly and semi-weekly schedules totaled 7,710 miles. The latter figure has since been increased by the addition of several fast trains to transcontinental service. MOTHERS' PENSION.

Maywood, Ill., March 22.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Will you please advise me as to whether there is a mother's pension in effect in Illinois? I am told that no pensions are being paid to mothers with only one child. My husband died almost three years ago. My boy was 3 years old last December. Although I am employed, my salary is not sufficient. E. W.

Section 332 of chapter 23 of the Illinois revised statutes lists the following conditions for granting the so-called "mother's pension":

1. The children must be living with the mother.
2. It must be for their welfare to remain at home.
3. The relief must make the difference between committing the children to an institution and enabling the mother to remain at home.
4. The mother must be a proper person.
5. The relief must be needed to save the children from neglect.
6. The mother's property must not exceed $1,000.
7. She must have resided in this county one year.
8. She must have no relatives obliged and able to support.

Due to shortage of funds there is a waiting list of about 1,500 cases involving a time lag of one and one-half to two years. No applications are being taken where there is only one child under 16 nor in cases where the husband has deserted or is incapacitated and in the home, so that the available funds are concentrated on widows and women whose husbands are in institutions because of incapacities.

TAX SALES.

Chicago, March 19.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Is it possible for any one to buy property from the city on property delinquent in taxes?

2. We have a small cottage in view which was owned by parents who have passed away leaving two grown children.

3. If so, what steps should be taken in securing information?

4. Does the city have a delinquent tax department? J. H.

1. It is possible to buy in at tax sales, but in general, what is obtained is a mere cloud on the title rather than a clear title. We advise you not to embark on such a course without first employing an attorney.

2-3. See 1.

4. By inquiring at the office of the county clerk, in the County building, you can ascertain how the tax sales are handled.

DRAFT CITY LAW TO PUSH AIRPORT EXPANSION JOB

Outlines Swap for Rail Right of Way.

Two city council committees sitting jointly yesterday drew up a proposed ordinance giving the city legal authority to carry out the Chicago airport expansion program. The bill will be ready for presentation at the council meeting tomorrow, but it probably will not be passed until the meeting now scheduled for April 6, the aldermen indicated.

Under terms of this proposed ordinance the city is empowered to acquire by purchase or condemnation a strip of land a mile and a half long and 46 feet wide around the airport area which is bounded by 55th and 63d streets, and Cicero and Central avenues. The new right-of-way is to be traded to the Chicago and Western Indiana railroad for the existing right-of-way that bisects the flying field tract along the line of 59th street.

Cost Limited to $805,075.

The maximum cost of the airport extension plan is fixed at $805,075. Assistant Corporation Counsel Arthur Sullivan, who will represent the city in all negotiations, listed the cost items as follows:

Construction	294,400
New switching plant	136,270
Increased annual track costs	207,647
Total	$848,317
Minus credit for salvage	43,242
Total cost to city	$805,075

The item given as increased annual track costs represents a capitalization of these costs which will amount roughly to $8,400 each year, Sullivan said. The city's credit for salvage arises out of the savings in rails, ties, and signals which will be made when the present tracks across the airport are torn out.

Speedy Action Predicted.

The proposed ordinance will be published at the meeting tomorrow. Then the officers of the Bankers' Trust company of New York, mortgage holder for the C. & W. I., will study it. Attorney J. R. Barse, general counsel for the C. & W. I., who sat in with the aldermen yesterday, said he anticipated no delays from the trustee. Sullivan said that as soon as the trustee approves the proposed ordinance, it can be passed and the track removal begun immediately.

A total of 145 separate parcels of property must be purchased or condemned for the new right of way. The first of these is a 2.78 acre plot owned by Raymond E. Herman, LaSalle street real estate broker. Negotiations over this parcel are to begin today before Judge Evan A. Evans of the Federal Circuit Court of Appeals.

SECOND RAPIST SOUGHT AFTER PAL CONFESSES

Police were searching the near northwest side last night for a young hoodlum who with Theodore Glowa, 19 years old, 1203 Chicago avenue, raped a woman in her home Sunday night. She is Miss Mazie Zialkowski, 37 years old, 1286 North Paulina street.

Theodore Glowa.

Glowa and his companion broke into Miss Zialkowski's home while she was sleeping, menaced her with a revolver, and then attacked her. Not long afterward Policeman Edward Kennedy and John McDonnell of the North Racine avenue station caught Glowa as he was trying to break into a flat at 1357 Huron street.

He was identified as one of the rapists by Miss Zialkowski. He admitted the charge, and yesterday repeated his confession to Lieut. Otto Erlanson of the sex offense bureau.

BERWYN POLICE LEARNING LAW FROM LAWYER

They were looking for Robert Hladik again yesterday. Hladik, who is an attorney with offices at 139 North Clark street, was arrested March 9 on a charge of speeding in Berwyn. He sped, he said, because the police car that was overhauling him had no license plates and he thought it was a bandit car. When Hladik learned his mistake he asked warants on license charges for the policemen, Edward Schwander and Frank Krizek.

Yesterday, however, the attorney said he had decided to forget about the warants, but asked to see the complaint against himself. He looked at the document, smiled in a satisfied fashion and tossed it down. "It's not signed," he said, and walked out of Magistrate Frank Pavek's court. The policemen hastily remedied the blunder, but Hladik had gone.

Port Officials Release Baby Sent to U. S. for Adoption

New York, March 28.—[Special.]—Joan Jensen, 6 months old, who was sent over the ocean by her parents in Norway to be adopted by an aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Szerre Aleksadersen of Brooklyn, was released to the Aleksadersons tonight after being detained for a day by immigration officials. The infant arrived yesterday on the Norwegian-American liner Bergensfjord under the care of a stewardess. Government agents refused to permit the infants entry until the relatives showed they had legally adopted her and could afford to take care of her.

HOW BIG NAMES SOMETIMES FAIL TO MAKE BIG HIT

Critic Cites Benny-Allen Sunday Show.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

If Jack Benny's visit to New York proved anything it was this: Big names do not always mean a good radio show. Fred Allen, Kate Smith, Abe Lyman, and Robert Ripley were all on hand Sunday night—but they all appeared to hold back. Allen, La Smith, and Ripley, of course, have their own shows. So perhaps they weren't wasting their best material. Allen's encounters with Benny heretofore have had a lot of sparkle but the best crack Fred was able to get off this time was a variation of one used before: "I'll hit you on your head so hard that you'll be tying your shoes with your teeth."

Jack let Ripley have one good line: "Is it true," he inquired of Jack, "that in pictures you wear a silver fox toupee?"

Charlie McCarthy's singing associate, John Carter, had a good day Sunday. Journeying across the continent to sing in the Metropolitan Opera auditions in New York he came off a winner and was awarded a prize of $1,000 as well as a contract with the opera company. Another winner was Leonard Warren, a Bronx baritone. Phil Duey, regularly heard on the air, and Kathleen Kersting were awarded honorable mention.

The new remote control and clock devices for radio receivers will win larger audiences for the lesser known programs, E. H. Scott, Chicago radio maker, on Sunday told a group of Los Angeles technical experts.

"The present large audiences of well-ballyhooed programs," Mr. Scott stated, "are largely the result of inertia. The listener sets the receiver for a certain program and even if it proves indifferent will not get up from an armchair to seek a better one."

With touch button control and preselecting clocks, Mr. Scott expects radio listening habits to be revolutionized in two years.

Mrs. Lavinia S. Schwartz, former president of the Chicago Woman's Aid and long active in civic and social service affairs, has been named director of the newly organized educational department of WBBM. Mrs. Schwartz will have charge of all local educational broadcasts and all women's programs under supervision of Hal Burnett, public affairs director.

Kay Kyser is bringing his mother to New York from Rocky Mount, N. C., for his coast to coast premiere on WMAQ-NBC tomorrow night. Kay's new sponsored show has had its name changed once more and for the present at least is to be called Kay Kyser's Musical Class and Dance.

The Chicago local of the American Federation of Radio Artists has voted to uphold its board of directors in their action prohibiting association with the recently organized Radio Central Casting agency. AFRA directors claim the broadcasters and their production directors are the only agencies needed for calling performers when needed.

GERMAN COUSINS WIN FRED BOYER ESTATE OF $455,000

After geneological research that led into eighteenth century records, two heirs to the $455,716 estate of Fred Boyer, Chicago shade manufacturer, were established yesterday by Probate Judge John F. O'Connell.

The heirs are his first cousins, Otto Friedrich Johan Schultze and his brother, Emil Julius Carl Adolph Schultze of Cologne, Germany. Judge O'Connell's order cut off nearly a score of second cousins who live in this country and Europe. Among these is Fred Meyer, 832 South 12th avenue, Maywood, administrator of the estate.

The research was conducted by a special commissioner, Irwin N. Walker, who was awarded a fee of $5,936, and the law firm of Ring, Uhlir & Cuchna. Mr. Boyer, who died in May, 1937, left no will.

U. S. LABOR BOARD REJECTS PLEA OF C.I.O. RADIO UNION

A petition of the American Radio Telegraphists association, a C. I. O. affiliate, seeking to have itself recognized as sole bargaining agent with the Columbia Broadcasting system in New York, has been denied by the national labor relations board. A copy of the decision was received in Chicago yesterday by the Associated Broadcast Technicians, with which engineers at WBBM, WLS, WHIP, and WWAE are affiliated.

The decision recognizes the Associated Broadcast Technicians, which has no affiliation with either C. I. O. or the A. F. of L. as the bargaining agent for the network technicians, a position which it has held for four years. The C. I. O. affiliate charged that the independent organization was a company union.

Dinghy Owners Will Race for Frostbite Cup

BY JUDITH CASS.

ALTHOUGH the breezes still are chilly, the spring sunshine is bright, and Chicago sailors who indulge in the cool sport of autumn and spring sailing, which is called Frostbiting, are looking forward to the first annual spring regatta for the Mitchell Frostbite trophy, to be held next week-end at the Chicago Yacht club in Belmont harbor.

The regatta is open to members of the North American Dinghy association, but it is likely that the event, this year at least, will be more local than national, for only locally owned boats have been entered so far. There will be four races on Saturday, starting at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon, and six races on Sunday, starting at 11 o'clock. Second and third prizes will be awarded, in addition to the trophy, and there will be first, second, and third prizes for the crews as well as for the skippers of the winning boats.

The Frostbiting season here starts in October and lasts until the middle of December, then starts again when the ice is out of the water, and lasts until June. In the east Frostbiters sail all winter, unhampered by ice.

Lockwood M. Pirie and Leeds Mitchell Jr. are two of Chicago's first and most enthusiastic Frostbiters. Henry Rubinkam will skipper Mr. Mitchell's boat next week-end, for the latter is the donor of the trophy, so will not be competing for it. John T. Snite is president of the Chicago chapter of the N. A. D. A.

Among those who have entered their dinghys in the regatta in addition to Mr. Pirie and Mr. Rubinkam are Tempel Smith, Edward Schnabel Jr., Mrs. William B. Goltra, David Chapman, Jack Ritchie, who will sail Commodore Arthur Metz's boat, and Anson Meanor.

William Alden Littles Are Parents of Son.

Mr. and Mrs. William Alden Little [Dorothy Dickinson] became the parents of a son at St. Luke's hospital yesterday. The baby, who will be named for his father, is the first grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Alden H. Little. He is the second grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Francis R. Dickinson whose other daughter, Mrs. Gilbert H. Robinson [Alice May Dickinson] and Mr. Robinson became the parents of a son several weeks ago. Through their mothers, both babies are fifth generation Chicagoans, the great-great-grandmother of the babies being the first Mrs. William Gold Hibbard.

Two Parish Guilds Plan Easter Sales.

Plans for two Easter sales that are a delightful part of each spring are under way by the Woman's Guild of Christ Episcopal church in Winnetka and by the Parish Guild of the Church of the Holy Spirit in Lake Forest. Both sales will be held on the day before Easter.

The Woman's Guild of Christ Episcopal church has chosen "Springtime in Brittany" as an appropriate theme for its sale this year which will be held in the auditorium of the parish house. The decorations will be in keeping with the theme as a market square has been planned with three cafés constructed in the auditorium.

Luncheon and tea will be served at gayly decorated tables in the cafés and the sale, which opens at 10 o'clock in the morning and lasts until 6 o'clock in the evening, will be conducted in the open market place.

One of the unusual features of the sale will be the decorative tables set by the guild with the linens that are

Looking at Hollywood
By Ed Sullivan

The Readers Write

Hollywood, Cal., March 28.—Dear Ed: I saw this in Kendall Banning's "West Point Today," and thought you might like to use it in one of those "Listen, Kids," columns you do. It is the letter of a father to his son, on the week of his entrance into West Point: "The difference between an ordinary horse and a thoroughbred, son, is shown in the way he takes the jumps. If the jump is hard, the ordinary horse will balk or shy, or just quit. But the thoroughbred will go straight at the hurdle and do the best he can, even though he breaks his neck in the attempt. Now is the time to show the stuff that's in you."

Sincerely,
WAYNE MORRIS.

My dear Mr. Sullivan: You were good enough recently to give Rondo Hatton, an old Tampa boy, a boost in your column as the result of his splendid performance in "In Old Chicago." I thought you'd be interested to know that when the picture played here, we set aside the week as Rondo Hatton week to express our pride in a local boy who made good in Hollywood. We want you to know that we appreciated very much your recognition of him in the column. Best wishes always.

Sincerely,
R. E. L. CHANCEY,
Mayor, Tampa, Fla.

Dear Mr. Mayor: If you have any more down home as good as Hatton, send 'em along.—E. S.

Dear Ed: The Grand street boys are giving a 60th birthday party to Bill Robinson on April 3. I'm sure that you'd attend if you could, but knowing that is impossible, we would like to have greetings to Bill from you for the souvenir program. Deadline is this week.

JONAH J. GOLDSTEIN.

Dear Pudge: There have been a great array of blackbirds who have flown star high in the theatrical skies—Bert Williams, Florence Mills, Duke Ellington, Cab Calloway. Yet I doubt that any Negro performer has done so much to honor his race and his profession as Bill Robinson. Bill isn't 59 or 60: he's 100 per cent. It fills you with dismay to think that the beat of those talented feet ever will be lost to the stage. Tops in taps, tops in charity, tops with the girl he married so many vaudeville dates ago. No grander guy ever was honored by the Grand street guys. —E. S.

Dear Mr. Sullivan: Just had to get this out of my system. What does MGM intend to do with Allan Jones after he has demonstrated his ability and appeal in "Show Boat," "A Night at the Opera," and "Firefly"? Is his only mistake being under contract to the same studio which has Nelson Eddy under contract, and so burled under poor pictures or kept idle? Jones is a far better actor, and a hundred times more appealing. Eddy is a splendid artist, but how stonily wooden! And about Dubuque's own capable actress, Margaret Lindsay—Warners' isn't doing right by her.

L. M., Dubuque, Ia.

Dear Mr. Sullivan: Please read this letter through before you throw it away. I met Martha Raye in New York while I was getting her autograph, and she told me I had a good personality and I also think I could be in the movies. I have heard of the hardships of Hollywood, but I am confident I could make a go of it. My age is nearly 14 and I am a little short for my age. Ask Miss Raye if she remembers the little boy who smiled at her at Grand Central station. Have them send some talent scouts right away to Charlotte, N. C.

G. L., Charlotte, N. C.

Dear youngster: I chenged your initial so your parents wouldn't give you a spanking. After you finish high school, and college, send me another letter.—E. S.

Dear Mr. Sullivan: Just a note to thank you for your nice article—it did clear up so many things that might have been misunderstood. We had a lovely tour and met many new friends, but are happy to be back home again. Our sincere thanks.

MRS. RUTH WITHERS AND JANE.

Dear Mr. Sullivan: Your article about Spencer Tracy and discipline, entitled "Listen, Kids," left me with a nice clean taste in my mouth, after reading it. I read it to my classes and feel that they got a character lesson without realizing it. Why can't you write a daily line "Listen, Kids," a daily one line sermon, of comparable quality? Our boys need it and we oldsters will profit by recognizing disciplinary methods of successful leaders.

A TEACHER,
Montefiore Special School,
City of Chicago.

Dear Mr. Sullivan: You are writing drivel. In your column you say that Nancy Carroll is the most attractive red headed actress in Hollywood, which is so much rot. How can you compare her with Jeanette MacDonald, whose hair is also red, because there is no comparison there at all. Miss MacDonald is the most attractive of all actresses, no less redheads. WALTER HAWRYLUK.

Dear Walt: G'wan. I'll mow you down.—E. S.

Deserting the usual ministerial counsel to distraught business and professional men, Archbishop Derwyn T. Owen, of Toronto, primus of the Anglican church of Canada, told them yesterday to get an old fashioned sawbuck, and bucksaw and saw wood. At least that was his advise to 75 members of the Episcopal Church club of Chicago at the Hotel Sherman following his noonday Lenten sermon at the Harris theater.

"I find sawing wood not only a fine execise but an excellent way to get one's mind off his troubles," said Archbishop Owen. "I recommend sawing wood to you business men who are faced with many difficulties in these days of flux and change."

Archbishop Owen explained that he was not speaking figuratively about sawing wood but about real wood and an honest bucksaw. But he did not entirely rule out the figurative application if his hearers knew about sawing wood by really sawing wood.

"I mean sawing wood actually as well as figuratively," he explained. "In the history of the development of the American continent there are many periods when our fathers were in trouble. Those who came through were the ones who sawed wood and relied on the homely traits of honesty, prayer, faith, and belief in the future."

Good Morning!

A mediocre production this.

The not particularly interesting story was, apparently, adapted in haste for the sole purpose of exploiting Bobby Breen. The acting is unremarkable. The music is nothing to sing about, and, on several occasions, Master Breen's voice shows decided signs of strain.

He is seen as Billy Coulter, an orphan, who with a small pal of Hawaiian extraction [pronounce the "w" like a "v"—at least that's the way they do it in the picture]—stows away on a liner bound for Hawaii. . . . A kindly member of the ship's band [Ned Sparks] is good to the boys. . . . Billy, heard singing in Strings' quarters, is discovered by the captain. He takes an interest in the lads and permits Billy to sing at the ship's concerts. . . . It is understood, however, that the little chap shall return to New York on the return voyage where Capt. O'Hare will hand him over to proper authorities.

A young naval officer, carrying important government papers, is traveling to Hawaii with his wife. Also on board is a villain who craves the papers. . . . To make a long story short—the boys escape the ship. After numerous melodramatic adventures in Hawaii Billy is instrumental in saving the papers. He endears himself to the right people and insures for himself a pleasant and profitable future. . . .

The Housewife

Some women like to clean their living and dining room rugs themselves and, as it's hard work lifting these heavy floor coverings, they prefer to use something they can apply to the rug as it lies on the floor. One cleaner we came across recently appeals to many housewives, for it costs only about 25 cents to do a room size rug with it. And its makers guarantee it's harmless to any fabric or color that soap and water alone will not injure, for it contains no harmful chemicals, ether, or ammonia.

It comes in a bottle, already mixed. You do not add any soap. With it comes a close tufted brush with a long handle. You simply dip this brush into the liquid and go over your rug. The process is almost as simple as sweeping. Full directions come with each bottle of the rug cleaner. EDITH WEIGLE.

Germani Puts Real Tingle in Smug Audience

BY CECIL SMITH.

In one of the most magnificent organ recitals on record, Fernando Germani, famous Italian organist, aroused a University of Chicago audience to an uncommon pitch of enthusiasm last evening. University audiences are characteristically cool toward even the most spectacular musical performers, and Mandel hall has seldom echoed to heartier or more unanimous applause than Mr. Germani received at the end of his recital.

His technique is the all-embracing kind you dream of when you hear other organists play, but never quite expect to encounter in real life. He concluded the program with Manari's "Etude de Concert," dedicated to him and evidently written to prove beyond the raising of an eyebrow that he is a virtuoso unequaled in the world today. Though the piece is as vapid in musical ideas as any étude could possibly be, it demands several minutes of the most sustaining lightning footwork in all organ literature.

The organist's display of rapid pedaling reached its climax toward the end of the étude, in a cadenza so fast and so complex that the mere effort to follow it made one's head swim. To find a parallel to such studendous technical facility it is necessary to turn to such players of other instruments as Horowitz and Milstein.

All this, of course, would be an empty husk if it were not accompanied by a deeply and satisfyingly musical approach to compositions of less superficial character. Most of the concert, as a matter of fact, was in sharp contrast to the closing flash of display. In the slow movement of Vivaldi's D minor concerto, in three chorale preludes by Bach, in an anonymous air of seventeenth century origin, to mention only a few high spots, Mr. Germani revealed a moving expressiveness of phrasing and dynamics and a wonderful gift for discovering just the right tempo.

Considerable interest centered in the fact that Mr. Germani discarded the traditiopnal pipe organ in favor of the recently developed electric organ. Quite apart from the consideration that he would sound better on your grandmother's reed harmonium than you or I on the Liverpool cathedral organ. Mr. Germani used persuasively many new tone colors created by the electric organ's new principle of tone production. Particularly he made effective capital of the instant percussive attack of the tonal mechanism, and played with a rhythmic bite impossible on the slower speaking pipe organ.

It was a big event, and one that will be remembered long after most of this year's concerts have reached the limbo of forgotten things. The rumor is abroad that Mr. Germani will play with the Chicago Symphony orchestra next season. If he does, sit up and take notice.

Pianist Rosenthal Denies Concert Will Be Farewell

Moriz Rosenthal, 75 years old, Polish pianist who was in Chicago yesterday to prepare for his Orchestra hall recital tonight under Adult Education council auspices, declared that the announcements which his local managers had sent out were based on a misunderstanding. Contrary to these announcements, which declared that this appearance would be his farewell to America, Mr. Rosenthal said that he has just signed a contract with the National Broadcasting company and that he would travel in this country next year on his golden jubilee tour. He will begin this tour in New York on Nov. 13, fifty years from the day of his initial American appearance.

Modern Idiom Well Liked in Porter Quartet

BY EDWARD BARRY.

We hear hardly any chamber music from year's end to year's end, and a sympathetic outsider might easily jump to the conclusion that we are starved for that form of sustenance. That this is not the case was indicated last evening when an extremely satisfactory concert by the Philharmonic String quartet drew an audience which failed to tax the seating capacity even of the little foyer of Orchestra hall.

Messrs. Weicher, Quick, Hancock, and Wagner—all members of the Chicago Symphony orchestra— played a Haydn, a Miaskowsky, and a Quincy Porter quartet. This last piece, the work of a professor of music at Vassar college, is a fine example of what may be accomplished in the modern idiom when urgency of musical thought rather than a simple desire to be different determines the form which the music shall take.

You get the impression in the Porter quartet that the composer wrote as he did because his ideas required that form of expression and no other. There is no feeling that the modernity of the music, its harmonic freedom and the often unconventional contour of its melodies, is due to any desire of its creator to keep up with [or even a little ahead of] the Joneses of the musical field.

The quartet is mature, serious, thoughtful. It was skilfully and sympathetically played.

Last night's Civic theater concert by the Federal and Laredef Glee clubs, two of the city's most important colored singing organizations, furnished another proof of the musicianship of William Eugene Myricks, their director, and of the excellence of the material he has to work with.

Singly and in combination the clubs sang a bewilderingly varied program which ranged from Handel to the works of contemporary composers, from Russia to the cotton fields of the American south.

A feature of the evening was a performance by Margaret Bonds, pianist, of the slow movement of Bach's Italian concerto. The nobility of her phrasing and the restrained richness of her tone quality gave the piece an eloquence and a fullness of expressive power which played havoc with the widespread belief that this particular movement is a rather dull bit of music.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

Maurice Schwartz, whose productions of Yiddish drama have a national reputation, brought his stage version of "The Brothers Ashkenazi," a large scale novel dealing with the development of industrialism in the Polish city of Lodz, to the Studebaker theater last night. His organization is to Yiddish speaking playgoers what the Theater Guild is to native or well naturalized Americans; this première, therefore, was attended by a large and appreciative audience.

The play follows with fidelity the panorama of events described at length in the novel. When a Yiddish author prepares a work of fiction for the stage he believes in giving a full measure of the original, and so the dramatization of "The Brothers Ashkenazi" contains nearly all the meat of the story, omitting only most of the pogroms, riots, and revolutionary hurly-burly. The novel starts with the grandfather of the two brothers who are its protagonists; so does the play. The work's major theme is the development in three generations of Lodz from a village into the Manchester of Russian Poland, and the effects of war and industrialism upon its large Jewish community. Therefore copious detail is as essential to the play as to the novel.

The element of antagonism between Max, the go-getting, factory grabbing brother, and Jacob, his gentle, easy-going twin brother, is not strongly emphasized in the dramatization. Mr. Schwartz, who has the rôle of the masterful Max, is much in the foreground, while Samuel Goldenburg, acting the mild but no less able Jacob, is not a figure of much dramatic value until his heroic death after defying an anti-Semitic Polish officer. Both characterizations, however, are impressive.

The play contains crowds of Yiddish peasants, usually of the chanting Chassidic religious sect; throngs of weavers at work and on strike, and mobs of the Russian proletariat in the first fever of the revolution. It also contains scenes of domestic life among the prosperous Jewish weavers of Lodz, which are costumed and acted with skill.

The rôle of Heinz Huntze, a weaver baron, puts a large amount of German dialog into the Yiddish text. This important character is admirably played by Kurt Katch. Max Ashkenazi's wife and daughter are attractively represented by Luba Kadison and Helen Beverly, young women of personal distinction.

SYNOPSIS.

Karen Gilbert meets Gordon Stone returning to Barranca after 8 years in prison. Gordon was framed by Karen's ruthless uncle and guardian, Lyn Gilbert, owner of Bar B B ranch, and his foreman, Curt Ford. Because Karen has a friend, Hal Ferguson, take her to the hideout of Gordon and Jack Turnbull and warn them in time to save them from a posse of Gilbert's riders, her uncle imprisons her at his ranch. Gordon and Jack start a campaign against Gilbert. The affidavit of Line Conway, who was kept by threats from coming to Gordon's aid, is published in the Courier. It accuses Gilbert and Ford. Gilbert starts suit for libel and hires his rider, Cheyenne, to rub Line out. Gilbert calls on Gordon's uncle, John Fleming, owner of the J F ranch.

INSTALMENT XX.

A SURPRISE VISIT.

As soon as Fleming recognized his visitor he rose from the chair.

"Don't get out of that car," he roared. "I don't want you on my land."

Gilbert answered mildly in his shrill falsetto. "I come to fix things up, John. No use us not being friends."

The effrontery of this took Fleming aback. The man could talk about friendship, after he had filched from him the government grazing land, killed his cattle, wounded one of his riders, and ruined the life of his only nephew. John was no fool. He understood that the owner of the Bar B B had not come in the spirit of a good neighbor, had not given up his intention of ruining him. For some purpose not yet apparent he wanted a truce long enough to get something out of the man he was in process of destroying.

"You trying to tell me you got religion in yore old age?" Fleming scoffed. "I don't believe it. You're spawn of the devil, spewed out of hell."

"That's no way to talk, John," remonstrated Gilbert amiably. "Maybe we've both done things we shouldn't. Not many of us oldtimers left. We'd ought to patch up our differences."

Fleming was tall and lean, and in spite of his years he still carried himself as straight as a ramrod. He wore the highheeled boots, the broad-rimmed gray hat, the open vest of the cattleman. In his movements there was a swift energy untempered by the discretion of second thought. He had always been aggressive, impetuous, ready to fight at the drop of the hat. Even now he was capable of bursts of sudden strength, but age showed in the lax muscles at the throat, in the loose skin at the back of the hairy hands.

From under heavy white eyebrows Fleming glared at his foe. "Going to fix things up, are you?" he cried. "That's fine. To begin with all you'll have to do is turn the government grazing back to me, pay for the stock yore ruffians have run off and killed, move your cattle off my range, fire the damn scoundrels you employ in town and on the ranch, and give back to my nephew the good name and the eight years you robbed him of by yore infernal lies."

Gilbert showed no anger. "You're excited, John. Be reasonable. If Gordon Stone went bad I'm not responsible for it. Why, you kicked him out yourself long before the Brock trouble came up."

"So I did, like a hotheaded fool, and maybe drove him on to his evil ways," Fleming raised the arm which held the Courier and shook it at his enemy. "I read what Gordon said the other day, and this story of Lincoln Conway that has just reached me. It's all true. You framed that boy, you damned wolf. Get that car started down the road, or by Gad! I'll shoot you down like I ought to have done forty years ago when you were rustling my stock."

"You've got me wrong," Gilbert shrilled. "You named yourself right, a hotheaded fool. I came to see you about your nephew. I've been mighty patient till now, but I'm about wore out with him. If you have any influence at all, tell him to get out of here. He can't terrorize me. I've had enough."

"If you're here when I get back I'm gonna fill you full of lead," Fleming shouted. He turned and rushed into the house for a gun.

The Bar B B man's beady eyes swept the scene. He saw a man standing at the door of the bunkhouse, another close to the kitchen, and a third moving forward from the corral.

"When I come back next time it will be as boss of this outfit," he snarled, and started the engine.

By the time Fleming appeared on the porch again he was a hundred yards down the road, traveling fast.

Curt Ford sat at the desk in his office, a half filled bottle of whisky in front of him. The bottle was to help him pass the time while he waited for a report from Webb, and it would be much later before the Bar B B rider arrived with it. The Hairy Ape was doing a little night riding, assisted by three others. The enterprise was entirely outside the law, and Ford was master-minding the project. Since Gilbert had reported his reception at the Fleming ranch the foreman understood there was an open season on old John. The owner of the J F had declared himself and could now be treated as a recognized enemy rather than as a victim who must be ruined with hypocritical reluctance.

Ford poured a third glass of whisky into a tumbler. The glass was still in his hand with the door of the room opened. He took it for granted that the intruder was his wife Glenna. "What d'you want now?" he growled, not turning his head.

The voice that answered sent a chill down his spine. It dragged the words in a drawl cold as the wind of a northern blizzard.

"I dropped in to settle unfinished business."

Ford pivoted and stared at Gordon Stone, his eyes bulging and his jaw fallen. It was incredible that the man could be here, where the lift of a voice would bring a dozen armed enemies running. Amazing, but true. That his foe had come to kill him the foreman did not for an instant doubt. What else could the fellow mean by unfinished business?

A gun belt hung from a nail on the wall not five feet away. Ford rejected the impulse to make a dash for it.

Curt Ford was a hardy ruffian. He drove down the fear rising to his throat. The thing to do was play for time—watch his chance to take advantage of any break that might occur.

"Where did you come from?" he asked harshly.

"Doesn't matter. I'm here. Don't make a mistake. Put your hands on the desk in front of you."

The foreman hesitated. Once more he played with the thought of the holstered revolver hanging on the wall. Considered and repulsed the urge. The force in this man's grim arrogance quelled insurgent impulses.

But he had to save face, had to make a bluff. "All I have to do is give a yell and twenty men will come on the jump," he growled.

"You'd get a fine funeral probably," the visitor said.

That was exactly the trouble. Stone had put a finger on the difficulty. Before the Bar B B men arrived their foreman would be no longer living and his killer would be vanishing in the darkness.

Reluctantly, the hands of Ford slid forward on the desk. By an effort he could keep his brutal face from betraying his terror. His voice he could hold steady by sheer will power.

"If . . . if you're figuring on bumping me off——"

Stone closed the door. He moved across to the other side of the desk. His hard eyes looked down on the man who had ruined his life.

"A good suggestion," he agreed evenly. "I'll give you a minute or two for confession first. After you killed Harrison Brock was it Gilbert's idea to hang me? Or did you think of that yourself?"

"I didn't kill him," Ford said hoarsely.

"Why lie to me? We're alone, for the first time in ten years. If I decide to let you live I couldn't prove what you had admitted."

If I decide to let you live. From that clause Ford snatched a ray of hope. At the worst he had a few minutes reprieve.

Ladies, Here's Why Bachelor Is What He Is

BY DORIS BLAKE.

[Copyright: 1938: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

Fair enough to assume that no one knows a man better than one of his own sex. So that when one of him undertakes to define a confirmed bachelor, we women should learn about bachelors. In "Ladies, I Give You the Way to his Heart" [Bobbs Merrill] John Beeckman, tells us that the confirmed bachelor will sometimes marry, but only in later life, and for utterly obscure reasons.

We learn about the confirmed bachelor from Mr. Beeckman that he [the c. b.] knows more about his own comfort than any woman ever will know. It is his conviction [the c. b.'s] and, since comfort is his chief preoccupation in life, that is why he avoids entanglements.

Beeckman says you can detect him by his living quarters. If everything is precisely arranged, you ladies can be pretty sure of what you are up against.

Then there are certain social habits that betray him. These lean overmuch, Beeckman reports, to the finicky, the punctilious, the formal.

Perhaps the reason he holds out hope for the ladies [but not promises] is that he often is a gay individual and fond of the company of women, toward whom he will behave in a thoughful, sympathetic and amusing manner. His way of turning a pretty compliment and his nonaversion to flirtations mark him, according to our informant. But if a woman begins to take him seriously, woe to her claims on further companionship.

GASOLINE ALLEY—PHOTOGRAPHER'S LUCK

Daintiness Is One Requisite of Loveliness

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Discussing the beauty qualifications of young girls from 13 to 16, a noted beauty authority voiced them as a trio: "fresh, clean, blooming."

So, young women, you may interrogate yourself on the above mentioned trio standard. Are you fresh, clean, and blooming?

What does this mean exactly? Well, by fresh is simply meant fresh and sweet. Everything about you suggests a pleasant freshness, no accumulation of poisons in your system from superfluous food, or fatigue poisons from late hours. Your mouth is sweet and clean, your teeth sound and white, your breath pleasant.

By being clean means not only clean skin, hair, and person but also clean dresses, clean underwear, clean stockings, clean gloves, clean bags.

Blooming is no more and no less than a combination of the fresh and clean virtues. With your youth and the two other named assets you have the world at your feet.

We ran across a set of rules compiled by one of the younger movie stars, Mary Carlisle, which we recommend:

1. Don't eat between meals.
2. Walk instead of hopping into cars [automobiles, street cars, and buses].
3. Walk rapidly, with a swinging gait.
4. Do half a dozen somersaults around your room before breakfast, even if relatives and friends question your sanity.
5. Swim every time you see enough water to hold you up, provided there is no ice on it.
6. Go in for outdoor sports, not just one, but several of them and don't overeat on the week-end jaunts.
7. Run your own errands. Odd jobs will keep your weight where it should be.
8. Scrub your face with soap, water, and complexion brush.
9. Don't sleep after eating.
10. Whatever your rules, LIVE by them and have rules to live by.

Calls Local Control Only Way to Keep Public Schools Free

A warning that federal educational projects may be turned to political uses was given by Ralph McCallister, director of the Adult Education council, at a meeting of the Conference of Jewish Women's Organizations yesterday at headquarters, 185 North Wabash avenue. "Education, Child and Adult," was the subject of the meeting, at which Henry P. Chandler, president of the Civil Service association, also spoke.

"Local control of educational enterprises must be preserved to keep sources of information independent and disinterested," Mr. McCallister declared. "In these times when democracy is on the defensive and problems are mounting, the people need centers of education free from propaganda, where they may be guided to sane thinking."

The public schools' rôle is to train for effective living, Mr. Chandler said. Ability to apply oneself to hard work, constructive use of leisure, and development of a capacity for coöperation with fellow citizens should be objectives of the public schools, he asserted.

Prospects for Peace.

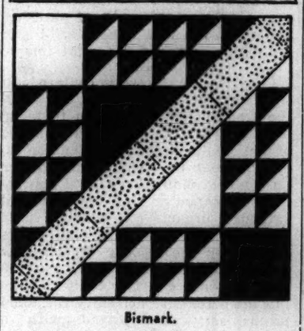
'Bismark' Quilt Uses Geometrical Motif in Design



Bismark.

Patterns of this design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower.

BY NANCY CABOT.

During the early days of quilt making, at the time when the colonies were being settled, geometrical figures such as squares and triangles were the principal med'ums of expression. "Bismark" was pieced by a young German girl, who came to America at the age of 17. She and her husband settled in New York and remained in that state during their lifetime. Their daughters migrated westward and with them came the pattern of "Bismark," which has been sensationally popular among middle westerners. The block is large, measuring 16 inches square when completed. Thirty pieced patterns are set together to form an all-over design. A 5 inch border and a ½ inch bias binding surround the coverlet, which measures 90 by 106 inches when completed.

For a limited period Nancy Cabot offers 10 quilt patterns of her own choice at a price of 10 cents for the group (12 cents by mail). Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune.

Among the other things to be sold will be old books donated by members of the parish.

Fashion Prescribes Blouses

WOMAN'S AND MISS' BLOUSES.

Here is one of those really practical patterns on which you can count all the year 'round. Spring, summer, fall, and winter all make fashion demands of special kinds, but all have one prescription in common—blouses! And plenty of them. With your suits and separate skirts for both business and sports wear you must have a crisply tailored blouse or consider yourself definitly out of the fashion running.

The pattern offered today is a typical and well beloved shirtwaist model. Its collar may lie down or be buttoned up snugly under the chin. Studs or buttons may accent the man-tailored placket, and the sleeves may be either long or short. Under the shoulder yoke is shirring to lend softness to the bodice.

All types of fabrics make up well. For the current season and the coming one you undoubtedly will prefer wash silks and cottons to insure daintiness always. Plain shades, prints, stripes, and plaids all are equally effective and fashionable.

For the individual touch, why not have your name embroidered on the pocket? A pattern for this, number E-11171, is available for 10 cents extra. This pattern provides for 25 well known names in assorted sizes.

Style No. 3036 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20 years, and 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 2 yards of 39 inch material.

Welsh Rabbit Takes Kindly to Variations

[Copyright: 1938: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Welsh rabbit and all its richer and poorer relations are easiest to make upon a milk-butter-flour foundation. Such a foundation tends to keep the cheese from overcooking and growing tough as a consequence, and also keeps the rabbit smooth and "pourable."

Almost every cook has her own particular combination of seasonings to use in making a rabbit. Some like a trace of tabasco sauce or Worcestershire sauce, perhap both. Others like mustard or catsup or even chili sauce. And almos every cook has a preference among cheeses, although she may like to use American, Swiss, and perhaps Liederkranz alternately for variety's sake. Variety may be accomplished not only by changing the cheese and seasonings used but in switching what goes beneath the rabbit on the plate. This time it may be triangular pieces of toast, next time a generous portion of cooked macaroni, another time a nest of fried noodles. Again the rabbit may be served over a hot cooked vegetable, such as asparagus tips or long green beans.

This is an excellent foundation recipe for Welsh rabbit. It may be varied in any of the ways suggested or used "as is."

Welsh Rabbit.

[Four Servings.]

1 tablespoon butter
1 teaspoon flour
½ cup milk
Salt, cayenne pepper
½ teaspoon dry mustard
Few drops Worcestershire sauce
½ pound American cheese, grated or cut fine

Melt butter in the top of a double boiler. Add flour and blend. Stir in milk and cook until thickened and smooth. Add one-quarter teaspoon salt or thereabouts, and a few specks of cayenne pepper, with mustard and Worcestershire sauce. Stir in the cheese and let it melt. As soon as it has melted and is blended with the sauce serve on toast or otherwise. Broiled tomato halves and strips of broiled bacon are good accompaniments.

Tomato-sauerkraut rabbit and Liederkranz-onion rabbit are departures from the usual, but both have ardent fans among those who like sauerkraut and onions.

Tomato-Sauerkraut Rabbit.

[Serves Five.]

1 cup strained tomatoes
½ pound grated American cheese
½ cup soft bread crums
¼ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 cup sauerkraut

Heat tomatoes, cheese, crums, and seasonings together over low heat until the cheese has melted, stirring until the mixture is smooth. Add sauerkraut and let heat through. Serve on toast.

Liederkranz-Onion Rabbit.

[Serves Six.]

¼ cup butter
½ pound Liederkranz cheese
¾ teaspoon salt
Dash cayenne pepper
1 cup thin cream
2 eggs
1½ cups thinly sliced onion

Melt a tablespoon of the butter in the top of a double boiler. Add cheese and stir until melted. Stir in the seasonings and cream gradually, then remove from heat and add the hot mixture slowly to the well beaten eggs. Return to heat and cook slowly, stirring constantly for about two minutes longer. Meanwhile sauté the onion slice in remaining butter until tender. Arrange onions on toast and pour the rabbit mixture over them. Serve broiled tomatoes with this dish.

According to CULBERTSON

THE CLUB CONVENTION.

[Copyright: 1938: By Ely Culbertson.]

I have heard a great deal about a "club convention" that seems to have descended upon the country's bridge players like locusts on grain. To my amazement and discomfiture, I find that I am being given "credit" for this convention! Few things could be more unjust. My Gold Book and other writings discuss the use of a three card minor suit opening bid as a prepared bid, but at no point have I talked about a club convention. Let me quote a few sentences from the paragraphs on "prepared bids."

"Many hands that are too strong to pass would be too weak to rebid if the normal opening bid, based on biddable suit requirements, were made. Other hands contain no properly biddable suit, do not meet the requirements for one no trump, and yet are much too strong to pass. In some of these hands the problem may be solved by bidding a shaded four card suit; in others, bidding a three card minor is the only remedy. The use of such a three card suit is a 'prepared bid' and should not be confused with the artificial club and diamond bids used in some systems to denote powerful hands and, in others, to denote subminimum protective third or fourth hand bids. Such bids are definitly losing bids, and systems based on them are unsound. They confuse the partner while opening the door for low, cheap overcalls. There are no artificial opening bids in the Culbertson system."

If, after reading the above, any player still can point an accusing finger at me and say that the Culbertson system approves the use of an artificial club bid with some half-baked series of forced responses, I suppose I had better throw in the sponge and devote my attention to parchesi.

The opening club bid in the following hand had a result that was as typical as it was horrible.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 club	4 hearts	5 clubs	Double
Pass	Pass	Pass

South, after the preëmptive overcall, was in the position that is quite normal for the unfortunate partners of habitual short suit bidders. If North had a legitimate club bid it was vital to reach at least five clubs, if only defensively. There was utterly no reason for North to sidestep his correct opening bid of one spade. Obviously North chose the club bid in order to have an easy rebid if South answered with either one diamond or one heart. North's argument, I realize, would be that if he opened with one spade and partner responded with two hearts, two diamonds, or two clubs, North would not have a comfortable rebid.

I must point out, however, that the club bid settles certain difficulties only at the great expense of raising others. It is by no means a panacea for all the bidding ills that can beset a partnership. Personally, I would far rather bid one spade on North's hand and then stretch slightly with my two no trump response to two hearts, diamonds, or clubs, than get into the mess that North's bid inspired. Four hearts could have been beaten three tricks by good defense. Five clubs went down only one under good management, but the thousand point swing was hardly a recommendation for the unnecessary choice of a short suit bid.

Fashion Shows Afford Women Fun of the Year

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Season after season all boredom is parked outside the palpitating ranks of a well stuffed opening fashion show. Despite gloomy critics, these shows always pull. No woman lives who doesn't run a temperature just before new clothes are marched down the runways. Imports and adaptations, copies and "fords," it's the real fun of the year.

Watch for suits of this year's vintage, the softer details, the shorter skirts. Gloat over the loveliest evening gowns seen in years, wide billowing skirts, off the shoulder bodices, and small waistlines. Watch the return of lace and quality silks and satins. Succumb to the charm of exciting new daytime dresses with front shirring and fullness contrived by experts so that you will remain slim, even though all the fabric is softly shirred and gathered directly in the front.

Gasp over the sculptured gown for dinner, with stately fullness and draperies thick in front, skimpy at the back, daringly low cut at the front bodice line and then contrarily cut long, skin fitting sleeves.

Gaze with the rest of the appraising throng and wonder how you'll like the spring coats, sure that one of the four high fashion streamlines will be becoming. Loose your susceptible heart to completely insane hats, headgear with veils, with color raging rampant, with flowers literally engulfing some of the models, skull caps that are nothing more than two gargantuan blooms standing erect, with gloves and accessories exquisitely matched with new tones of hosiery to flatter your ankle lines.

See all this and then complain, if you dare, that new fashions aren't fun!

Simple Rules of Health May Be Forgotten

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

"Be intelligent and persistent in observing the well known rules of health with your children," I ended yesterday's column. And "don't worry about whether your child measures up to height and weight standards as given in charts" was the rest of the day's advice in a nutshell.

Now, about the well known rules for child health. Because they have been talked about so much I'm always inclined to think every mother who has the means at her command not only knows them, but thinks them important enough to be carried out. Yet this is not so.

Among cases I know that come to my mind in a moment are the following:

1. A little boy who eats well and is fed well, but who has no regular hours for going to bed and no daytime rest. His bedtime is usually that of his parents, anywhere from 10 to 12 o'clock. In the mornings he has to be almost pulled out of bed, which is not normal for a young child, though it is for teen age children.

2. Another boy a little older who scarcely ever eats a balanced meal, but absorbs large quantities of sweets and crackers between meals.

3. A little girl who rarely gets vigorous romping and outdoor play. She just goes for quiet walks and is required to be quiet indoors.

4. Several children in whose diet the protective foods so vital to health and growth are only included by hit or miss.

If these children are below what they should be for their build and physical heritage it is quite possible the lack may be due to the fact that their days are not well rounded ones that make for a maximum of well being. And it is a well rounded day that fulfills the requirements of what we call the well known rules of health for children. It is a circle. Each part follows and helps every other part.

The rules for a well rounded health program say that: A child must be well fed and regularly fed. Fruits, vegetables, milk, grains in the form of cereal or bread, eggs and meat, plenty of water, and enough sugar in some form for additional energy needs are necessities.

A child must have plenty of rest and sleep at regular times, under favorable conditions for both. He must have plenty of fresh air. He must have outlet for his energy in vigorous exercise and play, and he must be dressed adequately for the weather and for freedom of movement.

A child must be kept clean, and this doesn't mean "nagging clean" for appearance's sake, but clean from the health angle. Each observance helps the other in a child's well rounded day. Outdoors and exercise help sleep and appetite; rest and food create energy, and so it goes.

HOUSE MAY ASK MORE SEARCHING INQUIRY FOR TVA

Maverick Makes Demand to Extend Scope.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 28.—[Special.]—Unless the house takes steps to amend the joint resolution passed in the senate for investigation of the Tennessee Valley authority, the inquiry will develop into a trial to pillory Dr. Arthur E. Morgan, deposed TVA chairman, Representative Maury Maverick [D., Tex.] told the house rules committee today.

The rules committee is expected to report tomorrow whether it will adopt the senate resolution or introduce one of its own. The senate resolution provides for a committee of five senators and five representatives to delve into certain specified subjects.

Maverick's statement, inasmuch as it came from one known as friendly to the TVA, was a surprise. In addition to condemning the senate resolution, he denounced some of the authority's activities.

Demands Fact Finding Inquiry.

Other house members supported Maverick. One of their points was that the proposal that none but so-called impartial congressmen should serve on the committee would rob the inquiry of its usefulness.

"The self-respect and the integrity of the Democratic party are at stake in the matter," Maverick declared. "The administration ought not to put itself in the position of apparently being afraid to set up a committee that will unearth the true facts of the TVA situation.

"Personally, I would welcome the appointment of partisans to this investigating committee. I think we have been guilty of waiting too long for word from the White House or senate as to how we shall proceed. I seem to find out what I am going to do from the newspapers. How about the prestige of the house? Why should we back down under the whip of the senate? Let's not be rubber stamps voluntarily."

Sees Evidence of Purge.

Mr. Maverick then asserted the Barkley resolution was worded in a manner to prevent investigation.

"It looks to me like we are getting into a purge trial to get rid of a fellow they don't want," the Texan declared. "I don't want this investigation to develop into anything like that."

Mr. Maverick then said he had prepared a speech criticising some of the industrial contracts drawn up by David E. Lilienthal, one of the TVA directors, and principal antagonist of the deposed chairman.

"In connection with that speech," Mr. Maverick told the committee, "I wrote to the directors of the TVA, requesting certain information. Instead of supplying the information, they sent up a press relations man, who filled me full of misinformation. But then I got a copy of the TVA annual report and dug out the facts for myself.

Friends Are Harassed.

"But apparently the powers that be in the TVA did not believe a congressman has sense enough to add up a column of figures himself. I have some friends working for the TVA and apparently they were suspected of supplying me with the information I got from the report. As a result my friends have been harassed and spied upon. I am a friend of the TVA, but I can't put up with such tactics as that."

Mr. Maverick said that when he made his speech criticizing Mr. Lilienthal certain people came to him and said that, as a friend of TVA, he should have criticized Dr. Morgan and not Mr. Lilienthal.

He added that if the senate resolution is adopted "we are going to get a neuter minded committee" despite the fact for 150 years it has been the custom to appoint sponsors of resolutions to investigating committees.

Chairman Andrew J. May [D., Ky.] of the house military affairs committee, leading opponent of the power agency, also opposed the suggestion that an impartial committee be set up.

Lists Points for Investigation.

"It may be, as some people say, that there is no crookedness in the TVA, but there are some things that should be carefully investigated," he said. Among these he listed:

1. "Why was a certain bond issue at Knoxville selling at 40 cents on the dollar boosted to a hundred and then bought up by the TVA?"

2. "Why did the TVA pay $50 to $300 an acre for some phosphate lands in western Tennessee that had been purchased by a private party for $2 an acre?"

3. "Why has the TVA disobeyed its mandate from congress to maintain its principal offices at Muscle Shoals?"

4. "Why did the TVA pay an exhorbitant price for a certain tract of land and then brazenly tell the military affairs committee it had done so to prevent the Aluminum Company of America from building a dam at that spot?"

FINISH BINDING LAKE FOREST'S OXFORD BIBLE

Binding of the famous Oxford folio Bible by the Lakeside Press was completed yesterday and the book is now ready to be presented on April 5 to First Presbyterian church, Lake Forest, by W. H. Winterowd in memory of Mrs. Winterowd, who died in 1936.

The Bible was designed by Bruce Rogers and printed on hand made paper by the Oxford University Press in England. The special covers for the Lake Forest book and the dedication page were designed by Mr. Rogers. Only 200 copies were printed, with a quota of 40 for America.

The first copy was given by King George V. of England to the British war memorial at Ypres, France. Another copy was given by the archbishop of Canterbury to King George VI. as a coronation gift. The book weighs fifty pounds and is valued at more than $1,000. Solid gold clasps bind the 14 by 19 inch covers together when the 5 inch book is closed. It is expected to last 500 years.

12 INDICTMENTS RETURNED IN GAS DILUTION INQUIRY

Follow $42,000,000 Suit Against 2 Companies.

Columbus, O., March 28.—(AP)—A grand jury investigation of charges that fuel gas sold in Columbus was diluted with non-combustible gases resulted today in 12 indictments against two corporations and fifteen individuals.

The grand jury's investigation began after City Attorney John L. Davies filed a taxpayer's suit against the companies last November, asking $42,000,000 for alleged dilution of the gas over a period of years.

Among those named in today's indictments are Philip G. Gossler of New York, chairman of the board of Columbia Gas and Electric corporation, with which Ohio Fuel Gas is affiliated; Hubert C. Blackwell of Cincinnati, president of the Cincinnati Gas and Electric company and a vice president of Columbia Gas and Electric; Chauncey I. Weaver of Springfield, O., president of Ohio Fuel Gas; Frank M. Tait of Dayton, president of the Dayton Power and Light company and a director of Columbia Gas and Electric, and the following Columbus residents:

E. M. Tharp, vice president of Ohio Fuel Gas; Thomas H. Kerr, vice president of Ohio Fuel Gas; Louis A. Seyffert, a director of Ohio Fuel Gas; Raymond Cross, former president of Ohio Fuel Gas; Paul S. Clapp, vice president of Columbia Gas and Electric, and E. D. Bivens, treasurer of Ohio Fuel Gas.

DELAY INQUEST INTO 'LOVERS' LANE' SLAYING

Capt. Frank Demski of the Brighton Park police yesterday asked for a continuance of the inquest into the slaying Saturday night of Policeman Martin Wolski.

"I am sure we can solve this case if we are given a little more time," Capt. Demski said. The inquest then was continued to April 26. Several suspects are in custody.

Wolski, who was 36 years old and lived at 4135 South Artesian avenue, was the father of two children. His widow was too overcome by grief to testify as to his personal affairs, so the slain man's brother, Andrew, of 4515 South Christiana avenue, took her place on the stand.

Wolski was shot three times when he sought to question two men in McKinley park. The funeral will be at 9:30 a. m. tomorrow from the chapel at 3756 South Paulina street to St. Joseph's church, 38th street and California avenue. Burial will be in Resurrection cemetery.

HAWKS OPEN CUP SERIES AGAINST N. Y. AMERICANS

Meet for Place in Title Final.

New York, March 28.—[Special.]—Two National Hocky league teams, the Chicago Blackhawks and New York Americans, which were almost unanimously selected by experts at the start of the season as having little chance to qualify for the Stanley cup playoffs, will open play in Madison Square Garden tomorrow night for the right to meet the victor of the Toronto-Boston series in the cup finals.

Upsets have been the rule in playoff games thus far this year. The Canadiens, eliminated by the Blackhawks, were looked upon as almost certain to win the first series. The Americans' victory over their city rivals, the Rangers, was even more surprising, for the Rangers not only beat the Americans four times in the six regularly scheduled games but also scored 39 more goals than the Americans.

Leafs a Real Surprise.

More astonishing was the defeat of Boston by Toronto in the two games played to date in the first place series. Going into the series the Bruins, the only team in the league to win more than half its season's games and with a record of having defeated Toronto five out of six times, had outscored the league's high scoring Toronto team, 24 goals to 10. The teams resume their series in Boston tomorrow night.

To date accepted hocky form has been thrown almost completely in the discard and from now on any one's guess is good. If previous engagements do mean anything, the Hawks were completely baffled by the Americans throughout the season, the best they could get being two ties. The odds should favor the Americans, for in Madison Square Garden they have won thirteen and tied five of twenty-nine games this year.

THOMPSON AN ALL-STAR

MONTREAL, Que., March 28.—(AP)—The Boston Bruins, winners of the National Hocky league's American division race, placed three men on the eighth annual Canadian Press All-Star team, selected through a poll of thirty-one sports editors and hocky writers in the six league cities.

While retaining only one member of the 1937 sextet, Defense Man Albert [Babe] Siebert of the Montreal Canadiens, the experts picked Boston's Cecil [Tiny] Thompson, Vezina trophy winner, as goalie; Veteran Eddie Shore, who made a fine comeback after being out most of last season with injuries, as Siebert's partner on defense, and Bill Cowley as center.

Dillon, born in Toledo, O., is the first American born player to make the team. He drew sixteen votes, one more than Drillon, for the first team, but the Maple Leaf star made up for that with three more votes for the alternate squad. They were the only players named for right wing. The squad:

They're Coming Over!

And it won't be long! Europe's finest amateur boxers soon will be assembled in tournaments across the sea. They have a date to meet Chicago's Golden Gloves team in the Stadium the night of May 18. You'll want to see these seventh international amateur bouts.

The fact that Chicago's fighters beat New York in the recent intercity bouts may have convinced you of their caliber. That victory also impressed many other fight fans who want tickets for May 18. You too, still can see these bouts if you act now.

THOMAS EXHIBITS ALL THE FIRE OF A WPA FOREMAN

If He Beats Louis He'll Be Surprised, Too.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Joe Louis, heavyweight champion of the world, took a vacation yesterday from his training for his fifteen round title defense Friday night in the Stadium. His opponent, Harry Thomas, decided, however, to wait until today to rest and more than two hundred fight fans perched on the bleachers of George Trafton's gymnasium to see the challenger box five rounds.

These observers and the crew of managers who watched sharply the training of several of the boys who will appear on the supporting card are agreed that Thomas is about the longest shot in any championship fight ever held. Indeed, there has been more talk along Randolph street so far on the possibilities of the Louis-Max Schmeling fight in June than concerning Friday's match.

It Doesn't Prove Much.

Thomas' five rounds yesterday against Russ Wasser and Chicago's Bernie Bowman proved only that the blond challenger can fight five rounds. There was nothing resembling the alleged lethal right or left hands nor was Thomas able to prove his ability to absorb punishment. His first opponent, Wasser, outboxed Thomas, as who can't, and Bowman, who is only a fair boxer and carries no punch in either hand, went through the motions.

Some assert Thomas is overtrained and stale, although all such comments are subject to immediate change should Thomas win from Louis or box the champion fifteen rounds. This last result, a fifteen round decision, might as well be forgotten, for Thomas scarcely can go that distance against Louis and, of course, if he should loose a lucky punch, he wouldn't have to fight forty-five minutes.

Harry Doesn't Care.

Derogatory remarks on his ability bother Thomas no more than if someone accused him of splitting an infinitive. Thomas has earned more money by losing to Max Schmeling and to Jimmy Adamick of Detroit than he made in all his previous battles. And as Thomas is meeting Louis for 12½ per cent of the net receipts and not because he sincerely believes he will be heavyweight champion of the world by 11 o'clock Friday night, his feelings are not easily injured.

Nate Lewis, the old sage of the loop who for years was matchmaker for the Stadium, talks an entirely different story. To listen to Nate, a soft spoken, persuasive conversationalist, one easily can be carried away. Thomas, according to Lewis, is the greatest heavyweight in the world, a Paul Bunyan of the northland, but Nate sang this story in New York before Schmeling dropped Thomas seven times and won by a technical knockout.

Hawks Share Spotlight.

So far there has been entirely too much Schmeling and Louis talk to permit concentration on Thomas. And the Blackhawks, who will play Thursday night in the Stadium, haven't helped the publicity for the bout.

Although Chicago always carefully scans any sports event which requires $10 for a ringside seat, Friday's card, regardless of the possibility of an abbreviated main event, is the best the city has had in two indoor seasons. Unless training camp interest is not transferred to the Stadium, Chicago will patronize the bouts handsomely. Some of the boys Friday night quite likely will do some real fighting.

In yesterday's gymnasium drills, Buddy Knox and Carl Vincequerra staged a battle which had the critics complaining that it should have been bottled up for Friday night. So, even if Louis does knock out Thomas, and what a surprise it'll be if Louis fails, the show still will be worth the admission.

Michigan's New Coach Gets Down to Business

X-RAYS REVEAL TWO FRACTURES IN APPLING'S LEG

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., March 28.—Luke Appling's fractured ankle was placed in a cast this morning and estimates of the husky White Sox star's period of inactivity varied between five weeks and three months.

A group of Appling's teammates went to the hospital this morning, but the young man was still under ether which had been administered while his ankle was being set and the boys were requested to go away.

Dr. C. F. Early of the staf of the Golden State hospital estimated that Appling would be out for five to eight weeks. Another member of the staf, Dr. Robert W. King, said that Appling would not be able to play for three months.

News of Monty Stratton's arm injury was not so disappointing. Monty underwent an examination by Dr. Charles Spencer, a bone and muscle specialist with a wide experience in treating ball players. It was said that if he rests from ten days to two weeks Monty will be able to resume throwing.

Appling will leave for Chicago Friday. He will be accompanied by Vice President Harry Grabiner. Stratton will remain with the team.

DAY PUTS DOWN SPEIGAL TWICE; TAKES DECISION

Pittsburgh, Pa., March 28.—(AP)—Davey Day, Chicago lightweight, floored Tommy Speigal of Uniontown, Pa., twice tonight, then stood off a late rally to win a unanimous decision in ten rounds. Day weighed 135, Speigal, 134.

Day, who has lost but one fight in his last 30—and that one to Champion Lou Ambers—sent Speigal to the canvas twice in the second round.

But after the Uniontown fighter weathered that storm he had little trouble lasting the distance and rallied to take the eighth and ninth rounds easily.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., March 28.—Manager James Dykes' conservative, or ringaround rosie, system of conditioning his White Sox went on apace today with an 11 to 9 defeat at the hands of the rather nondescript Hollywood Stars of the Pacific Coast league.

The White Sox, in absorbing their seventh defeat in the first eight games of their formal exhibition schedule, featured the strikeout in their offense, though the Stars tried to encourage them with five errors. Joe Kuhel, the new cleanup man, struck out three times. Larry Rosenthal, the 1938 regular center fielder, struck out twice, as did Boze Berger, the new shortstop. Boze, however, had his moments, making a double and homer, the homer driving in three runs.

It's Almost Discouraging.

Bill Dietrich's first pitching assignment of the year netted the Stars three runs in the first inning, all batted in by Bill Norman, once a White Sox rookie, who smacked his fourth homer in three days. Slade made a double, Bell walked before the homer, and Barath wasted a single after the Norman shot. Dietrich allowed three singles for a run in the second inning, and wound up his days work by retiring three batsmen in order in the third inning.

After going hitless in the first two innings, Berger, Hayes, and Kreevich belted out doubles in the third for a pair of runs. The score was 5 to 2 against the Sox when Osborne retired after five innings with his record of eight strike outs.

Berger Belts One.

Rosenthal contributed his second strike out and Kuhel his third against Tost in the sixth inning, but much happened between the two failures. Berger drove in three runs with his homer to tie the score and Walker drove in two with a double to give the Sox a 7 to 5 lead.

After pitching a single to Brenzel at the start of the Stars' sixth, Dobernic lost control and walked four batsmen, which won him a shower. Gick went in with the score tied, the bases loaded and one out. Georgie walked Norman, forcing in a run to put the Stars ahead. He also walked Cosbey making it four runs to be forced across the plate in the inning. Barath bounced to Martin, who made a wide throw to third, another run getting home. Johnson struck out and was accorded a tremendous ovation. There were five runs and one single in the inning.

The Sox made a run after two were out in the eighth. A single by Steinbacher, a wild pitch and a single by Kuhel accomplished the tally. The Stars in their half added a run on a walk, a couple of singles, and an error by Berger.

The Sox will meet the Cubs tomorrow in the Comiskey's California semi-final.

CARDS PLAN TO SEND P. DEAN TO MINOR LEAGUE

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 28.—(AP)—Branch Rickey disclosed today the St. Louis Cardinals probably will release Paul Dean to one of their minor league farms.

Rickey said Paul, whose sore arm has been one of the major Redbird headaches for two seasons, has applied to Baseball Commissioner Landis for reinstatement and that, as soon as it is granted, the Cards will ask waivers on him. If no waivers are received Paul will be transferred to a farm team.

At present Paul, who is 25 years old, is on the voluntary retired list. He must be reinstated to the active list before waivers may be asked.

DAME FORTUNE CHASES DAVISON ON HORSEBACK

Rides Into Chicagoan's Stable on Chance Ray.

BY FRENCH LANE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New Orleans, La., March 28.—Mr. Clarence Davison, one of the nation's well known horsemen, whistled while he worked on the back stretch of the Fair Grounds race course today.

He was putting his two dozen horses aboard express cars in preparation for their trip home to the Davison farm on the western edge of Chicago.

Mr. Davison has always dearly loved to whistle but since he left Chicago with his horses early last November for a winter's campaign here he has found very little to whistle about.

Hard Luck Follows Him.

The first time he stopped whistling was when the train on which some 25 of his horses were traveling south was wrecked along the line. Flint Shot, main bread winner for the stable, was so badly hurt in the train wreck that his racing days ended abruptly then and there. Others among the horses were severely hurt. Those uninjured suffered so badly from the shock that they could not win, although Davison gave them plenty of chances later on.

Whistle No. 2 was squelched because traveling south at the same time the horses were, but by motor, Mr. and Mrs. Davison were also in a smashup, both were hurt but not seriously.

Loses a Jocky.

The Davison stable jocky, little Henry Hauer of Arlington Heights, Ill., was the cause of taking the pep out of Davison's third whistle. He went down in a spill early in the meeting and his injuries were severe enough to keep him out for a lengthy period.

Finally Kabo, one of Davison's cheap horses, unexpectedly got home in front at enormous odds. Davison, though, so down on his luck, hadn't bet as much as a two dollar bill on him.

However, this kindled some fresh hope in the stable of Davison, and it brings us up to the horse that is responsible for putting the melody back into the Davison whistle.

The horse is Chance Ray. He had been claimed out of a race here during the winter by Ed Haughton for $4,500. Haughton raced him a few times, shook his head and remarked: "He's no account."

He sent for Davison. Davison bought Chance Ray for $4,500. Other horsemen looked askance and said "Too bad. What's happened to Davison this time?"

Dame Fortune rode right back into the Davison stable, however, on Chance Ray's back. On the closing day of the meeting here yesterday when Chance Ray scored his second victory in two days he boosted his earnings for Davison to $6,400.

Now you know why Mr. Davison again whistles while he works. Chance Ray will be toasted all the way up the line by the out of tune horses in the Davison band who are his traveling companions. They could have been making it back the hard way. Chance Ray bought them their railroad tickets.

And fashionably bred Chance Ray, a son of Chance Play-Ex Ray, may go on to even greater deeds though he is now six years old. Who knows? The Davison horses may some day eat cake.

Hoyt Explains Why National League Loses

New York, March 28.—(AP)—Waite Hoyt analyzes his eighteen years of major league baseball in this week's issue of a national magazine and declares a stifling of individual initiative and an outmoded method of one run ball are responsible for the National league's recent inferiority to the American league.

"National leaguers are held slavishly to a methodical, fairly predictable style of play which has not changed fundamentally in thirty years," writes the one time boy wonder, still an active pitcher with Brooklyn.

"In sharp contrast," he adds, "American leaguers are permitted to exercise their initiative, can play the game as flesh and blood individuals rather than robots who are pulled by strings tied to tradition."

Huggins No. 1 Manager.

Hoyt picks the late Miller Huggins of the New York Yankees "as the greatest manager who ever lived," followed by Connie Mack and the late John McGraw.

"And," he points out, "as far as I know, I am the only player who worked for all three."

He is convinced the reason for American league supremacy "paradoxically enough, goes back to the man who raised the National league to its heights of prestige—John J. McGraw."

It's not that he seeks to indict the McGraw system, but rather that the league's present managers fail to match the master's cleverness and "command of scientific so-called inside ball," while still employing McGraw's system of defense, based on curve ball pitching.

Cites "Stupid Restrictions."

"National league batters today," he explains, "put on the hit and run, McGraw's favorite strategism, while American leaguers are swinging from their heels, knocking down fences.

"McGraw believed his players had to be supervised strictly off the field. So National leaguers are subject to more rigid regulations than their colleagues in the American.

"I discovered stupid, pointless restrictions in the National league, which would antagonize any intelligent athlete.

"The American league has grown vigorous and successful because there has been no presumption that a resourceful man needs a wet nurse or a bodyguard after dark."

He recalls that in 1932, when pitching for Brooklyn against the Giants, he was called in for relief in a spot with the bases loaded, one out and Hughie Critz coming up. Max Carey, then Brooklyn manager, told him to pitch a low ball on the chance of a double play—and Critz hit it for three bases.

"I was to discover," he adds, "that all National league teams operate on the low-ball theory, regardless of situation or batter.

Huggins vs. McGraw.

"No American league manager would have permitted me to give Critz a low ball. I would have thrown my best pitch to Critz's weakness, and . . . I'm willing to bet all the beer in Jake Ruppert's brewery that a triple with the bases loaded would have been a long shot chance."

Other Hoyt-isms: Squarely opposed to the Huggins theory of free scoring was the McGraw emphasis on the low production of runs and the National league is still steeped in this doctrin . . . when McGraw retired in 1932 . . . he himself tacitly admitted that his application of those methods to a new generation of ballplayers was at fault. He conceded baseball was attracting more intelligent, independent men. . . . In short, the handling of high spirited men was McGraw's weakness and Huggins' strength. . . . The National league does not get its share of the heavy hitters because it does not make a conscious effort to get them.

And Don't Spare the Strikes, Hank!

Hank Marino of Milwaukee, member of the Heil Products team, who retired undefeated as national match game bowling champion, will roll in the A. B. C. tournament in the Coliseum this week. Marino bowls with the Heil five man team Thursday night at 8:30 o'clock and is paired in the doubles with Billy Sixty, also a star with the Heils, Friday afternoon at 5:25 o'clock.

Erie, Pa., Team Rolls Into A.B.C. Five Man Lead on 3,087

The Mystery Men of St. Louis, who long have held the lead in the five man event in the A. B. C. tournament now in progress in the Coliseum, were dethroned last night by the Isaac Baker & Sons team of Erie, Pa., which smashed out a 3,087 total. The St. Louis squad had held the lead on 3,035.

The new high score, which has been good enough to win 29 previous team titles, was compiled on games of 976-1,017-1,094. The championship was won last year on a 3,118 total made by the Brakow Furnitures of Detroit in New York's first A. B. C. tournament.

The Colonial Paper company five from Steubenville, O., rolling on the late squad, took over second place in the five man event with a 3,040 total. The Steubenville entry opened with a pair of 1,002 games, then wound up with 1,036.

Takes Second in All-Events.

Another major change in the standings was created yesterday afternoon by Sid Sherman of Toledo, O., who rolled into second place in the all-events with 1,929 by getting 667 in the singles. Al Lotz and Leo Rose, Cincinnati, were best in the doubles class yesterday with 1,241.

Chicago teams will put on their first major attack in the tournament tonight when eighteen teams—including two of the best in the city—take the alleys.

Bowling fans have watched the better teams from outside the Chicago district monopolize the schedule for the last two weeks. While teams from Minneapolis, Muskegon, Milwaukee, Gary, Rochester and other towns also bowl tonight, the A. B. C. tournament committee is expecting a capacity crowd with the first major league Chicagoans on the card.

Monarchs, Mineralites Bowl.

Topping the program will be the Monarchs, 1936 champions of the Classic league and one of the most consistent scoring lineups in A. B. C. competition. The other quintet, Chuck Collier's Mineralites of the Randolph league, always has been a major threat in the national tournament and includes five veteran campaigners.

The Monarchs, who have averaged 2,967 for the last three A. B. C. tournaments present such bowling stars as Capt. Leo Faetz, Les Fuller, Dick Winsberg, Herbie Lange and George Morrison. Lange, Faetz and Morrison are former A. B. C. champions.

The Mineralite squad includes Joe Fliger, Joe Burke, Harry Steers [who has not missed a weekly session in the Randolph league in twenty-seven years and who has won two national titles], Frank Wright and Larry [Babe] Bunning.

Chicago Has One Team in First Ten.

Chicago has only one team among the ten leaders. It is the Nabor Athletic club, which scored 2,990 early in the meet. Fans, however, are expecting at least one of the teams on tonight's card to overhaul the Erie, Pa., leaders.

Cub Reserves Triumph Over Angels, 9 to 6

After Prim had choked off the Cubs on one hit in the fourth the Angels popped up in their half with a couple of runs which gave them a momentary lead. Gudat popped to Cavarretta for the first out but Asbell misjudged Moore's fly and it dropped for a double. Russell's single through short sent Moore home with the tying run. Cihocki doubled just out of Triplett's reach, Russell stopping at third. An intentional pass filled the bags, but the strategy failed. Epperly walked Sueme unintentionally and Russell scored. A double play hurried the end of the inning.

The Cubs tied the score at two apiece in the fifth, but outside help was necessary. Montgomery, who is a box score stranger, because he is only a practice catcher, got a chance as pinch hitter for Epperly. The youngster got to second on a two base wild throw by Cihocki and eventually rode across the plate on Lazzeri's triple which hit the 415 foot notation on the center field boards.

Cubs Come to Life.

The Cubs permitted Lahti to get by in the sixth but their intentions in the seventh were unmistakable. They made three hits count for as many runs. Mattick opened this barrage by doubling to left with one out. Lazzeri did his part by walking. Cavarretta aimed a two base fly out of Statz's reach, Mattick scoring. Reynolds was disposed of on a pop foul, but Asbell slipped a single through short, sending the Italian duo across the plate. Asbell took an added workout by stealing second but Triplett couldn't bring him home.

A double by Sueme and a single by Lahti off Shoun in the eighth scored a run, and apparently aroused the Cubs ire. They bounced Lahti for four runs in the ninth. Lazzeri started this with a single and a steal of second. Cavarretta fanned, but Reynolds singled and Lazzeri scored. A fly to right finished Asbell, whereupon singles by Triplett and Hack filled the bases. Garbark, prospective third string catcher, cleaned 'em up with a triple to right.

Shoun Has Some Grief.

Shoun didn't get by the ninth until three hits had scored three runs. Statz doubled, Gudat dropped a single in short center, and Russell's homer sailed over the left field fence.

The Cubs will have serious work on their hands again tomorrow in Los Angeles and they'll be thankful for it. They are billed for the sixth of their sixteen game series with the White Sox, who thus far have lost four decisions to the National leaguers. With a healthy lead over the south side enemies, Manager Grimm feels he can take a chance in the sixth battle by starting Leroy Parmelee, the wild man. Parmelee will be succeeded by Bob Logan, the lefty who had little trouble with the Sox in the last four innings of the series opener on March 18.

Smelt Towns Prepare for Big Carnivals

BY BOB BECKER.

Illinois outdoor fans who want to dip smelt from northern streams are advised to be ready for the trip to Marinette, Menominee, or Escanaba between April 5 and April 10.

Jack Boyle of Marinette, Wis., informs us that the smelt carnival which will be held jointly by the towns of Marinette and Menominee starts April 5th and will continue through April 10th. The big night of the carnival will be April 7th, and will include a dinner for visiting fishermen, parades, and other entertainment.

April 7-9 in Escanaba.

Escanaba has set April 7 to 9 for its big jamboree, so Illinoisans going north may attend two smelt dipping parties the same week.

The smelt run from Lake Michigan up the streams which flow into the big lake has developed into one of the big events of the season for towns in northern Wisconsin and Michigan. As millions of the little fish move up the creeks and rivers, it is possible to dip them out of the water with any kind of a net.

The runs are at night, and the dipping is done by the light of big bonfires along the banks.

The discovery of smelt near Escanaba came about in an amusing way. A husband who had been sent to draw a pail of water for the family wash hauled up a pail of fish instead. As a result smelt dipping now is a real spring sport in the north country.

Newt Ely Made Discovery.

Newt Ely, Benzie county clerk, was the man who discovered the smelt. When he pulled up the bucket of silvery fish from the stream, which was filled from bank to bank with a struggling mass of smelt, he forgot about the family wash and ran to tell neighbors of his discovery.

Today there are countless millions of these little fish in Lake Michigan which annually ascend the Menominee river between Marinette and Menominee and give these two towns an opportunity for a big smelt dipping party. Near Escanaba, which is farther north, there are about a dozen streams up which the smelt run.

B. B. Y. O. PLAYS C. Y. O. QUINTET TOMORROW NIGHT

The B'nai B'rith Youth Organization's starting lineup for tomorrow night's basketball game in Lane Tech High school gymnasium with the stars of the Catholic Youth Organization was announced last night by Coach Emil Gollubier.

He expects to open with Chicky Levan and Harold Lembra at the forwards, Lou Possner at center and Jack Salzman, who has been elected captain of the team, and Marvin Colen, former Loyola university star, at the guards. Other players likely to play include Sid Newman, Mickey and Al Rottner, and Harry Kaplan.

The C. Y. O. lineup is not set, and will be chosen from the following: Agis Bray, William McKinnis, Paul Eischen, Benny Burdick, Cyrenis Singer, Tom Hayes, Ed Callahan, Ed Karas, Stan Zadel, and Emanuel Guagliardo.

CELEBRON BEATS PATTERSON; K. O. IN FOURTH ROUND

Joe Law, Tommy Howell, Tony Zale Win.

Patterson was knocked out by a right hand and was counted out draped over the lower ropes after one minute and ten seconds of the round. It was Celebron's fourth straight kayo. Celebron weighed 155 and Patterson 146½.

Tony Zale, 159 pounds, of Gary won an eight round decision over King Wyatt, 156 pounds, of Fort Wayne. Despite the fact that Zale had his opponent on the canvas for an eight count in the third round and a nine count in the seventh, the Gary boxer was in a bad way himself from body blows in the seventh and eighth round.

Tommy Howell, 142, of Danville was awarded the decision over Harry Booker, 137½, in another eight round battle.

Joe Law of the south side beat Eddie Shapiro, west side featherweight, in the four round opener. It was Law's first pro fight.

Joe Triner, head of the Illinois athletic commission, yesterday approved Promoter Joe Coffey's wrestling card in the Stadium April 8. In addition to the two featured bouts between Steve [Crusher] Casey and Ed Don George, and Everett Marshall and Danno O'Mahoney there will be four preliminary encounters. These match Chief Sanooke with Hans Zimbelmin, Bob Gregory with George Gastonvich, Wladyslaw Talun with Jerry Monahan, and Pietro Gobbi with Mike Mazurki. . . . William Levinson is the new record clerk for the state boxing board, supplanting James Connerty, resigned. . . . The rematch involving Pete Lello and Nick Camarata has been set for ten rounds in Marigold Gardens next Monday. . . . Jimmy Clark, Buffalo, N. Y., middleweight, has returned from Detroit where he lost a disputed decision to Marty Simmons on the Henry Armstrong-Eddie Zivic card Friday.

Barney Ross will leave Thursday for Minneapolis for his ten round scrap with Henry Schaft there Monday. Sam Pian, representative of Ross, will attend a meeting of the New York athletic body today. So will Mike Jacobs, promoter of the impending welterweight title contest between Ross and Henry Armstrong. Contracts will be filed and the bout will be approved, but only after considerable pressure is brought to force Armstrong out of the match in favor of Lou Ambers, lightweight champion. Armstrong, who holds the featherweight crown, has agreed to meet Ambers within sixty days, but now it is understood Lou demands a promise of a meeting with Ross too.

Jacobs will return tomorrow for the heavyweight bout between Joe Louis and Harry Thomas in the Stadium Friday. At the same time Mike will request that the park board commissioners give him a definite idea as to whether Soldiers' field will be available for the Louis-Max Schmeling engagement June 22. A reply is expected by Thursday. Philadelphia has been added to the list of proposed sites for the big event.

PIERCE-ARROW IS INSOLVENT, SAY TRUSTEES

Can't Borrow, They Admit; Refinancing Upset.

Buffalo, N. Y., March 28.—[Special.]—Liquidation of the Pierce-Arrow Motor corporation was forecast today when trustees in a court petition admitted the company is insolvent.

The insolvency admission was included in an order to show cause why the company should not be declared insolvent. Judge John Knight in federal court set April 11 as the return date for the "show cause" order. Creditors concurred in the petition.

Parties who were interested in lending the Pierce-Arrow corporation funds with which to continue operations are not willing to make commitments and trustees are not able to sell more reorganization notes, the petition said in explaining the request for a declaration of insolvency.

Trustees Sign Petition.

Trustees signing the petition are Martin Ewald, secretary-treasurer of the corporation, and former Federal Judge John R. Hazel.

The plant has been virtually idle for more than a year, production being confined to a few models for automobile show purposes and the manufacture of parts.

Since last August, when the corporation announced plans for formation of a new corporation to take over the present business and to raise approximately $11,000,000 through the sale of stock, executives and trustees have been trying to raise additional funds.

It was reported some months ago that Postmaster General James A. Farley had agreed to become executive head of the corporation should the recapitalization be effected.

Recession Upsets Plans.

Stockholders on Sept. 2 approved the steps necessary to bring about the new arrangement, but the financing plans were halted by the collapse of the stock market and the recession in business.

The company filed on Dec. 21 a petition to reorganize under section 77-B of the bankruptcy act to protect the status of assets.

The principal creditors are the Marine Trust company and the Federal Reserve bank of New York. They loaned Pierce-Arrow $1,000,000 in 1935 and $250,000 when the company entered the house-trailer business in 1936. In the last few months they loaned $52,000 more.

Washington, D. C., March 28.—(AP)—The treasury announced tonight slightly lower prices for its weekly sale of 91 day treasury bills. This week's sale of $100,000,000 of the short term securities brought an average price of 99.987, equivalent to borrowing money at 0.087 per cent, compared with an average price last week for bills of the same term of 99.983, equivalent to 0.067 per cent. Fifty million dollars' worth of 80 day bills brought an average price of 99.982, equivalent to 0.081 per cent.

SUPREME COURT RULES UTILITIES MUST REGISTER

Fails to Act on Death Sentence Clause.

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 28.—[Special.]—In a 6 to 1 decision, the United States Supreme court today upheld the registration provisions of the Wheeler-Rayburn public utility act of 1935, but did not pass on the constitutionality of other parts of the law, including the death sentence for holding companies.

Chief Justice Hughes read court's opinion.

The court sustained an order of the New York federal District court requiring the Electric Bond and Share company and fourteen associated utility holding companies to register with the Securities and Exchange commission or else be denied the use of the mails and other facilities of interstate commerce.

Uncertainty Ties Up Industry.

The court's decision, while making it emphatic that all utility holding companies must submit to the registration requirements of the act, leaves the ultimate fate of the death sentence uncertain. This uncertainty has been blamed in a large measure for the stagnation of enterprise in the utilities industry, whose leaders declare that a 2 billion dollar expansion program would be undertaken if conditions were favorable.

The Electric Bond and Share company, represented by former Solicitor General Thomas D. Thacher, contended that the registration provisions of the act were inseparable and asked the court to rule on the entire statute. The argument was made that registration automatically would subject the defendants to the operations of the death sentence. The government, however, successfully argued that the act was separable and asked that the court's decision be limited to the registration provisions.

Death Sentence Provisions.

The so-called death sentence provides that as soon as practicable after Jan. 1, 1938, the Securities and Exchange commission shall require each registered holding company to take such action as the commission finds necessary to limit its operations to a single integrated public utility system and to such other business as is reasonably incidental or economically necessary or appropriate to the operation of such integrated public utility system.

The commission is authorized at its discretion, to permit a registered holding company to continue to control one or more additional integrated public utility systems provided they are located in one state or in adjoining states. The practical effect of this section would be to abolish all holding companies beyond the first degree and to limit the operations of first degree holding companies to small geographical areas.

Heads Far Flung Empire.

The Electric Bond and Share company is the top holding company in a utilities empire. It owns stock in the American Gas and Electric company, the American Power and Light company, the National Power and Light company, and the Electric Power and Light company, which holding companies and their subsidiaries control operation of gas and electric utilities in 32 states.

Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes delivered the court's opinion. Justice James Clark McReynolds, who wrote no opinion, was the only dissenter. Justice Benjamin N. Cardozo, who is ill, and Justice Stanley F. Reed took no part in the consideration of the case.

Although Justice Reed eliminated himself because, as solicitor general, he had participated in another case involving a jurisdictional question but not the validity of the act, Justice Hugo L. Black did not step aside. As a United States senator, Black had vigorously upheld the constitutionality of the bill and violently denounced all holding companies.

Upholds Cross Bill Dismissal.

In resisting the suit of the SEC to require it to register, the company filed a cross bill seeking a decision on the validity of other parts of the act under the declaratory judgments act. This bill was dismissed by the lower court, and the Supreme court, sustaining that action, said:

"By the cross bill, defendants seek a judgment that each and every provision of the act is unconstitutional. It presents a variety of hypothetical controversies which may never become real. We are invited to enter into a speculative inquiry for the purpose of condemning statutory provisions the effect of which in concrete situations, not yet developed, cannot now be definitely perceived. We must decline that invitation."

Way Open for Challenge.

The opinion emphasized, however, that the decree of the lower court, which was upheld, "provides that the injunction and the dismissal of the crossbill shall be without prejudice 'to any rights or remedies in law or in equity' which defendants may have after registration, and leaves defendants free to challenge the validity of any of the provisions of the act other than sections 4 [a] and 5."

Tide Water Oil Earnings Rise to $15,801,383

The Tide Water Associated Oil company yesterday reported the largest net earnings in its history for 1937, the Reo Motor Car company announced a heavier net loss for the year, and Allegheny Steel company showed earnings for last year about the same as 1936.

The 1937 net income of Tide Water Associated Oil was $15,801,383 after taxes and charges, equal to $2.09 a common share. In 1936 the company had net income of $10,217,928, or $1.21 a common share.

Reo had a 1937 net loss of $1,982,293, including deductions of $883,244 for inventory adjustment and other extraordinary charges. This compared with a net loss in 1936 of $1,399,124, which included a deduction of $604,832 for moving expenses and obsolescence of equipment in connection with the discontinuance of passenger car manufacturing.

Rowland Campbell, chairman of the Reo board, told stockholders that the company's outlook for the future was "extremely bright," and that Reo had gained many new dealers and distributors in the last few months.

Allegheny Steel Steady.

Net income of the Allegheny Steel company last year amounted to $1,813,707, or $2.10 a common share, compared with 1936 net of $1,829,137, or $2.12 a share. Gross sales billed increased to $36,573,419, compared with $31,528,219 in 1936.

Carrier corporation, maker of air conditioning and ventilating equipment, Syracuse, N. Y., had net income in 1937 of $250,795 after deducting $537,456 direct expense incident to moving its plant to Syracuse from Newark, N. J. In 1936, the company had net income of $507,624.

Completed contracts and sales of the company during 1937 were about 67 per cent larger in 1937 than in 1936, W. H. Carrier, chairman, told stockholders. He said that the decrease in net income, despite higher sales, was largely due to moving expense.

Chicago Flexible Shaft.

Estimated net profits of the Chicago Flexible Shaft company for the first 12 weeks of 1938 amounted to $380,647, compared with $133,928 in the corresponding 1937 period, H. C. Wright, president, said in a message to stockholders. Sales for the period increased to $1,796,776, against $1,115,435 in 1937.

The annual report of the Owens-Illinois Glass company showed that inventories, valued at cost, amounted at the end of 1937 to $19,075,262, an increase of $5,128,421 as compared with a year earlier. William E. Levis, president, said that on the basis of current and expected volume the increased inventories "are not considered excessive." Net income of the company, as previously reported, was $9,351,627, or $3.51 in 1937, against 1936 net of $10,099,131, or $3.80 a share, on the same basis.

Confirming previously published preliminary estimates, the American Radiator and Standard Sanitary corporation's annual report showed that net income for 1937 was $7,205,510, or 68 cents a common share, compared with net in 1936 of $7,344,513, or 70 cents a share.

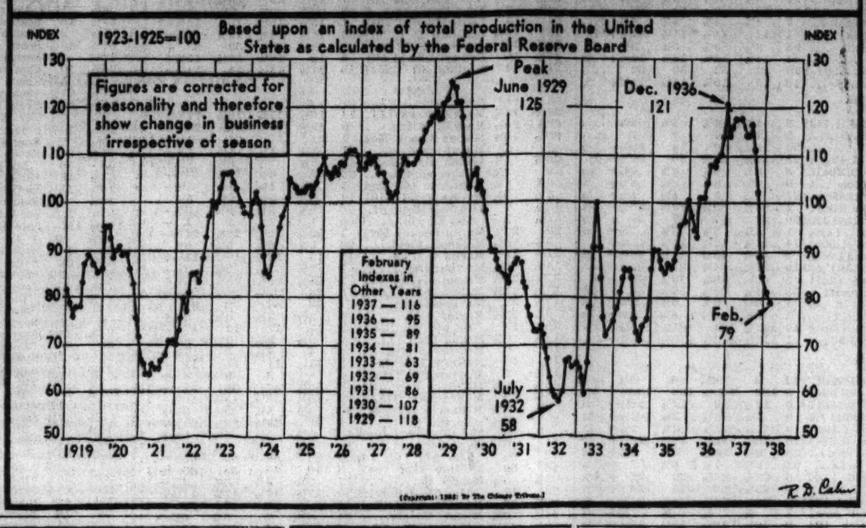
Industrial Production in the United States as Reported by the Reserve Board Governors



Rise in Retail Butter Likely as U. S. Buys

Higher butter prices for the housewife appeared likely yesterday. The federal government, after a week's absence from the Chicago wholesale cash market, reëntered to buy 116,600 pounds of top grade butter and push wholesale quotations up 1 to 1¼ cents a pound.

When trading opened yesterday morning on the Chicago Mercantile exchange, where the Federal Surplus Commodities corporation makes purchases for the government, traders were offering "extras" [highest grade] butter at 27¾ to 28¾ cents. The government buyer "cleared" the market by taking all butter offered at these prices, later in the day took 21,000 pounds at 29 cents, and then posted a bid for 1 car lot [19,200 pounds] at 29 cents, but this order was not filled.

Prices to Stores Raised.

The effect of this sudden upturn in butter quotations was to raise the prices which retail stores must pay creameries in this territory. The retail chain stores have agreements with creameries that they will take the output of the creameries at prices based on the day's wholesale market quotations. Hence, retailers yesterday were forced to pay about 1 cent more a pound for butter.

Most chain stores announced yesterday that they did not plan an immediate increase in their retail butter price, but pointed out that the government buying had served to hold prices up at the time of year when increased production normally brings price reductions all along the line and to the benefit of the housewife.

Butter Futures Advance.

Yesterday's cash purchases sent butter futures prices up ⅜ to ¾ cent a pound on the Chicago Mercantile exchange as shorts tried to cover their commitments. March contracts closed up ¾ cent at 26⅝ cents and November contracts finished at 27¾ cents, an advance of ⅜ cent.

Egg futures were unchanged to ½ cent a dozen higher. No government egg purchases were made in Chicago yesterday, although the FSCC made purchases in New York, which brought its total purchases to 242,250 dozens for the year.

DEFER SENTENCE OF WHITNEY AT BEHEST OF SEC

New York, March 28.—[Special.]—By prearrangement the sentencing of Richard Whitney, former president of the New York Stock exchange, on two counts of grand larceny, was postponed today until April 11 by Judge Owen W. Bohan in General Sessions. This was done at the request of officials of the Securities and Exchange commission and with the consent of the district attorney and the attorney general.

With the postponement, investigations of the firm's tangled affairs were continued on four fronts. Max Furman, an accountant in the attorney general's office, privately questioned Miss Grace A. Moyan, Whitney's secretary for fifteen years. Other inquiries were resumed at the district attorneq's office, wher it was learned that District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey had examined twenty-five witnesses in the last week.

STEEL OUTPUT RISES FOR FOURTH WEEK; RATE NOW 35.7 PCT.

Another small increase in steel production in the United States is scheduled this week, the operating rate advancing to 35.7 per cent of capacity, according to estimates made yesterday by the American Iron and Steel institute. The increase was said to reflect increased demands from agricultural implement makers and users of miscellaneous steel products.

This is the fourth consecutive week in which a gain has been recorded. The current rate represents an improvement of 2 points, or 5.9 per cent, from last week's operations at 33.7 per cent of capacity.

Both rates are the best since the week of last Nov. 15, when production was at 36.4 per cent of capacity. The rise of 6.4 points in the last four weeks is equal at 21.84 per cent.

Despite the recent gains, the steel industry is operating at its lowest rate for this time of year since 1933. A year ago the output was estimated at 90.7 per cent of capacity, almost at its highest level since 1929.

STEEL COMPANY AND DISTILLERY OMIT DIVIDENDS

The Blaw-Knox company yesterday omitted the interim dividend due on common stock at this time and the Brown-Forman Distillery company deferred action on its preferred dividend.

In announcing the decision of Blaw-Knox directors, President William P. Witherow said the company managed to stay out of the "red" in January and February. The company paid 20 cents a share last March.

Capital City Prod, 15c q....	Apr. 11	Apr. 6
Cent N Y Pwr pfd, $1.25q..	Apr. 30	Apr. 9
Gardner Denver, 25c q.....	Apr. 20	Apr. 8
Do pfd, 75c q.....	May 2	Apr. 20
Horders, 25c q.....	May 2	Apr. 20

Dividends omitted: Blaw-Knox common and Brown-Forman Distillery preferred.

The letter "q" in the table refers to regular quarterly dividend payments.

Truck Freight Movement Is Lower for February

Washington, D. C., March 28.—(AP)—The American Trucking association reported today that freight movement by truck in February was 4.71 per cent less than in January and 17.84 per cent below February, 1937.

Cargill Shifts Grain Trade to Minneapolis

The Cargill Grain company of Illinois yesterday completed the transfer of its grain commitments on the Chicago Board of Trade and shifted its operations to the Minneapolis Grain exchange. The Cargill firm withdrew from the floor of the Board of Trade in compliance with the expulsion order issued Friday by the exchange directors.

The Cargill company and its three principal officers were expelled from membership on charges involving operations in the corn market during the "squeeze" last September.

No difficulties were encountered by the company in transfering its open grain contracts to other commission houses which took over the trade for the Cargill account.

Negotiate for Stock Sale.

Negotiations were begun for the sale of the Cargill holdings of stock in the Board of Trade Clearing House association, and the three board of trade memberships of the firm were offered for sale. The best bid received for one membership was said to have been $2,000, the lowest since 1914. No offers were made for the other two memberships yesterday.

The memberships were those of John H. MacMillan Jr., president of Cargill, who also is president of Cargill, Inc., of Minneapolis, the parent company, and Edward J. Grimes and Philip C. Sayles, vice presidents.

Hedging activities of the Cargill interests in corn futures hereafter will be confined to the Minneapolis grain exchange, Grimes said in Minneapolis.

May Mean New Market.

Some traders thought such action may mean establishment of an independent corn market there. Trade estimates indicated that about 500,000 bushels of corn futures were traded in at Minneapolis yesterday, the largest business there in months.

As a result of the expulsion, the Cargill company probably will pay full commission rates on all business in grain futures transacted on the Chicago exchange, or at least pay rates considerably in excess of those charged members of the exchange.

Bulk Freighters Start Season on Lower Lakes

Cleveland, O., March 28.—(AP)—The first movement of bulk freighters on the lower great lakes got under way today with the clearing of the Elba from Toledo and the Sierra from Detroit to load coal.

STOCK AVERAGE HIGHER DESPITE MIXED TRENDS

Rail Issues Among Strong Spots.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 28.—Feeling its way cautiously after last week's buffeting, the stock market regained some ground today, although there was considerable irregularity. Most of the gainers were only fractionally higher, although several issues advanced 1 and 2 points. Trading was at a fairly brisk pace, 1,249,400 shares moving.

With the selling pressure of last Friday and Saturday relaxed and the feared continuation of forced selling because of impaired margin accounts failing to materialize, traders became more courageous and a good grade of buying prevailed at times.

Rails Give Best Performance.

Railroad shares gave the best group performance, rising 0.78 to 20.46, based on the Dow-Jones average. The industrial average added 0.62 to 107.25, but the utility average barely managed to show an increase, closing at 16.11, up 0.02.

Santa Fe, Chesapeake and Ohio, and Union Pacific were strong spots in the railroad group, adding 1 to 2½ points. Others registered substantial fractions, with New York Central, Southern Pacific, Northern Pacific, and Great Northern popular trading mediums.

United States Steel common lost ¼ point in the most active trading, while other steels, notably Bethlehem, Youngstown, and Republic, were well taken. Crucible and National Steel also moved forward. Gains ranged from ½ to 1½ points in these issues.

Utility shares firmed despite the announcement that the government had won its case covering holding company registration with the Securities and Exchange commission.

Copper Shares Unsettled.

Copper shares were erratic and silver shares tumbled, influenced, it was asserted, by nervousness concerning the industry as a result of Washington's cancellation of the silver purchasing pact with Mexico and the silver price reduction. American Smelting and Howe Sound broke 1¾ and 2¼ points respectively. Anaconda, in good demand, added ¾ of a point. International Nickel and Kennecott added similar amounts.

Aviation issues scored some of the more substantial advances of the day. Douglas and Boeing both worked more than 1 point higher and United Aircraft and Consolidated Aircraft were up fractionally.

In the motors Chrysler and General Motors added fractions in active demand. Heavy machinery shares followed the rest of the list. General Electric, Allis-Chalmers, Case, and Westinghouse gained fractions to 1¾ points. Building shares closed mostly higher.

PATENT DECISION UPSETS STEWART WARNER'S CLAIM

Washington, D. C., March 28.—(AP)—The Supreme court ruled today that the Lincoln Engineering company of Chicago had not infringed a patent for a lubricating apparatus owned by the Stewart-Warner corporation of Chicago.

Justice Roberts delivered the opinion that reversed a ruling by the Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals in favor of Stewart-Warner. Roberts announced no dissent. Chief Justice Hughes and Justice Cardozo did not participate.

No indication of the amount of money involved was given. The apparatus is widely used in the automobile industry and elsewhere for lubricating bearings.

Mexican Peso Falls on U. S. Silver Shift

MEXICO CITY, March 28.—(AP)—The peso reacted sharply today to the United States decision to stop purchases of Mexican silver and the nation awaited anxiously Washington's next move on President Lazaro Cardenas' expropriation of the foreign oil industry.

In unofficial street trading the peso was quoted at 4.60 to 4.70 to the dollar, a drop of 50 to 60 points from Saturday's quotations. The business was conducted by private banks, as foreign exchange dealings were suspended by the Central bank of Mexico when the government took over 17 American and British petroleum companies March 18.

Await Further U. S. Moves.

Secretary Morgenthau's statement in Washington that the United States had decided to "reëxamine certain of its financial and commercial relations with Mexico" was the subject of speculation. Interpretation of the statement, which accompanied Morgenthau's announcement yesterday of suspension of silver purchases, was expected to throw some light on the future course of the United States.

[Officials of the four American oil companies affected by the expropriation conferred in Washington today with Secretary Hull and asked government support in seeking modification of Cardenas' drastic decree.]

The Mexican government's serious need for immediate world markets for oil from the expropriated fields was emphasized, meanwhile, by a survey showing a 65 to 75 per cent cut in production.

Oil Storage Tanks Full.

Storage tanks at the three leading shipping points—Tampico, Tuxpan, and Minatitlah—were filled to capacity. Refined tanks at Tampico and Minatitlan also were full. This left the petroleum council, named to administer the $400,000,000 industry, with no place to store the oil flowing from the few wells still open.

Executives of Aguila [Royal Dutch Shell] were advised that their Tampico refinery, which turned out 66,000 barrels of oil a day before the expropriation, was now down to 6,000 barrels daily. Aguila's smaller refinery at Minatitlan was reported closed.

The 10,000 barrel Tampico refinery of Huasteca, subsidiary of Standard Oil of New Jersey, likewise was reported closed, as was the Pierce-Sinclair refinery there of equal capacity.

One Refinery at Capacity.

The only refinery said to be working at capacity was Aguila's federal district plant. Its 13,000 barrel daily output was being absorbed locally.

With the exception of one cargo, no oil has been shipped out of Mexico in the last nine days, in contrast to the 100,000 barrels a day heretofore.

President Cardenas announced another step in the nation's "Mexico for Mexicans" program would be taken during the first 15 days of April when the National railways would be turned over to the Railway Workers' Syndicate to operate. He empowered the syndicate to name administrative officers and authorized Finance Minister Eduardo Suarez to complete negotiations on the workers' pay.

House Gets Bill for RFC Loans to Private Business

Washington, D. C., March 28.—(AP)—Chairman Steagall [D., Ala.] of the house banking committee introduced a bill today to give the Reconstruction Finance corporation blanket authority to make loans to any solvent private business, large or small, and to states and their subdivisions. Steagall said Chairman Jones of the RFC requested the bill. A similar measure has been introduced in the senate by Senator Glass [D., Va.]. Steagall said the RFC had $1,500,000,000 for such loans.

U. S. CUTS PRICE OF SILVER; BLOW TO MEXICO SEEN

Action 'Linked' with Oil Land Seizure.

The United States treasury yesterday reduced its price for foreign silver from 45 to 44 cents an ounce following a downturn in world prices. This, it is believed, will make it more difficult for Mexico to dispose of silver profitably in world markets. Secretary Morgenthau announced Saturday that the United States would not renew its agreement on April 1 to buy 2,500,000 ounces of silver a month from Mexico.

The reduction was the first change in the quotation on foreign silver since Jan. 20, 1936. It was the first time that the United States has not stood firm despite action of foreign markets. According to the Associated Press, a treasury spokesman admitted the cut at this time was "signficant."

Treasury officials would not say why they had ordered the cut but observers generally linked the reduction and cessation of the Mexican silver buying program with expropriation of American oil properties by the Mexican government and raising of tarif barriers against American goods.

May Weaken World Prices.

In New York and Washington it was predicted that the indication of lessening American support for world silver prices would weaken the world silver market so that Mexico could sell silver abroad only at sacrifice prices.

Announcement of the treasury price cut was made after the London market was closed. Earlier silver in London had sold at 43.79 cents an ounce, down 1.68 cents from the Saturday quotation of 45.47 cents. Silver futures in Montreal closed 0.05 cent to 1.30 cents an ounce lower on heavy selling.

A few large producers and smelters of silver sensed in the treasury's discontinuance of Mexican silver purchases a move toward repeal of the silver purchase act, which the treasury never liked and which it accepted on a mandate from congress. Others believed, however, that no action toward repeal of the act would be taken at this time because the silver bloc in the senate is more than ever necessary to the administration politically.

Domestic Price Unchanged.

No change was made in the treasury's bid price of 64.64 cents an ounce for newly mined domestic silver. The domestic price was reduced from 77.57 cents on Jan. 1.

Following the cut by the treasury, Handy & Harman, New York bullion brokers, immediately quoted foreign silver one cent lower at 43¾ cents an ounce. The firm continued to quote domesti csilver at 64½ cents.

A break of 1.27 cents in the Shanghai dollar marked foreign exchange dealings. The decline in the Shanghai unit occurred when foreign banks in China allowed quotations to drop into line with bill-of-exchange trading done outside the banks. The action of the banks followed a dispute with the Chinese finance ministry at Hankow over allocation of foreign exchange.

The dollar declined in terms of principal European currencies except the French franc which eased 0.00½ of a cent to 3.02 cents on selling attributed to unsettlement over continued government difficulties in financing heavier armament demands.

The British pound closed at $4.95 11-16, up ⅝ of a cent, and the Netherlands guilder advanced 0.03 of a cent to 55.32 cents.

Stocks, Bonds

New York Bonds.

New York, March 28.—(AP)—The bond market, after a session of fairly brisk trading and several rallies, closed lower in all groups today. Utilities gave ground, the foreign dollar list was weak, and United States government obligations were irregular.

New lows for the year were registered in associated press averages for rails, utilities, industrials, and low yield liens, with the rail group index at 52.5, down 0.2, only 0.4 above the July 15, 1932, low. Industrials and utilities hovered just over April 1935 lows. The low yield group, which recently had held its own fairly well, was only 0.1 above the low of last Nov. 27.

Union Pacific 3½s of '71 were down 4 at 86 and Boston and Maine 5s of '67 were off 2 at 27. Losses of a point or more were sustained by Baltimore and Ohio 4½s at 13¼; Colorado Gas and Electric 5s [May], at 90½; International Hydro-Electric 6s, 53½; International Paper 5s, 81; International Telephone 5s, 47, and McKesson and Robbins 5½s, 96¾.

Chicago Stocks.

Stocks on the Chicago exchange moved irregularly yesterday in fairly active trading. Of the 96 issues traded 18 advanced, 44 declined, and 34 were unchanged.

Most of the volume leaders were either unchanged or higher. Of the 10 most active stocks, 7 advanced and 3 were unchanged. Chicago corporation, the trading favorite, was unchanged at 1¾.

Cities Service and General House hold were both unchanged at 1⅛. Middle West advanced ¼ to 4¾. Borg-Warner rose ⅞ to 19½, Commonwealth Edison gained ¼ at 23½.

Bank Stocks.

Chicago bank stock quotations were mostly steady yesterday, with dealers differing on figures in several instances. City National bank shares were quoted from $125 bid, $130 asked, to $128 bid, $135 asked, the latter range unchanged from Saturday. Continental Illinois National eased $1 to $51 bid, $53 asked, with one quotation at $50.50 bid. Other loop bank stocks were unchanged.

AM. AIRLINES REPORTS LOSS OF $93,628 IN 1937

But Records for Trafic Are Established.

American Airlines, Inc., had a net loss of $93,628 in 1937 despite an increase of 21 per cent in total revenues, the annual report by C. R. Smith, president, disclosed yesterday. Net profit of the company in 1936 was $4,589, or 2 cents a share on the capital stock.

C. R. Smith.

New records for passenger, mail and express trafic for the company were established last year. Passengers carried totaled 300,571, an increase of 17.7 per cent. Smith said the company transported more than 30 per cent of all revenue passengers carried by scheduled air lines in the country during 1937, compared with 28 per cent in 1936. Air mail revenues amounted to $2,982,293, compared with $2,444,361 in 1936. Revenue from air express was $359,264 against $224,417 in the preceding year.

Tells Cause of Loss.

"Operations were conducted with loss for the year 1937 for the reason that losses in the spring were greater than usual and losses for November and December, 1937, were unseasonably early and large," Smith told stockholders. "The losses in November and December can, in our opinion, be attributed very largely to the decline in general business, which began in middle October and had not materially improved at the end of the year.

"The severity of the late decline in revenues, due to the decline in general business, will be understood when it is known that 75 per cent of air line travel is business travel."

Although the cost of operation per airplane mile increased from 58.9 cents in 1936 to 66 cents in 1937, the cost per seat mile flown decreased from 4.88 cents to 4.25 cents.

Discusses 1938 Outlook.

Commenting on the outlook for this year, Smith said:

"Air transportation is business transportation. The profitable operation of the company in 1938 will depend upon improvement in business conditions during the year. The first two months of the year have been encouraging; the revenues for the months of January and February, 1938, are above those of January and February, 1937, with fewer miles flown."

An increase of authorized capital stock from 500,000 to 1,000,000 $10 par shares will be considered by stockholders at the annual meeting April 20. Smith said that no additional financing is now contemplated, but that all stock authorized and unissued is held for issuance only on conversion of present debentures.

FEARS RATE WAR IF LONG-SHORT HAUL RULE ENDS

Washington, D. C., March 28.—(AP)—Interstate Commerce Commissioner Joseph B. Eastman told a senate committee today the Pettengill bill to repeal the long and short haul clause of the commerce act may result in a rate war between railroads and water carriers and an adverse affect on employment in the transportation industries. The bill would permit railroads to charge lower rates for long hauls than short hauls in the same direction over the same route.

"If you give the railroads permission to go after trafic now handled by the intercoastal shipping lines," Eastman said, "it is ridiculous to suppose that the water carriers are going to sit back and see their business taken away from them. They are going to reduce rates to hold it and then you are going to have a serious competitive situation."

STANDARD ASKS COURT TO UPSET OIL CASE VERDICT

Madison, Wis., March 28.—(AP)—A charge that prosecutors in the government's gasoline price fixing case had failed to prove that the Standard Oil company of Indiana had approved or participated in a gasoline buying program in 1935 and 1936 was made today before Federal Judge Patrick T. Stone by Weymouth Kirkland, counsel for the company.

Sixteen oil companies and 30 executives and employés were convicted Jan. 22 of violating the Sherman antitrust law. Kirkland was the first defense attorney to present arguments for the dismissal of the jury's verdict. Pending before Judge Stone are separate motions to direct acquittal or grant new trials for all the corporate and individual defendants, including three Standard of Indiana officials.

Institutional Investors.

Among the largest investors in securities are insurance companies, schools and universities, and endowment funds of various kinds. They sometimes are called institutional investors. Because many of these agencies depend for their current financial needs on the income from investments, they constitute one of the most important and continuing investing groups.

Frequently, when the investment market is not receptive to new security offerings, issuing companies are able to sell their obligations privately to an insurance company or an endowment fund. In ordinary circumstances an investing agency of this type is interested, primarily, in receiving a moderate rate of interest, coupled with surety that principal will be repaid at maturity. Investments are made for the long term without the idea of making a profit on appreciation in price.

Low interest rates and the scarcity of new capital offerings have created difficult investment problems for these investors in recent years. The income from their investments has shrunk and they are unable to make new investments that bring an adequate return.

Fails to Act on Death Sentence Clause.

tion, financial structure and nature of the business of the registrant, together with various details of operations. Section 4 [a] prohibits the use of the mails and the facilities of interstate commerce by holding companies which do not register.

Defendants' Status Defined.

Citing the contention of the defendants that the registration provisions, when considered separately, are unconstitutional, the court's opinion said:

"The findings of the District court based upon the stipulation of facts leave no room for doubt that these defendants are engaged in transactions in interstate commerce. That they conduct such transactions through the instrumentality of subsidiaries cannot avail to remove them from the reach of the federal power. It is the substance of what they do, and not the form in which they clothe their transactions, which must afford interest."

"The constitutional authority confided to congress could not be maintained if it were deemed to depend upon the mere model arrangements of those seeking to escape its exercise. We need not now determine to what precise extent these defendants are actually engaged in interstate commerce. It is enough that they do have continuous and extensive operations in that commerce and congress cannot be denied the power to demand the information which would furnish a guide to the regulation necessary or appropriate in the national interest."

START TO REGISTER

A move by the nation's utility holding companies to comply with the registration requirements of the holding company act got under way yesterday shortly after announcement of the Supreme court decision upholding the registration provisions of the act.

Two companies gave notice of intention to register and a third filed a complete registration form. The three companies have combined assets of $1,406,287,000. Approximately 100 holding companies have yet to comply with the registration provision of the act. They have 90 days within which to file after signifying intention to do so. Registrations are made with the Securities and Exchange commission.

United Corporation Acts.

The three companies which acted yesterday are the Commonwealth and Southern corporation, which controls operating companies in the TVA area; the United corporation, and the United Telephone and Electric company. United Telephone, through William C. A. Henry, trustee, filed the complete registration form.

The SEC said Commonwealth and Southern's assets are valued at $1,162,000,000; United corporation's at $237,000,000, and United Telephone and Electric's at $7,287,000.

C. E. Groesbeck, chairman of Electric Bond and Share, said in New York that the Bond and Share system would register "at as early a date as the formalities will permit."

Southern Railroad Seeks to Obtain Loan from RFC

Washington, D. C., March 28.—[Special.]—The Galveston, Houston and Henderson railroad today applied to the interstate commerce commission for authority to borrow $2,122,000 for the Reconstruction Finance corporation and to issue $2,817,000 of its first mortgage 4 per cent bonds, series B, due April 1, 1963, which would be pledged as collateral for the loan.

CORN ADVANCES ON BUYING FOR LAKE SHIPMENT

Wheat Finishes Higher After Early Decline.

CHICAGO GRAIN FUTURES

	Yesterday.	Saturday.	Year ago.
Wheat	$ .86¼	$ .85¾	$1.43⅛
Corn	.61¾	.61	1.19
Oats	.36	.36	.49¼
Rye	.64¼	.64⅝	1.14⅛
Soy beans	.99	.98¾	1.65

Corn was the leader in the grain markets yesterday, the May delivery advancing ¾ cent to close at the highest price since early in January. The rise resulted from reports that additional quantities of cash grain had been sold for shipment from Chicago at the opening of lake navigation.

July corn gained ¾ cent, but the September contract was ½ cent a bushel lower, as it was sold against purchases of the May delivery. There also was pressure on September corn from spreaders who were buying rye.

Wheat futures declined about 1 cent a bushel in the early trading, all deliveries selling at new low levels for the season and the May contract touching 84⅝ cents.

Wheat Rallies to Close Higher.

However, the wheat market rallied later in sympathy with the Winnipeg market and with the strength in corn, and closed ⅛ to ½ cent a bushel higher. Winnipeg wheat futures were ⅜ to 2⅛ cents a bushel higher, the May delivery showing the most strength. Price changes in oats, rye, and soy beans were confined to small fractions of a cent.

Export sales of 300,000 bushels of cash corn were reported yesterday. The country sold 112,000 bushels for deferred shipment, the price paid for No. 2 yellow corn in the sample market permitting farmers to receive around 50 cents a bushel at numerous interior points, or in line with the government loan level.

Rains Improve Wheat Outlook.

Heavy rains fell over a large part of the southwestern winter wheat belt, materially improving the outlook for the new crop. The early price break was on selling induced by the receipt of much needed moisture. Wheat in Liverpool closed unchanged to ¼ cent a bushel lower.

Houses with export and foreign connections were fairly aggressive buyers of wheat futures yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade and at Winnipeg, and there were indications of a liberal export business.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK

Live stock markets were extremely uneven yesterday. Live costs of hogs dropped to the lowest point in more than a month despite moderate supplies. Sluggish demand for fresh pork was blamed for the break. A rise of 50 cents to $1.00 per hundred pounds in the wholesale prices of dressed lamb meat stimulated buying of live lambs at sharply higher prices. Cattle prices were steady to slightly higher.

Positions Now Open

An executive of our organization will be in Chicago on Tuesday to interview men for permanent positions. Such men should apply in person at once.

We will hire men in Chicago and adjacent suburbs, train them thoroughly at our factory branch, and employ them immediately. Can only use men of a mature age as positions are responsible. However, you must be reliable and able to learn this elec. appl. work as taught.

These are permanent and well paid positions. Our product is so unusual that you must be trained in it. While learning new men must be satisfied with earnings from percentage amounting to between $25 and $40 per week, but later can increase it substantially.

If you are married and your wife is interested in you making more money, this is a permanent, responsible position with a fine chance for advancement.

Ask at the desk of the Sherman Hotel for Mr. Lind, from 9 a. m. to 12 noon; or 4 to 6 p. m., Tuesday, March 29th.

An Investigation

OF A SOUND, SOLID BUSINESS OF YOUR OWN WILL BE OPEN TO A FEW MEN FOR CHICAGO AND SURROUNDING TERRITORY.

Men who are without jobs and men who are unprofitably employed should immediately interview the writer of this ad and hear the amazing story of a new invention that is going over big and making men from $40 to as high as $150 commission a week.

Sales ability is not essential: we will discount sales experience in favor of a genuine desire to work hard and learn. WE FINANCE YOU for your own business and pay you weekly.

NO INVESTMENT — Nothing to buy—straight and on the level electrical unit. We will grant you a personal interview and you will be amazed at the money-making possibilities this business holds for you—if you qualify. Apply 9 to 4.
